

Pittsburgh Gazette

ATURDAY, JULY 23, 1864.

NATIONAL UNION NOMINATION.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, of Illinois.
JOHN W. FREMONT,
ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee.

SPECIAL ELECTION, TUESDAY, AUG. 2, 1864.
SHALL SOLDIERS VOTE?
The Negotiations for Peace.

Everybody felt easier, yesterday morning, after reading the correspondence between the Rebel Commissioners and this Government. That correspondence was not a plain statement of the Government did not lower its tone or abate the rigor of its demands, or compromise itself in any way, unless, as may be said, in its unwillingness to let the Government be accused of having held any conferences with these so-called Rebel Commissioners.

In common with the people of the country, generally, our readers will wonder how it came that Mr. Greeley was on the ground to speak for the Administration, in a dispatch to the Rochester Democrat, from Niagara Falls, may explain that matter. It says:

Two weeks ago, Gen. W. Sanders, C. C. Clay of Alabama, James Thompson, of Mississippi, and J. H. Johnson, of Virginia, arrived at the Clinton Hotel, just across the river from this place. Their arrival was announced in this paper, and it was understood to be the arrival of some of the Rebel Commissioners. It was a matter of course that they had a conversation with Mr. Greeley, and that they were to be accompanied to Washington, D. C., by Mr. Greeley.

The day following their publication, we called upon the Post for the proof of its charge that President Lincoln had declared that he would not support any compromise with the rebels. We were told that it was not in the Philadelphia paper, but in another one.

The Post published this charge, and it was not until the 21st of June, after the Philadelphia speech was made from which the Post professed to quote on Tuesday. How could this be? It was on the 10th of June that the Philadelphia speech was made from which the Post professed to quote on Tuesday.

The whole tone of the letter with which these impudent wretches wind up the correspondence, shows that their scheme was an electioneering trick in the interest of the Copperheads. They came to Niagara not in the interest of peace but in the interest of the Democracy. They were not to make a home for the Democracy.

The Good Old Way.
We observe by late Cincinnati papers that Gov. Johnson of Ohio has issued a proclamation, announcing that he has received authority to organize twenty new regiments of infantry. The field officers of these regiments as far as practical will be appointed from men who have been honorably discharged in the field and honorably retired from our service.

This is an excellent plan by which to fill up the quota of Ohio, and it is an excellent plan for filling the quota of any State under the present call.

Governor Johnson has not yet issued his proclamation in response to the President's call for 500,000 volunteers, and we hope that when he does so, it will be in the name of the people of Ohio.

The Pittsburgh Post on Tuesday commenced a long editorial with the following assertions: "It is scarcely a month since our friends declared that the rebel army was about to be broken and that they would be glad to see the rebel army broken and that they would be glad to see the rebel army broken."

The Post published this charge, and it was not until the 21st of June, after the Philadelphia speech was made from which the Post professed to quote on Tuesday.

ALL WRONG.
The Butler American is all wrong about the Gazette. In speaking of the late raid it says: "Notwithstanding the untold danger made manifest by the late Legislature for neglect of duty in failing to provide the necessary means for home defense, we have asserted that a Military Law had been passed at the session which high military authorities have pronounced of unequalled excellence and honor, and that it was the duty of the Executive to see that it was carried into effect."
