Death of Owen Lovejoy.

The N. Y. Evening Post, of Saturday, has the following announcement of the death of the Hon. Owen Lovejoy—an event which the recent reports from his physicians had prepared his friend to anticipate:

Owen Lovejoy, a member of Congress from the Fifth Illinois district, died in Brooklyn at half past eleven o'clock last night. He had been complaining since January, but came to this city from Washington on the 15th, and the following day was out of doors; since then he has been confined to his bed with an affection of the liver and kidneys. He was attended in his last illness by his wife and daughter and many sympathizing friends.

Mr. Lovejoy was a self-made man. Born in Kennebec county, Me., in 1811, he passed his boyhood working on a farm, and paid his way through Bowdoin College by teaching school. Studying theology, he received a call to the pastorate of the Congregational Church at Princeton, Illinois, and officiated there for sixteen years, until, in 1854, he was elected to represent his district in Congress, where he was prominent as a bold and fearless advocate of freedom for all.

In 1857, his brother, Rev. E. P. Lovejoy, an anti-slavery editor, was murdered at Alton, Illinois, by a pro-slavery mob; and since then Owen Lovejoy had, naturally enough, manifested a deeper intensity in his hatred of slave institutions; and to those of the opposite party his bold, unsparing denunciations had rendered him peculiarly obnoxious.

Among the incidents of his political career it will be remembered that shortly after the struggle for the Speakership in the House, which resulted in the election of Mr.—now General—Banks, Mr. Lovejoy was speaking very earnestly when he was interrupted by Pryor, of Virginia, who said he did not wish to hear any more of "such trash."

To this Mr. Lovejoy replied that for six weeks the House had listened to the "trash" of the democratic members, and it now was his turn. Mr. Lovejoy was at once supported by the Republican members, and Mr. Pryor by the Southern democrats—since, session.

It was really a notable struggle for the maintenance of free speech in our Congressional hall, and had for an incidental result, the famous Potter and Pryor challenge—a duel which never took place.

Mr. Lovejoy was exceedingly popular in the district which he represented, where he possessed great influence, and where his free and bold discussions of political questions, while he was yet a pastor, aided to form the political opinions of his constituents. He was as honest as he was fearless. In private life he was amiable and irreproachable.

Mr. Lovejoy's funeral will probably take place on Monday afternoon, and Rev. Dr. Storrs, Rev. Dr. Cheever and Rev. H. W. Beecher are expected to officiate.

Death of the King of Bavaria.

When the troubles of 1848 induced Ludwig I., of Bavaria—the friend of art, of painters, of sculptors, and of Lola Montez—to abdicate, he did so in favor of his son Prince Joseph, who ascended the throne, and took the title of Maximilian II. The latter was then thirty-seven years old. In 1842 he had married the Princess Frederica Frances Augusta Maria Hedewig, of the royal house of Prussia, by whom he had two sons, Prince Louis Otho Frederick William, now in his 19th year, King of Bavaria, and Prince Otho William Luitpold Adalbert Waldem; born in 1848.

The old King Ludwig was a most munificent patron of art, and made his naturally uninteresting capital of Munich one of the most fascinating and beautiful cities of Europe—a Cis-Alpine Florence. His son, the late king, inherited all his father's refined tastes, without those unfortunate qualities which brought about so much court scandal. He, too, beautified Munich, and the recently completed triumphal arch standing between the Glyptothek and the Pinacothek is one of the latest of the architectural adornments of the fair city of Munich, which will bear the name of Maximilian II.

The late king was more fond of the society of scholars, philosophers, and architects, than of statesmen and warriors. In politics he was moderately liberal, but indeed at the beginning of his reign he had to be if he wanted to retain his throne. But a year later he indulged in some of the petty tyrannies to which the small monarchs of Europe are addicted. He exiled political writers and dissolved the Diet; but afterwards we find him again verging towards the liberal side, and in the year 1856-his career was marked by an effort on his part to ameliorate the condition of the Jews in his dominions. This was the most praiseworthy as Bavaria is one of the most prominent Roman Catholic monarchies, and as the king found no sympathy among his advisers in this undertaking, and very little even among his subjects.

The Campaign in the Southwest.

By telegraph a few days ago we had an announcement of the capture on the 4th of Fort De Russey, a stronghold on Red River. Twenty-four officers, three hundred men and eight siege guns were taken. Later intelligence informs us that on the 12th a portion of Admiral Porter's fleet appeared off Alexandria and demanded its surrender. The demand was complied with on the 15th, without opposition. The campaign in Western Louisiana has thus fairly commenced. Gen. Banks was to have taken the field on the 21st. Gen. Lee's (Union) cavalry occupied New Iberia prior to the capture of Fort De Russey and Alexandria.

RAVERY OF COLORED TROOPS.—The fight at Vidalia, La., opposite Natchez, was an affair very creditable to the colored troops, who gained the victory there. Col. M'Caleb, in his official report, says: "A force of three hundred colored troops put to flight, in great confusion, four or five times their number of the chivalrous enemy with a loss to them of one killed, five wounded, some mortally, and a number of prisoners. Not a man of my command was hurt. Major Charles W. Smith, commanding the battalion in reserve, informs me that he and the line officers of his command were obliged to place themselves before their men with drawn swords, and threatened summary punishment to the first man who would attempt to quit the ranks to join their comrades fighting in the front, their eagerness to be engaged being almost irrepressible.

HOW TO FORM ONE REGIMENT.—The Montgomery (Ga.) Advertiser, of the 5th inst., says that the Third, Seventeenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth and Thirty-first Louisiana regiments have been consolidated into one, to be known as the Twenty-second. When it takes eight old regiments to make one new one, we know how the thing goes, notwithstanding the boasts of the Richmond papers about the increasing force of the rebel armies.

THE biggest city railroad project yet heard of is pending in the Pennsylvania Legislature. It proposes to run cars through fifty streets in Philadelphia—most of which have not a rail in them. Of course it is an attempt, on the part of a ring of speculators, to perpetrate a huge fraud by the aid of Harrisburg "legislation" on the good people of Philadelphia. The papers of that city strongly denounce it, and will probably succeed in averting it.

LETTERS from St. Petersburg state, that in the southern provinces of Russia a large extent of country has been "tapped," yielding very fine petroleum.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.

NEW YORK, March 25, 1864.

The projects for relieving Broadway have been too numerous to mention. The latest is an emanation from some crack-brained fellow, who has been to Europe, seen the tunnel under the Thames, and read of the Chicago sub-lake roadway. This individual proposed a tunnel from Bowling Green to Central Park, four miles, in which he argues the saving of a double-track railway. The idea is certainly plausible, but will be rejected by the city fathers, as were all the other expedients. New York would not have Broadway relieved. The human tide that ebbs and flows and surges through that channel, is the pride of the city, and the people would soon cut a blood vein than destroy this jostling, busy, dusty thoroughfare. Broadway now has curiosity. Thousands of people crowd hundreds of miles to see it, indulge in all sorts of hypotheses, as to where the people come from, and generally go away satisfied that some place of amusement had at that time turned its audience into the street. Propositions for widening Broadway, widening the parallel side streets, and establishing railroads for all, have repeatedly been suggested, but as often vetoed. Now, since the escape of Union and rebel prisoners by tunnelling, boring seems to have acquired an exalted position in the minds of some, and one man has had adaptability enough to associate it with the long agitated question of relieving Broadway.

Mr. Lockwood, of Westchester, has immortalized himself by introducing into the assembly a bill to abolish lottery brokerage, and prevent the telegraphing or publication of numbers drawn in the lotteries of other States. This is a fatal stab at "Brother Ben's" favorites, forty-four policy shops, and will, if successful, (and I do not see how anybody outside of the Democratic party dare vote against the measure) disturb the "pigs," "eagles" saddlers," and "whips" generally of these infernal dens. It is stated that there are upwards of five hundred of these "exchange offices" in this city. In these places young men spend their own money, and as much as they can rake and scrape of every body else, until they find themselves forced to crime, to make both ends meet. Should the bill become a law, it is hardly to be hoped that the good results intended will follow; for the numbers are sent in cipher, but the brokers can be squelched. Mr. Lockwood will certainly have the sympathy of every honest man, in thus attempting, at least, to break up these great Democratic headquarters.

Some more Indians from the West arrived a few days ago at the Historical Society's rooms, en route for Washington, whither they go to see their great Father Abraham. Their expectancy, it is supposed, of being taken to his bosom. Quite a pow-wow was held, and the ladies were immensely delighted at the noble savages of the forest. Mister Lo, the poor Indian, was there.

The spotted fever, which appeared so alarmingly at Long Branch, our favorite summer resort, has been pronounced by a deputation of New York physicians, sent to investigate the matter, not infectious or epidemical. Every case is traceable to distinct causes. Bread from spoiled flour, and rye coffee, added to the fear engendered by the prevalent belief that a contagion had broken out, were stated to be the causes of nine-tenths of the disease. It has since been ascertained that there are cases of the spotted fever in the city and have been for a month. The scare is well over.

Four female missionaries have been appointed to labor in behalf of the Sunday School Union. The field is extensive enough for five hundred such missionaries, as is evidenced by the swarms of children to be found in the streets on the Sabbath. Of course, many of them are profoundly ignorant of the architectural beauty of a church interior, though it is to be hoped by this pioneer movement, that they will not long be so. The work is heavy, and the laborers few.

WAVERLEY.

The Coming Fair.

EDITORS GAZETTE: Can no arrangement be effected by which the Sanitary and Christian Commissions can unite their interests in the approaching Fair? The public generally would hail such a union with satisfaction, and if the friends of both institutions can be heartily enlisted, the Fair will result in a much more complete success. The two Commissions, twin sisters of mercy, should move together in perfect harmony—both ile neat the hearts of patriotic christian people, and in general sweeping contributions. From the public like these national Fairs, both should be equally remembered. Is it fair to scour the country of all its voluntary gifts and tour the whole into the offices of the Sanitary Commission? Is it fair to enter even into the churches and demand their contributions, which legitimately should flow into the treasury of the Christian Commission, the supplying the noble work of this most useful Association? Having done so, and succeeded in getting the churches enlisted and proposing to take every dollar that can be secured in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio, would it not be policy if not magnanimity to ask the Christian Commission to join them in the preparation and share the results. The soldiers of the Union need more than physical supplies; they want moral and religious influence in the camp and hospital. They want books, papers, bibles, religious teachers, christian men to encourage virtuous patriotic sentiment, conduct prayer meetings and other religious services, write letters for the sick, comfort and instruct the dying, and give christian burial to the dead. All this the Christian Commission does in addition to the endless variety of stores which it supplies for sick and well.

The Sanitary Commission comforts the body, the other both body and soul. The Christian Commission works with wonderful economy; no paid delegates; but few paid agents in the field; freights and passages all free; telegraphing free.

And now the question recurs, shall such an agency, whose labors and results have been so wonderful, be forsaken by this Christian community, in order to give a kindred and less deserving object, all the contributions of the country? The system of Fairs which we now carrying out, is diverting immensely from channels which heretofore, and legitimately supplied the Christian Commission, and much of the great good it might do must be neglected for want of means.

How do the Treasuries of these two Commissions now compare? In the Fairs which have already been held, the Sanitary Commission has received one million dollars, and the approaching Fairs in New York and Philadelphia are expected to yield one million and a half more, making two millions and a half to be expended during the remainder of the war, which cannot be expected to last over the present year. The Commission has not expended a half million per year heretofore, and you may readily see the propriety of adding to its funds. The treasury of the Christian Commission is almost entirely empty and could it receive a portion of the exuberant charity of a liberal and patriotic army, its indefatigable offices of good to the people might be duplicated and quadrupled in a single month.

What say the Executive Committee of the coming Fair? Is it necessary to scour the country to add to the $2,500,000, which the Sanitary Committee will soon have in its treasury, and to do so stop or cripple the precious work of the Christian Commission? Let clergymen devise some satisfactory plan of union, that the religious and moral element of the community may have its proper place in this grand work of patriotism and Christianity, and beyond any question, the success of the Fair will be greatly enhanced, and the results to the army and the country will be incalculable.

The Demand for Mineral Lands.

The rush for lands in the Lake Superior country, which are supposed to contain mineral, is unexampled. The entries for February amount to upward of twenty-six thousand acres, including cash and warrant locations. The proceeds of cash sales during that time foot up $21,305 89. Quite a number of warrants were on hand at the close of the month, waiting their turn, and one day's mail brought to the office for location 105 warrants, calling for 17,200 acres, besides several other applications made in person the same day, making in all applications on that day amounting to over eighteen thousand acres.

A NEW COPPER MINE.—The Middletown (N. Y.) Mercury says the copper mine lately discovered at Otisville, Orange county, establishes its great richness and value beyond question. The shaft has now been sunk about eighty feet; the ore constantly improving in quality and quantity as the work progresses. The ore now raised, it is claimed, will yield $200 worth of pure copper to the ton. The opening of the mine will undoubtedly prove a most important development of the mineral wealth of that county.

DESERTERS and refugees are continually arriving at Brownsville, Texas; 2,000 in all have reached that place. A party of seven hundred and fifty deserted from a rebel regiment, and three hundred were sent in pursuit. The latter overtook the former, and joined them in their flight. A part of them have already got to Brownsville.

News and Miscellany.

THE NEW CENTS.—A bill has been passed by the Senate and will probably be adopted by the House, substituting a bronze coinage for the present nickel cents, to be composed of 95 per cent. copper and 5 per cent. tin. There are to be one cent and two cent pieces—the one cent pieces to be a legal tender to the amount of ten cents, and the two cent pieces to be a legal tender to the amount of twenty cents. Counterfeiting these coins is to be punishable by fine and imprisonment.

"Putting your foot in it," it seems, is a term of Hibernian origin. According to the "Asiatic Researches," a very curious mode of trying the title to land is practiced in Hindostan. Two holes are dug in the disputed spot, in each of which the lawyer on either side put one of their legs, and there remain until one of them is tired, or complains of being stung by insects—in which case his client is defeated. In our country it is generally the client, and not the lawyer, who "puts his foot in it."

AN order has just been issued from the War Department which reads thus: "All Confederate bills, notes or bonds in the hands of officers or agents of the Government will be transmitted to the Adjutant General of the army, with a specified statement how and from whom they were received. If captured, the circumstances of the capture will be stated. Commanding officers of departments, armies in the field, independent posts, regiments and companies are charged with the execution of this order."

A WORTHY EXAMPLE.—The London Economist is informed that the Bank of England have this year set the admirable example of giving a gratuity to the clerks in their employment, in consideration of the usual profitableness of banking at the present time, and the unusual labor which has lately been thrown upon the employees. The gratuity is ten per cent. upon all the salaries in the establishment.

RETRIBUTION.—A large number of the negroes brought in from the interior of Mississippi by Gen. Sherman's forces have been quartered on Jeff Davis' extensive plantation.

A FRENCH female lecturer, Maria A. Baker, has appeared in Massachusetts. She comes from Norbury and discourses about Milton.

IN 1859 the Walla-Walla valley in Washington territory numbered only forty farmers. Now it has five thousand.
