POOR DIRECTOR:
E. H. DAVIS, Sewickley.

THERE are indications that the draft will be postponed for a brief period. In this city it will not take place until further orders are received from the proper authorities. It had previously been announced to take place to-day. The New York papers speak positively of a postponement of the draft in that city.

We are without further particulars from General SHERMAN. Secretary STANTON telegraphs that the lines are down between Nashville and Chattanooga. There need be no apprehensions, however, of injury to SHERMAN. The only question concerning him about which there need be any doubt relates to the number of prisoners he has taken from Hood.

Atlanta Ours.

SHERMAN is not driven from Atlanta. His communications have not been destroyed. His army is not compelled to fall back, starving and demoralized, before the exultant foe. Copperhead prediction and Rebel hope are alike gloriously annihilated, for the flag of the Union at last floats in triumph over the great central workshop of the Southern Confederacy. The main objective point of the brilliant campaign of SHERMAN has been achieved. Not in vain has the blood of our martyrs been spilled. Not in vain has the valor of our heroes consecrated many a well-fought field. The veterans who have hewn their way with their swords from Chattanooga to Atlanta have inflicted a deadly blow on the Rebellion, the force of which can neither be palliated nor denied. Their onward march was vigorously disputed and most desperately resisted. Every natural advantage was improved; river banks were guarded, passes were defended, mountain heights impregnably fortified; but the skill of our leader, and the heroic gallantry of the rank and file, compelled the successive abandonment of position after position, until the city itself loomed up in sight of our victorious legions. Then followed a series of most desperate battles, and the grand courage of the enemy commanded admiration, though it could not command success. The prize for which they fought is in our hands.

Our triumph is complete. The Rebels evacuated Atlanta on Friday morning at three o'clock, and ere long the tramp of SHERMAN'S heroes resounded through the streets. We have not yet the particulars, but there is no doubt of the fact of which Secretary STANTON has had the gratifying duty of assuring the public. As the intelligence of this event is flashed over the wires and borne through the mails, it will awaken a burst of exultation in every loyal bosom; for the dullest will not fail to hail it as a most promising augury of the impending triumph of order over anarchy, of the right over vio ence, of the Union over a doomed and almost exhausted Rebellion.

It appears that SHERMAN fought a battle with HOOD at East Point, which is the junction of the two railroads leading to Atlanta from West Point on the southwest and Macon on the southeast. SHERMAN had previously destroyed the railroad leading to Augusta, and the other two roads were what he wanted in going to East Point. HOOD had to save them or evacuate Atlanta. He appears, therefore, to have marched out and fought a battle, in which he was beaten and his army cut in twain. As the result, not only is Atlanta occupied by the Twentieth Corps, but HOOD has lost his campaign. The whole of Georgia is now open to SHERMAN, and he can march at will in any direction.

GENERAL McCLELLAN has been suspected of entertaining strong pro-slavery and Southern feelings, and one event in his life certainly gives color to the suspicion. He, for a long time, preferred to take up his residence in the South, and while living in New Orleans was an intimate companion of BEAUREGARD. His Southern proclivities were at that time not concealed. Indeed, so well known were they that General QUITMAN selected him as one of the five officers required to assist him in commanding the filibustering expedition against Cuba, undertaken during the Administration of President PIERCE, but nipped in the bud by Governor MARCY, Secretary of State, who prevented the expedition from leaving Mobile.

We may add to the foregoing the fact that, when General McCLELLAN was made Commander-in-Chief of the Union armies, the Richmond papers charged that he had offered his services to the Southern Confederacy when the war began, and the General has never denied the charge. All these circumstances, taken in connection with the favorable results to the Confederacy of his generalship, may account for the great respect with which the South has always spoken of the American NAPOLEON.

RECRUITING in Rebel States to fill the quotas of Loyal States is a dead failure. In Alabama and Western Georgia there are two hundred and twenty-five agents from the Western States, and so far they have not enlisted one hundred and fifty accepted recruits. At New-Bern, North Carolina, according to the Times of that city, the number of men mustered will not average one apiece for every recruiting agent in the district. The Times says that more interest seems to be taken to put the larger part of the State bounties into the pockets of some of the agents than to obtain good sound men for soldiers. We strongly suspect that the greediness of these sharpers has had much to do with the failure to get recruits.

THE SECRETARY of War, in an official gazette, has stated that two hundred thousand men have already enlisted; that three hundred thousand are to be furnished by the draft. He further stated that with one hundred thousand more men Gen. Grant will be able to end the rebellion before winter, and that the balance of the troops raised by draft will be used to garrison the forts, and take care of the guerillas. Words cannot add to the emphasis of this announcement. It should arouse the nation.

SIGNIFICANT.—It is a fact of no ordinary significance that it was the traitor Vallandigham who moved that the nomination of McClellan be made unanimous. Upon this followed the admission of Pendleton. Vallandigham's right-hand man, and, if such a thing be possible, a greater enemy of his country than Vallandigham himself. This is an important fact to be borne in mind during the campaign.

TOO MANY SECRETS.—Our forefathers, in 1776, would not submit to the yoke of King George, and now the Chicago Convention wish to impose two upon us.

The New York Daily News, the Central Organ of the Peace Democracy, on the Chicago Nominations and the Platform.

We accept, says the News, the platform adopted by the Convention as a great triumph for the peace party. The proposition for an armistice and a convention of all the States, as suggested several months ago by the News, has received the sanction of the Democracy through their delegates, and the peace men may rest assured that that proposition, carried into effect, will bring about an enduring peace between the sections.

We congratulate the party in whose behalf we have so earnestly labored that their earnestness and devotion have not been in vain. Let there be no replining, if perhaps the full measure of their anticipations has not been reached; for assuredly the influence of the principle they have advocated asserts itself upon the platform that has been adopted, and the nominees of the Chicago Convention stand committed to a course that is unilegitimately and unequivocally traced in accordance with the popular sentiment of opposition to the war. In the following resolution is expressed nearly enough to be virtually the same, the principle that has been sustained in the columns of this journal, and the mode of procedure that we have urged as most likely to realize the triumph of that principle:

Justice, humanity, liberty and the public welfare demand that immediate efforts be made for a cessation of hostilities with a view to an ultimate convention of all the States, or other peaceable means, to the end that, at the earliest practicable moment, peace may be restored on the basis of the Federal Union of the States.

The nominee of the Chicago Convention for the Presidency is not the candidate of our preference; but standing upon the platform upon which he has been nominated, and being the recognized standard bearer of the Democracy, he is entitled to, and he will receive our earnest support.

Concerning the candidate for the Vice-Presidency it says:

Of course Mr. Pendleton is a peace man—a Democrat of his ability and position could not well be otherwise—and from the commencements of the war to this hour his every effort has been to insure peace to the Republic. That the nomination for the Vice-Presidency meets the warmest approval of our judgment it is scarcely necessary to add, after what we have written above. We have known him for a long time, and know of none who would better grace the second, or the first office in the gift of the people than George H. Pendleton of Ohio.

General Sherman's Flank Movement.

The movement of General Sherman which commenced on the 26th ult., is thus explained by one of the correspondents of the Cincinnati Gazette. In the absence of details this will be read with interest:

"The 20th corps received orders on Friday last to march from its position on the extreme left of the army and on the Chattanooga railroad, to the rear along the railroad, and take up position in the tete dapont, covering the railroad bridge across the Chattahoochee river. This was done with some display on Friday afternoon, the purpose being I suppose, to give the enemy an idea that we were about to evacuate.

"The 23d corps held the right, near East Point, and on the advance of the army, Schofield moved at dark by the right flank to the west of East Point. The rest of the army followed, the 4th corps in the rear silently taking an affectionate leave of the railroad which had bountifully provided the army with, and days rations for the hazardous movement. For twenty days the army will not be heard from. Then hunger will compel or let us hope, victory will lead it back to communication.

"In the meantime what becomes of Hood? If he follows the 20th Corps it will be to let Sherman into Atlanta with all his army. If he follows Sherman, in comes Slocum with the 20th corps. If he stays in Atlanta it is starvation and surrender, with Sherman south of him. Of course Hood is not going to stay. He goes out—retreats. No doubt—less done so already. The moment he goes out of his works he is shorn of half his strength. How long can his 50,000 veterans fight Sherman's army? An open field fight ought to, if it does not, ruin him. This is what the movement of Sherman effects, and it is what is meant by saying the siege of Atlanta has been raised. At the end of one or two days I have no doubt we shall hear of the occupation of Atlanta. At the end of the twenty days for which the men had food in their haversacks I hope to hear of a great victory won."

Hood, as it appears, attempted to retreat, but the disposition of our troops was such that he was compelled to fight. The estimated strength of the enemy was sixty thousand, of which thirty thousand were veterans and the remainder Georgia and Alabama militia. Details of this great event will be awaited with interest.

A "Rat Hole" to Be Stopped.

Wilmington is the only rat hole now where privateers and blockade runners can pass in and out. If a man like Farragut were in command at Wilmington that port would have been shut long ago. The Tallahassee, which ran out of there a few weeks ago, has just run back again, only one of our blockading fleet seeing her or trying to stop her. Wilmington is the port into which is received all the materials of war and arms from England which Davis needs, and it is transported straight up to Richmond by the Weldon Railroad. The running on this road must be interrupted, but if the troops were put on by our fleet at Wilmington the work of cutting off the rebel supplies would be more effectually done. Not less than twenty large, fast steamers are running regularly between Bermuda, Nassau, &c., to Wilmington. Some of these steamers are fitting out as privateers. Shutting up this port would, therefore, cripple Lee at Richmond, by cutting off his supplies of arms, ammunition, clothing, &c., would stop privateering, and would help Grant materially in carrying on his operations against Petersburg and Richmond. It needs not only gunboats, but a vigilant and resolute fleet commander, who is not afraid to face rebel guns when necessary, and who can keep awake at night to watch the blockade runners.

WHY DON'T HE.—In the proceedings of the Chicago Convention we read as follows:

Immediately after the nomination a banner, on which was painted a portrait of General McClellan, and bearing as a motto, "If I can't have command of my own men, let me share their fate on the field of battle," was run up behind the President's platform, and was welcomed with enthusiastic cheers.

Well, when he lost the command of his own men, why did he not share their fate on the field of battle? Nobody hindered him.

LOAN OF 1881.

PROPOSALS FOR LOAN.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, August 30th, 1864.

Sealed offers will be received at this Department, under the act of March 3, 1864, until noon of FRIDAY, the 9th of September, 1864, for bonds of the United States to the amount of about thirty-one and a half millions dollars, being the amount of unaccepted offers of subscription under the notice of Proposals for Loan, dated July 2nd last. The bonds will bear an annual interest of six per cent., payable semi-annually in coin on the first days of July and January of each year, and redeemable after the 30th of June, 1881.

Each offer must be for fifty or one hundred dollars, or some multiple of one hundred dollars, and must state the sum, including premium, offered for each hundred dollars in bonds, or for fifty, when the offer is for more than fifty. Two per cent. of the principal, excluding premium, of the whole amount offered must be deposited, as guaranty for payment of subscription if accepted, with the Treasurer of the United States at Washington, or with the Assistant Treasurer at New York, Boston, Philadelphia or St. Louis, or with the designated Depositary at Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chicago, Detroit, or Buffalo, or with any National Banking Association authorized to receive deposits which may consent to transmit the bonds to either without charge. Duplicate certificates of deposit will be issued to depositors by the officer or association receiving them; the originals of which must be forwarded with the offers to the Department. All deposits should be made in time for advices of offers with certificates to reach Washington not later than the morning of September 9th. No offer not accompanied by its proper certificate of deposit will be considered.

The Coupon and Registered Bonds issued will be of the denominations of $50, $100, $500, and $1,000. Registered Bonds of $5,000 and $10,000 will also be issued if required.

All offers received will be opened on Friday, the 9th of September. The awards will be made by the Secretary to the highest offerers, and notice of acceptance or declination will be immediately given to the respective offerers; and, in case of acceptance, bonds of the descriptions and denominations preferred will be sent to the subscribers at the cost of the department, on full payment of instalments. The original deposit of two per cent. will be reckoned in the last instalment paid by successful offerers and will be immediately returned to those whose offers may not be accepted.

The amount of accepted offers must be deposited with the Treasurer or other officer or association authorized to act under this notice on advice of acceptance of offer, or as follows: One-third on or before the 14th; one-third on or before the 19th, and the balance, including the premium and original two per cent. deposit, on or before the 24th of September. Interest on bonds will begin with the date of deposit. Parties preferring may pay the accrued interest from date of bond, July 1, to date of deposit in coin.

Offers under this notice should be endorsed "Offer for Loan," and addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury. The right to decline all offers not considered advantageous is reserved to the government.

W. P. FESSENDEN,
Secretary of the Treasury.

The Bonds for this Loan are ready for immediate delivery. au6:7t

TESTIMONIAL.—Extract from a letter of Professor Kidd to Mr. Williams: "Write out whatever you would like to have me say of your ability as a teacher, and your qualifications as a teacher of Reading and Elocution, and I will endorse it with pleasure. Do not permit your modesty to prevent you from making the recommendation in every respect just what you would like to have it, for I am certain it will not exceed the very favorable opinion I entertain of your ability to successfully and to teach the art of reading and speaking with ease, distinctness, elegance, energy and impressive effect.

Each recitation will be followed by from five to ten minutes exercises in Gymnastics or Vocal Music, thus combining physical with mental training.

Evening classes.—Elocution from 7 to 8 p. m. Phonography from 8 to 9.
