Reioleed, That Congress has the Constitu-tional right to an anthoritative voice in de-claring and prescribing the foreign policy of the United States as well in the recognition of new powers as in other matters; and it is the Constitutional duty of the President to respect that policy not less in diplomatic no-gotiations, than in the use of the mational forces when authorised by law and the proprigottations, than in the use of the national forces when authorised by law and the propriety of any declaration of foreign policy by Congress, is sufficiently proved by the vote which pronounces it, and such proposition, while pending and undetermined, is not a fit topic of diplomatic explanation with any foreign powers.
