Such are the probable features which will characterize the coming campaign. With the complete abandonment by our generals of the anaconda policy, and the sencentration in two grand invading armies of not less than 400,000 men, the chances of an early termination of the struggle are almost reduced to a certainty.

But, while we are thus hopeful of the results of the coming campaign, we are impelled to express our regret that the Government at Washington and the people of the North do not yet seem to have become inspired with that terrible expressions that the following:
