Sherman and Johnston.

The movement of Sherman's army from Chattanooga to Dallas (Ga.) has been a continued series of successes. Johnston was flanked from both sides, and compelled to leave the almost impregnable mountain fastnesses south of Chattanooga. He was flanked again at Resaca, and is now flanked a third time—utterly preventing the battle which he ought, and probably would have given at the passage of the Etowah river. By marching from Rome, through New Hope to Dallas, he made it certain that if Johnston remained at the crossing of the Etowah, Sherman would be at Marietta, and cut him off entirely at Atlanta. Hence we find him retreating. The two armies are now at the last spurs of the Blue Ridge, as they break off into knobs and finally terminate near Huntsville. If Johnston is driven back any farther (and he is now only twenty miles from Atlanta) the last of the rough and defensible mountain country will be passed. There will be before Sherman's army, productive country, in which our army will find rations and forage sufficient for their future advance. One of the most ridiculous ideas the rebels have got up, as that Johnston is drawing Sherman on, expecting to get some great advantage! That is the way they have been drawing us on, all the time; and the effort will be attended with the same advantages as the others. According to the rebel theory, it was very wrong in us to go from Bowling Green to Nashville, and then Nashville to Chattanooga. The fact is, the only difficulty is in establishing depots of supplies a suitable distances. This was done at Nashville and at Chattanooga. If we take Atlanta, we shall establish a sufficient depot (amply defended) at Atlanta, and then go on to Augusta, the great depository of the rebel munitions. Johnston has 70,000 men, and if he was a good General he could have made a stand in the mountains around Dalton, or he could not make one at all. In fact, Johnston has proved himself far inferior to the rebel laudations of him. He has done nothing for the rebels worthy of their praise, and is inferior to Bragg. We shall see whether there is anything in him to redeem the rebel promises.

Mr. Whiting, Solicitor of the War Department.

The Cincinnati Commercial has the following account of a man in office who actually works for nothing and finds himself! If any one, says the N. Y. Tribune, happens to know another, we will thank him to send us his portrait and biography: The Commercial's Washington's correspondent says:

"A few weeks since, I wrote of a man who didn't want an office. Now I have a still more startling fact to announce—a man who holds an office under the Government, works hard, and wants to pay for it! The case of Mr. Whiting, Solicitor of the War Department, and the case, as related to me by an intimate friend of his, is as follows: About two (years ago, Secretary Stanton came to Mr. Whiting, whom he had known well and favorably as a lawyer for many years at his home in Massachusetts, informing him that he was about to create the office of Solicitor for the War Department, and requested him the position, at a salary of $5 000 a year. I believe. Mr. Whiting replied that he would be glad to serve the Government in the capacity named, and, would accept the office upon one condition, that he receive no pay or emolument of any kind, and have the privilege of bearing his own expenses at the capital. This was finally, though reluctantly, acceded to by Mr. Stanton, and Mr. Whiting left his palatial home in New England, and took up quarters in Washington City. No contract with nothing to receive compensation himself, he drew up an instrument in writing, and filed it in the War Department, stipulating that, in case of his death while here, his family should not be entitled to one dollar for the services he may have rendered. Mr. Whiting is a rich man, and can afford to do all he has magnanimously agreed to; but it should be remembered there are hundreds of others, equally rich, and who could equally well afford it, who would hesitate for a long time before accepting such a non-remunerative berth."

General Butler.

The New York Evening Post finds itself obliged to withdraw its charge against Gen. Butler of having neglected and refused, against Gen. Gillmore's remonstrance, to intrench his position in rear of Fort Darling. Gen. Butler wrote to Gen. Gillmore asking:

"Did you or do you authorize the statement that Gilmore advised Butler to make his (my) position secure by intrenchments against sorties or any movements of the enemy to drive us from them when before Fort Darling, and that I answered that I would not pause for defensive preparation?"

Gen. Gilmore answered:

"I never advised you as stated. I sent a staff officer to you in regard to certain changes in the line, but there was not time to make those changes, even if they had been ordered."

That disposes of the whole case against Gen. Butler, for it is upon this matter of intrenchments, and of disagreement with Gen. Gilmore, and of resulting disaster, that the comment of The Post, and the journals which followed its lead, was based. And we hope to see those journals at ready to imitate The Post in correcting their error as they were swift to reiterate its charges when they seemed to bear hard on Gen. Butler.

Miss Major Pauline Cushman.

The New York papers announce the arrival of Miss Major Pauline Cushman at the Astor House, in that city, on Monday. She has led a romantic life since the war began Tennessee; passed to and from the rebel lines; gathered and communicated much valuable information; was finally arrested by Bragg, tried by court martial and sentenced to be hung; was rescued by the advance of our forces under Rosecrans; was honored with a commission as a major in recognition of her valuable services; has incurred extensively in aid of the soldiers in the West; and now visits the Eastern States to restore her health, which has been much impaired by severe mental labor and the wounds she has received.

Cambria County Items.

Cyrus L. Pershing, Esq., of Johnstown, brother of the President of Pittsburgh Female College, has been nominated for re-election to the lower branch of the Legislature by the Democracy of Cambria county. If re-elected the next will be his fourth consecutive term in a Republican House.

The remains of Adjutant James C. Noon, of the 135th Regiment P. V., who was killed at the first battle of Fredericksburg, arrived home on last Friday morning, in charge of his brother, District Attorney P. B. Noon, and his brother-in-law, Phillip Collins. Esq. His remains were interred in the Catholic burial ground at Bonneburg. Peace to his ashes!

Mr. Dean Canan, enrolling officer for Conemaugh borough, met with a warm reception on one of the 5 days on which he called, in the shape of a bucket of hot water thrown upon him from an upper window.

Twelve negroes escaped from near Louisville and crossed the Ohio on Sunday night. The police of Jeffersonville, Indiana, arrested them, and restored them to their owners.

Gun-Cotton for Use in War.

We recorded some time ago the fact that the Austrian Baron Leng had contrived a preparation of gun-cotton, which could be used as a substitute for gunpowder. The process has been perfected, and gun-cotton for the purpose is now manufactured as an article of commerce by an English company, the Great Western Chemical Works, Messrs. Thomas, Prentice & Co., of Bow, supply it. Written for purposes of mining, engineering, for military and submarine explosion, or for artillery use.

For artillery, the manufacturers claim that the same initial velocity of the projectile can be obtained by a charge of gun cotton one fourth of the weight of gunpowder; there is no smoke from the explosion; it does not foul the gun; it does not heat the gun to the injurious degree of gunpowder; it lessens the recoil; produces the same initial velocity with a shorter barrel; and, used in shells, one third the weight of gun cotton produces double the explosive force, and breaks the shell into more numerous pieces. Used in naval warfare, as well as in casemated forts, it is claimed that this preparation of gun cotton, is of great advantage by reason of the absence of smoke. It does not heat or foul the gun. The rapid firing, time, accuracy, and security do not injure its qualities; it can be transported through fire without risk, simply by being wetted—when dried in the open air it recovers all its power; it is free from liability to spontaneous combustion; and its weight is only one-fifth that of gunpowder.

It is manufactured in the shape of rope or yarn, and the makers assert that it is especially valuable in military engineering; its peculiar localized action enables the engineer to destroy bridges and palisades, and to remove every kind of obstacle, with great facility. It all is true that is claimed for it by the manufacturers, this preparation of gun cotton must shortly come into general use in warfare; it would lessen transportation, which is a most important point; and for use in forts and on the parapet it would be particularly valuable. At any rate, it is already an article of commerce; the particulars mentioned above we have taken from an advertisement printed in an English Journal. We suppose our bureau of ordnance has already its attention directed to this new manufacture.

The Ice Crop for this Season.

The high price of ice during the "heated term" last year induced a great many consumers to lay in large stocks of the article last winter, and so much is now stored away that it is not believed that ice can reach very high prices during the coming season. The "production" for this market has reached nearly half a million tons, while the average sales in good seasons only amount to about two hundred thousand tons. The large companies have their usual supply, and persons who sell to the trade, but who bought of these companies last year, now have full ice-houses of their own, so that by the competition the "independent" dealers have controlled the price to its present low point of two dollars a ton. This is stated, does not quite than pay cry nse; but the ice-dealers have the choice of selling or letting it melt on their hands. The retail price is now from one-fourth to one half a cent per pound and probably the rates will not advance much during the summer, beyond the latter figure.—N. Y. Time.

Exemplary Damage.—

A woman who was run over by one of the cars on the Second and Third Streets Passenger Railway, Philadelphia, some months since, and severely injured, has obtained a verdict of $5 000 damages. It was alleged that the company employed incompetent drivers, paid them poor wages, and compelled them to work as long as seventeen hours per day. The verdict may have the effect to convince the company that this policy will not pay in the end.

The Rebel Gen. Stuart.—

It appears that Gen J E B Stuart was shot by a private of the 5th Michigan cavalry, named Dean. The bullet entered the right side of the rebel officer and came out at the left. As the general fell Dean exclaimed: "Colonel, there is a spread eagle for you." It was not suspected who the general was.

The Fenny Crop.—

GENERAL HUNTER RETALIATES!

Six Per Cent. Bonds to be put in the Market.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT AND REBEL IRON CLADS.

The Vice Presidency.

THE NEXT CABINET.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The Herald's dispatch from the Shenandoah Valley says: A reconnoissance in force found the enemy 4,000 strong in our front. We have had very little skirmishing up to this time.

The Herald's 9th corps dispatch says: Leslie's reconnoissance of Tuesday evening was of incalculable benefit. It misled the rebels into the belief that we intended cutting their army in two, compelling them to concentrate in the centre, so that our right and left obtained advantageous positions.

A Tribune dispatch from Gen. Hunter's army says that one of our wagon trains was fired on last Tuesday by guerrillas, and one of the guard wounded. Gen. Hunter thereupon ordered the houses of two prominent Secessionists burned, which was done as a warning.

A Herald Washington dispatch says that Secretary Chase has determined to put in market fifty to one hundred million six per cent. bonds, redeemable after 1881.

Also, that the French government has assured Mr. Dayton that no rebel iron-clads will be allowed to leave Florence.

A Tribune Washington dispatch says there are indications that Daniel S. Dickinson will be candidate for Vice President at the Baltimore Convention.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says that Lincoln has intimated that, in case of re-election, he will make changes in his Cabinet. The following are put forth as probable: Secretary of State, C F. Adams; Secretary of the Treasury, Isaac Sherman, of New York; Secretary of War, Simon Cameron; Secretary of the Navy, H. W. Davis; Secretary of the Interior, Horace Greely; Attorney General, W. L. Dayton; Post Master General, Schuyler Colfax.

The World also says that the presence of Greely, Grats Brown and Pomeroy here at this time is significant.

FROM THE SOUTHWEST.

ST. LOUIS, June 1, 9:30 a. m.—A telegram to headquarters from Rolla, Mo., May 30th, states that a train of Union refugees from Jacksonport, Ark., under escort of seventy men of the 2d Wisconsin cavalry, was attacked at Salem, Ark., by three hundred guerrillas. The entire train was burnt, and about eighty men and some women were killed.

On Friday last ten men of a detachment of the 2d Wisconsin, out on a scout from Rolla, becoming separated from the main body, were surrounded by guerrillas and five killed, the others making their escape and returning in large force, the bodies of those killed were found stripped and their throats cut.

A gentleman just arrived from Little Rock represents all quiet in that vicinity. Joe Shelby had left Brownsville about two weeks ago, with a force estimated at from fifteen to twenty thousand, for South west Missouri. General Wood, with several companies of cavalry, had been sent against him. Shelby is reported as being well mounted and had been joined by McRae, with five hundred cavalry in addition to his own force.

SECRETARY STANTON'S BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, June 1—7:30 p. m.—Maj Gen Dix: There is nothing from Grant later than yesterday at 6 o'clock p. m. An unofficial dispatch received here at 4 o'clock this morning, dated yesterday, at Kingston, reports that Major Hopkins, of General Stoneman's staff, was there on Monday afternoon, and says that the rebels attacked us at 7:30 this morning and at 10 o'clock the affair was over. The enemy were repulsed and our line reached to the railroad at Marietta. To accomplish this object had been for several days the purpose of General Sherman's movements. Additional forces are reaching him and ample supplies. (Signed)

E. M. STANTON.

Destructive Fire at Glanz's Falls

ALBANY, June 1.—The news of a large fire at Glenz's Falls has just been received here. The fire broke out in the rear of the Glenz's Falls Hotel, destroying it. The wind was blowing a gale, and the fire spread rapidly. Soon the whole central part of the village was in flames. Many buildings and their entire contents were consumed. Two banks, the hotel, the market house, Universalist and Presbyterian churches, Town Hall, Academy, Post Office, and a large number of dwellings and business houses were destroyed. The fire raged for five hours, leaving the village in ruins.
