ATEST FROM GEN. SHERIDAN. Our Forces Still Moving Forward. EARLY RAPID RETREATING. REINFORCEMENTS FOR EARLY ENGAGEMENT. The Rebels Completely Surprised at Fisher's Hill.

LOSS OF THE ENEMY IN THE RECENT BATTLE. Col. Thomas R. Cox, of the 7th Va. Cavalry, reports that the rebels lost 1,000 men in the battle of Fisher's Hill. The rebels were completely surprised at the advance of our forces.

FROM THE POTOMAC ARMY. EARLY'S DEFEAT IN THE VALLEY. RESULTS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE LOOKED FOR. Gen. Early's defeat in the Valley is a result of great importance. It shows that the rebels are unable to sustain a prolonged campaign in the North.

EFFORTS TO REINFORCE EARLY. The rebels are making every effort to reinforce General Early's army. They are bringing up fresh troops from the South and West to replace those who were defeated in the Valley.

OPERATIONS IN TENNESSEE. Shirming Between the Forces of Rosecrans and Forrest. TWO TRAINS CAPTURED BY THE REBELS. TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION IN NASHVILLE.

The entire Quartermaster's Force Organized. The Quartermaster's Force has been organized and is now ready for service. This is a significant step in the reorganization of the Union Army.

Fall in Dry Goods. The market for dry goods is falling. This is due to a variety of factors, including a general depression in the economy and a decrease in demand for these goods.

THE REBELS' POSITION. The rebels' position is becoming increasingly desperate. They are unable to sustain their army in the North and are being forced to retreat further into the South.

CONTRACT OF BROTHERS. The contract of brothers is a significant event in the history of the Union. It represents a step towards the reconciliation of the North and South.
