NATIONAL UNION NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT:
ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
of Illinois.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:
ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee.

THE CONTEST FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL CONFEREES IN ARMSTRONG COUNTY has resulted in a flattering indorsement of the present Representative of the 23d District, of which Armstrong forms a part. Mr. WILLIAMS' majority in the county is four hundred and seventy-seven over J. B. FINLEY, Esq., contestant. Allegheny and Armstrong having thus declared in favor of the renomination of Mr. WILLIAMS, and Butler being the only other county embraced in the Congressional District, it is to be presumed that his selection as the candidate is now a foregone conclusion.

Vallandigham.

The government, we are much gratified to notice, pays no attention to VALLANDIGHAM. His return home, at the time of the Morgan raid into Kentucky, was intended as a defiance to the government—a challenge to bring on hostilities between it and his adherents. It was supposed, as a matter of course, that the administration would send troops to arrest him; that his friends would rally around him; and that in the conflict that might thus be brought on a decided diversion in favor of the Rebels might be effected, resulting in the enlistment upon the Rebel side of all the Copperhead forces in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The absence of the hundred day men from those States was regarded as a favorable occasion for the movement. The threats of resistance to any attempt to arrest him, which characterized the speech VALLANDIGHAM made on his return, backed up, as they were, by the resolutions of the Illinois Democratic Convention, point conclusively to this purpose.

Fortunately, the government had too much good sense to pay any attention to this bravado. It felt, to use a common expression, that VALLANDIGHAM was "played out," and that his return would do his party more harm than it could possibly do the government. So he has been severely let alone, and the result justifies the wisdom of the act. Instead of making a martyr of him, as the Copperhead Democracy fondly hoped it would, it has left them to make a hero of him and a leader by rallying around him; and now they are in the same predicament as the man who won the elephant at the raffle—they do not know what to do with him! Last year they espoused his cause in time to lose the elections. They have now made him a delegate to Chicago and will, perhaps, nominate him for President. At any rate, by affiliating with him, they betray their Copperhead proclivities, and that will use up their ticket.

His party friends about Dayton now take his return very coolly, and do not seem to feel much joy over it, since they find he is not to be made a martyr. They would much rather, no doubt, that he had stayed away, and so would his Copperhead coadjutors throughout the country. Having shed so many tears over his constrained absence, they cannot help making some ado over his return; but their chagrin at the mischief it works in their calculations about the Chicago Convention is not to be concealed. But how are they to escape from the dilemma? They rallied around him, when he came back, in the hope that the government would help them to make party capital out of the affair; and now that they have been disappointed in that, they find that the sole result of their haste is to make a bad leader whom they are bound to follow.

Systematic Lying.

The Copperhead press is busy in giving currency to the story that GRANT has lost 100,000 men since he crossed the Rapidan. The mendacious correspondents of the London press, in New York, first started this wholesale lie, and now the Copperhead newspapers are taking it up and giving it circulation at home. A letter from "Malakoff," the Paris correspondent of the N. Y. Times, shows that there is system in this lying. He says:

"The Secessionists are constantly gaining ground in their attempts at corrupting and controlling the city of New York. They have collected enough money and men of talent to be able to pursue their work systematically. Agents have gone from here as well as from England for the purpose, and they profess to have money enough to control, through the press and otherwise, one-half the population of the city. It is these agents also who are filling the European press with false reports on the progress of the war, and on the situation of affairs at the North."

The arrest of one of the lying correspondents of the London papers by Gen. DIX, at New York, was doubtless brought about by a knowledge of this plot; and we hope, if the rebel sympathizers in that city bring about another collision with the government forces, as "Malakoff" hints they are aiming to do, that there will be no more firing upon them with blank cartridges.

A Very Small Post.

"From the commencement of hostilities the Abolitionists have had but one motive in prosecuting them—the simple and naked destruction of slavery."—Post.

This assertion, interpreted in the sense intended by the author, is a wicked, premeditated, "simple and naked" falsehood, without excuse or show of justification; for, when the Post speaks of "Abolitionists," it means the great party of the country which stands by the government in its efforts to subdue the rebellion. That party aims to preserve the Union by crushing out treason, and, in striving to accomplish that result, it recognizes the fact that slavery is in the way. Hence it strikes at it as a means of achieving the greater good. The Post knows all this, and yet it persists in the attempt to falsify the record. The editor, we suppose, is in favor of incorporating the following resolution in the Chicago platform:

Resolved, That a lie, well stuck to, is as good as the truth.

Crops in the West.

An Illinois correspondent of the N. Y. Evening Post writes:

Our coming harvests of wheat promise, on the whole, to be full, if not more than an average crop. In Adams and some other counties, with two or three weeks of propitious weather, we shall have unusual crops of wheat; still, the season is backward. Our gallant young men are still as ever rushing to the service of their country. But labor saving machinery is supplying the place of hard work. As great a breadth of land has been planted and sown this year as ever.

THE ARMSTRONG DEMOCRAT.—This old organ of Democracy, in the days before the party became corrupted by Copperheadism, has hoisted the flag of LINCOLN and JOHNSON.

Negro Soldiers.

Congress has at last done partial justice to the negro troops in the service. It has placed all enlisted since January 1st, 1864, upon the same footing, as to pay and allowances (except bounty,) as white troops, and the question of law concerning the pay of those enlisted prior to that date is left to the decision of the Attorney General. The bounty allowed to colored troops is fixed at $100. The bill containing these provisions has been for some time passing back and forth between the two houses on disagreeing amendments; but on Saturday the report of the Committee of Conference upon it was agreed to, and the bill only awaits the signature of the President to become a law.

The history of this war has shown, so far, that the colored troops do as good fighting as any. They have behaved bravely, under all circumstances, in the Department of the South, and that department is garrisoned by them now almost exclusively. They won honors at the siege of Fort Hudson, and lately, at Petersburg, their conduct under fire has been most exemplary. There comes also, a very creditable account of their courage at the fight at Guntown, under the unfortunate General STURGIS. The testimony to this effect comes from officers who look upon events from a purely military stand point, and who have never been suspected of partiality to the negro, or even of an absence of prejudice against him. A dispatch from Memphis states that the black soldiers who came into Memphis after STURGIS' defeat brought their guns with them, while the white ones left theirs behind.

That with proper treatment and good officers these black troops will make good soldiers, is no longer an open question. To put them upon an equality of pay and allowances is one step in the right direction; all others that may be needed will, in the end, doubtless be extorted as this has been, by the bravery of those who are its objects.

Grant's Last Movement—The Military Aspects and Objects—The Probable Effect Upon the Campaign.

WILLIAM SWINTON, the special correspondent of the New York Times with Gen. GRANT, writes to that paper a clear and comprehensive statement of the causes which led to the last flank movement of the Army of the Potomac, and of the prospects of the success of the movement. We give the most important portions of his letter:

"Your readers will recollect that in my letter on the battle of the Chickahominy, in which I endeavored to recognize the true military character and bearings of that battle, I put on record the opinion that Gen. Grant would make no further effort to pass the Chickahominy, and hinted that his eyes were even then "turned away to lines and combinations more bold than any yet essayed." Well, what could then only be thus obscurely foreshadowed, is to-day a realized fact. Indeed, I may now go further, and state that from the very start, the transfer of the army to the south side of Richmond has formed an integral part of Gen. Grant's plan of campaign; and while the battle of the Chickahominy was still in progress, the whole question of the pontooning of the James River was elaborately discussed.

The battle of the Chickahominy was an experiment made for a specific purpose—to test the feasibility of an assault on Richmond from the northern side. It was an experiment perfectly proper to be made; and it was satisfactory. It convinced every reflecting mind that nothing was to be gained in that direction. This was obvious to every one; and every one waited to see what card Grant would play next. But it was only those who knew something of the boldness of his military conception, that could have ventured to anticipate a repetition of the Vicksburg strategy—the same strategy, the same audacity, only on a far grander scale!

This splendid stroke, comparable only to Moreau's passage of the Rhine and flank march on Ulm, stands to-day an accomplished fact; the Army of the Potomac, taken up, as in the arms of a giant, is transported from the Chickahominy and planted south of the James river and south of Richmond. Now begins a new act in the grand war drama. We shall operate on new and unattempted lines, looking to new and hitherto unattainable results. I think there are few military men who do not now feel that the present position of the Army of the Potomac gives us reason to indulge brighter hopes of ultimate success than has been possible any time since the war began.

The south side is the true line of operation against Richmond looking to great ulterior results. Of the three cardinal principles of strategy, the most important of all prescribes "to operate against the enemy's communications without endangering your own." Now, the operations of the Virginia campaign have been conducted under circumstances that made it impossible to apply this principle. Gen. Grant has aimed assiduously to bring on a great decisive field fight with the hope of crushing the rebel army. But from the nature of the country, its prodigious facilities for defence, and the skill of the opposing General, this has been impossible. We gained victories; we steadily pushed the enemy back, and in an unparalleled campaign of twenty-nine days, forced Lee from the Rapidan to the front of Richmond. But no decisive results were accomplished.

By the present move a new order of operations begins. We not only threaten the communications of the enemy, we plant ourselves across his communications. The communications of the rebel army are the great lines of railroad by Petersburgh and Danville and their connections.

Richmond, as a city, Richmond, as a military centre, is strictly dependent on these lines for its supplies. Cut it off from these and you have a tourniquet around its throat. It may have a month's supplies, or three months', or six months', but these exhausted and it must succumb. If LEE allows himself to be shut up within Richmond, therefore, the problem reduces itself to a repetition of Vicksburg over again. Will he do so? That is a question. But this is the pitiless situation to which LEE is now reduced; to stay in Richmond and suffer the fatal lines of circumvallation to be drawn around him, or to come out of his works and give battle. Now a fair field-fight is precisely what the Army of the Potomac invites and welcomes; it will gladly give the rebels man for man, and engage to defeat them withal. If LEE is unwilling to run this risk, he retires within the defences of Richmond, and we then hold precisely the relations held by the Allies to Napoleon defending Paris in 1814. It was in vain than that that consummate master put forth a generalship that recalled the splendors of the first great Italian campaign; in vain he threw his masses on different points of the investing line. If LEE is not a better general than NAPOLEON, he can hardly hope for a much better fate.

With the army of the Potomac planted at or north of Petersburg, we there tap the great railroad line connecting Richmond with the Atlantic seaboard and Gulf States. When there Grant may be able to throw his left across the Danville Road, and in this case Richmond is isolated. If his plan does not contemplate as great a development of front, he will at least provide for the effectual destruction of the latter road; and this, as well as the destruction of the Western (Lynchburg) Road and the James River Canal, will be an easy prey to our cavalry, which, under the hands of Sheridan, has almost put the rebel cavalry out of existence. The reduction of Fort Darling is an incidental piece of work, which will be gladly contended for by some of the able engineering heads of the Army of the Potomac. In the meantime, we have a perfectly secure and convenient base—the James River—to which all the transportation lately at White House has been forwarded.

There is another aspect of the move to the south side of the James, which, from the point of view of its relations to the whole theatre of war, is not less important then its bearing on the problem immediately before us. It is a division of the two great rebel armies, and gives us an interior position relative to Lee in Virginia, and Johnston in Georgia. It has been reported that large detachments of Johnston's army are already en route to reinforce Lee, and, if not actually under way, we may depend upon it that the able military heads that rule the war councils at Richmond, thoroughly imbued with the conception of concentration, and willing to risk everything to save Richmond, would willingly have sacrificed Southwestern territory to secure the great point in Virginia. But how does it stand now? Johnston coming to reinforce Lee would find his progress to Richmond barred by the same opponent who stopped his junction with Pemberton in Vicksburgh! We secure this, therefore: first, that the enemy shall receive no addition to his strength, while our position effects a concentration of both the forces of Butler and Hunter with the main operating force."

Foreign Items.

A THRILL of horror pervaded Belfast lately, caused by the discovery by a young man of a human body in a box under the bed of a room in which he had just taken up his abode. He rushed for the police, who came speedily. The wretched landlady did not deny the existence of the concealed object, and submitted to an investigation of the box. The "body" turned out to be a lay-figure, which her husband, an artist, had used years before. Everybody laughed except the lodger.

THE original press at which Benjamin Franklin worked, Mr. Wyman, of the firm of Cox & Wyman, has presented to the Patent Museum in London. The press was for many years in their printing office in Great Queen street, and it is even believed that Franklin worked in that office, which is the oldest established printing house in London.

BISHOP COLENSO was served, on the 31st ultimo, with a copy of the sentence of deposition passed upon him by the Bishop of Capetown. Dr. Colenso of course, disputes the right of Dr. Gray to deprive him of his see, and the case will, in all probability, come before the Privy Council.

THE Oxford Dons have intimated to Sir Rowland Hill, of postal celebrity, their intention of bestowing on him the honorary degree of D.C.L at the ensuing commemoration.

THE foundation-stone of the O'Connell monument will be laid at Dublin on August 8.

The $300 Commutation.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times says:

A wide difference of opinion exists here as to the probable effect of abolishing the commutation clause in the conscription bill. The War Department is understood to favor it as the only way to secure recruits for the armies in the field, which so much need filling up, and they believe that it would eventually become a popular measure. Others are of a different opinion, believing that large numbers of drafted men would desire to furnish substitutes, and that the "traders in men" would reap enormous fortunes. France, after many years' trial, does as our Government does not—receives commutation money and expends it in bounties for recruits. Citizens know what they have to do if drafted, and are not at the mercy of substitute brokers.

"WHERE can John Morgan be going?" said one; "he can't stay long in Kentucky." "Going!" exclaimed another, as though he was surprised at the suggestion of a doubt on the subject: "why to Chicago. He is going to the Chicago Convention, and has his delegates along with him! John is a War Democrat. Wasn't he a Democrat before the war, and hasn't he been in it ever since the muss broke out."

THE old issues of fractional currency are being mutilated by dishonest parties, who peel off the figures and neatly paste them on the one and two dollar notes. Some of the latter have thus been altered to fifty dollars. The United States Treasury does not redeem fractional currency thus mutilated.

PERFECT OIL BARRELS.
ALLEN'S PATENT WOOD COVERED IRON OIL BARRELS,
Will not leak, and will last for years, are no heavier than Wood Barrels, and will not color oil.
For Railroad Station, Shop, Retail and Domestic use, they are unequalled; never before offered in this market, and will remove any prejudice (because of the failure of others) against Iron Barrels.
C. P. WHITNEY & CO.,
corner Duquesne Way and Water street.

PITTSBURGH, June 12, 1864.
MESSRS. C. P. WHITNEY & Co.—Gentlemen: We have used your "Allen's Patent Iron Barrels" for some time past, and unhesitatingly pronounce them to be the best barrel for Petroleum and its products now in use. We have never in our use found one to leak a particle, or in any way injure the oil, and as a convenience for retailing, &c., are not equalled.
Yours truly, FESNOCK, BALL & CO.

STANDARD REFINERY, June 13, 1864.
MESSRS. C. P. WHITNEY & Co.—Gentlemen: I have tested in a most severe manner the "Allen's Patent Iron Barrel" sent to us, and found it superior to any iron barrel that has yet come under our notice.
Yours, very truly
HERBERT W. C. TWEDDLE, Manager.

GRAY'S PATENT
MOLDED COLLARS
Are not simply flat pieces of paper cut in the form of a collar, but are Molded and Shaped to fit the neck, having a perfect curve free from angles or breaks which is obtained by our patented process, which also secures another advantage possessed by no other collar,—viz: Space for the Cravat in the turn-down style, the inside of which is perfectly smooth and free from puckers, making this collar—for ease, neatness and durability—unequalled.
They are made in turn-down style, in sizes from 13 to 17, and in Garrots from 13 to 17 inches, and packed in neat blue boxes, of 100 each; also in smaller ones of 10 each,—the latter a very handy package for travelers, army and navy officers.
EVERY COLLAR is stamped
"Gray's Patent Molded Collar."
Sold by all retail dealers in Men's Furnishing Goods. The trade supplied by VAN DEUSEN, BOEHMER & CO.,
627 Chestnut street, Philadelphia;
and J. S. LOWREY & CO.,
37 Warren street, New York.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO RETAIL GROCERS
OF PITTSBURGH.
FRENCH COFFEE.
The advertisers are manufacturing wholesale the celebrated FRENCH COFFEE, made, as in Paris, from pure coffee and coffee malt in a peculiar manner. It has no drugs to flavor or color: it does not affect the nervous system, and is extremely nourishing and healthy; invalids derive great benefit from its use; it has all the aroma and taste of the Java, since its introduction into the United States, a few months ago, it has given universal satisfaction, and it is sold by every prominent Grocer in all the large cities. We are desirous that the Grocers of Pittsburgh should try this celebrated Coffee. Once they try it they will forever use it.
It is no common substitute. We have challenged all the coffee manufacturers in the United States for 1,000 boxes (the proceeds to be given to hospitals) that the French Coffee is superior to all others.
It is pure, nutritious and healthy;
It has all the aroma and taste of pure Java;
It is about one-third the price.
The FRENCH COFFEE does not require coffee to be mixed with it on using. Sufficient pure coffee is mixed in its manufacture. Its fine qualities and extreme economy will make it the beverage of families on being known. The testimonials of its good qualities are innumerable. We give a few extracts:
From the Baltimore American, Clipper and Gazette — "We have used the justly celebrated French Coffee, and in justice to the manufacturer, we say it is the best coffee we ever used."
From Grocers in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, St. Louis and Chicago.—"Our customers are much pleased with your French Coffee. It will certainly supersede all other coffee when known, and we desire an additional supply."
From Hospitals in Baltimore and Washington.—"We have used your French Coffee in our hospitals, and we are pleased to inform you that it gives great satisfaction; in fact since its introduction, our patients will drink nothing else."
The manufacture of the FRENCH COFFEE is known but to ourselves. Any one can have it analyzed, its preparation is a wonderful discovery. The Grocers of Pittsburgh are respectfully requested to make a trial of it.
