The second edition of the great raid premi hus far to be more formidable than the first. It spears now that the first raiders had not gone ack more than a few utiles beyond Winchester. They never went further south than Manageas ap Railroad, and having taken the rails from this, they repaired to the Gordonsville road and hipped their plunder direct to Richmond. We were defeated at Snicker's Gap, and there was the beginning of the second raid. After at their return was unimpeded. Last Saturday they drove in General Crook's pickets just below

Winchester, and on Sunday made an attack in orce. The fight lasted four hours, and our forces were compelled to fall back, being overpowered overwhelming numbers. Only Crook's and Avorili's divisions, and Mulligan's brigade were ongaged. Our less in this fight was much less han at first supposed, at a great many who were hought to be either killed or taken prisoners e since turned up. A portion of our troops are said to have badstampeded. Our greatest loss was that of the orse, and is either affled or in the enemy's
