The Bright side of War. The correspondent of the Chicago Tribine with SHERMAN'S Army relates the following as occurring at the time the Union and Rebel forces hecches:

A true was agreed upon between the picket efficers, and for one week not a shot was fired. The best kind of good humor prevaised between the pickets of the contending armies, separated only by the Chattahoochee, which at Pace's Fyrry is about one hundred and fifty pacis wide. At unnire and sunset the river for the distance of a couple of hundred yards would be filled with "tasks" and "Johnnies," who both needed contidetable laratory exercise after a ten weeks' campaign. Trading went on lively—a handful of coffee or an old jack knife for three or fur "many lumps" of tobacco.

The officers would exchange papers, and the tennerse and Kenticky rebels would nond over any quantity of letters to be sent North to their

Tennessee and Kentucky rebels would send over any quantity of letters to be sent North to their friands. The "Yanks" would go over to the "Johnnies," and the "Johnny" would come over to the "Yank" and induies in social conversation and no moke for an hour or two, after which the visitor would take his leave, giving his host an invitation to reciprocate the visit. A rather amusing ofreumstance took place last evening at Pace's Ferry, which is worth a laugh. A reb came out suddenly from behind his works, and shouted:

and shouted:

"Hello, Yaski"

"We go! reinforcements."

"The 2-4 you have ; what are they?"

"The 2-4 and 4'h e-rps."

(Yank hot sering the juke.) "Who commands them?"

"The 2nd and 4'h e rpp."

"Tank actering the j.ke.) "Who commands them?"

"Jehnny" with an expressive grin; "Schodeld and lieward."

This last was received with intense laughter by at least two hundred auditors—sompostd-of the pickets of both parties, who had haddled together to hear the conversation. Another little speciote: General Tarchiz', brigade of the 3d division, 14th corps, rejoices in an excellent brigade band, which plays for about an hour every evening at sundewn. The stone, who could faintly hear it, were very urgent in requesting that the band should go down to the river bank and play. This was secondingly done on Friday night, and the band played "Hail Columbia," "Star Spangled Banner," and other patriotic airs, winding, up with "Yankee Doodle" At the termination of each air the Johnnier would manifest their spilause in the unal manner. But when "Yankee Doodle" stuck up, I was curious to witness the effect produced. Some of the most violent socosh slutk away, some appeared ill at ease—no doub! conscience, stricken at the part they have taken against that good old tune, which kindled the partiols fixes of the Revolution. Ohers, who had some live left for the old flag, indulged in a 'breakdown." After the band cossed playing, the rabde returned their thanks, expressing a desire that it would again favor chem with other selections. Such are the contrasts to be met with in war. At one moment R-be and Yanke are the best friends in the world, joking and laughing with exchapter, and as the next it is "run back Yank," "run back Johnnies," "we has the ocal initial in and at the next it is "run back Yanks," "run back Johnnies," "we are going to shoot."

The Question of Economy There are many reasons which now unite in commending to all the most thorough economy. heavier than we have ever known before, and fature exigencies may even increase it. To meet it is a patriotic duty; but it cannot be done with. ease, if at all, unless personal economy becomes the rule with our people. Secondly, the pros-peotnow is that this year's crop will not be prot now is that this year's crop will not be equal to those of the two lest years, so that the partial scarcity, added to the general enhancement of prices, will be in danger of bringing a new cause of distress on the community. Thirdly, Senator Sherman, who speaks as the probable financial leader in the Senate, says that "the limit of paper money is reached," and the new Secretary of the Treasury seems to coincide with those financiers who recommend the gradual contraction of the currency. This process, immerely as it is receded, will be irknown and sure to bring on more or loss of "hard times." If to these reasons we add the duty of raving in order to nested in select in keeping up the full strength of currency will surely be apparent to all. On that side, a ratery, whether the war be yet long or short, or whether the much talked of crash ensure, or is averted, as by this means only it can be. Purishment of Maryland Traitors.

General Hunter has taken measures to punish Maryland traitors. He directs that all person who are known to have pointed out the property of good Union men for despoil are to be promptly ar rested and sent to Harper's Ferry. The males will thence be sent to the military prison at Wheeling, and the females beyond or lines Couth. Their houses are to be saled and used for Government hospitals and storehouses, and their furniture will be sold at auction for the benefit of those citizens who are known to have reflected by information given by those parties. Subject to half a dozen cross first, the brigade fell back hastily to the trenches it had left in the morning. To remain would have been annihilation. Portions of Col. Ireland's brigade were also torn to piaces by the withoring cross-firet, and fell lack, after repeated gailant effects to reform to return the fire on fink and rear. The moment was a desperate one. The enemy were almost within graep of Lient. Bundy's bettery on the right, but he wheeled one section from froat to right, and, by double-shotting the gans with carniter, succeeded in repelling the greedy vermin in dirty gray. His gunners, however, were shot down one after another, unit a detail of infantry men from the 6th New York were called for to work them. The fire from the empty here was withering. A sergeant in this battery fell plerved with even balls. A corparal received nine, seven of which passed through his heart.

The enemy in wair, charged it from the front and right dank. Varil alghtizalithe uneryal courter was waged, but deary held the bill inducibly. The enemy sullenly left his front during the evering, fring spite fully as he retired.

The regiments that had fallen back were reformed and sent into action again on Gen. William's left, aiding materially in checking the rebel column that was passing through the unit ward interval and douding deary's roar.

I have seem most of the battle-Gaids in the Southwest, but nowhere have I seen traces of more deadly work than are visible in the dones woods in which deary's right was formal. Thickets were literally cradied by bediets, and on the large trees, for twenty feet on the trank, hardly a square inch of bark remained. Many were torn and spintnered with shell and round richt, the enemy in their attack on Geary and Williams, using srillery, which they did oot bring into action on other portions of the line. Krap's Pennylwania Bastery was engaged from beginning to and on Geary's left dank, and contributed wastly to his mocess in holding to he position, as it were, with his teeth.
