ALLEGHENY CITY REPUBLICAN TICKET. JOHN MORBISON. FOR DIRECTOR OF THE POOR: EMORY GLEASON.

SUBMISSION. The case with which the people of Savannah have thrown off their allegiance to the South and returned to the beneficent rule of their old government, is evidence of the facility with which the masses of the people of the South will submit when our government is able to extend its protection

No one expects JEFF. DAVIS and the men who have led in this Rebellion, to submit, at least not gracefully or easily. Submishaps a halter and a speedy exit out of the world; but to the masses of the people it must bring emancipation and relief. The flerce utterances of the Richmond press come from the arch conspirators, and are no criterion of the feeling of the South. The workers of mischief may well cry out and how at the prospect before them; but we must not be so foolish as to suppose that theyare empowered to speak for any but themselves. As soon as the pressure is to ken off the people, and they are allowed to speak and act for themselve, they will hail with joy the opportunity of taking refuge Their day of deliverance is rapidly approaching; and the nearer it approaches, the greater will grow the consternation of the reltors at Richmond and the deeper their dread of submitting to the Yankees.

> BARBARITY OF THE REBEL · LEADERS.

GOV. HALL, of Missouri, in his late me sage to the legislature of that State, prefers a terrible indictment against the leaders the rebellion. He says:

"Traitors have done more harm to Missouri in the last three years, than all other criminals combined have been able to accomcriminals combined have been able to accom-plish since our state was first settled by white men. They have perpetrated out-rages that the worst mex in our state-prison would not commit, and which the wild in-dian of the prairie can scarcely rival."

We know of no man in Missouri who is better qualified to speak of these barbarians than Gov. HALL. If he was not of them, in times past, he was not sufficiently strong against them to provoke their hostility, and Le was very strongly surjected, at one time, of pleying into their hands. That, however, deser not levallente the testimony he now beers up just them, but materially

CRUELTY WITHOUT PARALLEL. There is nothing, in all the revolting de tails of all the cruelty ever practised, that excels or parallels the following. The recital makes the blood run cold. It is extracted from a letter from Suenyan's army to the Cincinnati Gazette:

"Our escaped prisoners are hunted by bloodhounds. These are kept at all the pens for that purpose. To kill one of them is certain death if discovered. On one occasion two were killed at Andersonville, and the authorities not being able to find those who committed the act, placed the carcasses of the dogs outside the dead line in the brook which supplied the camp with water and allowed them to rot there. "Hundreds of our officers and men have and allowed them to rot there.

"Hundreds of our officers and men have been chased by these dogs. They are kept at all guard stations and picket-posts throughout the South, and especially at the ferries and fords of the rivers, and are used to hunt both our men and deserters from the rebel army.

"We have space only for one case of a bloodhound chase. The parties who had escaped were privates Crummit and Harris of the 9th Illinois cavalry; Martin Cloes, 3d Illinois, and Patterson, of the 2d New York. Two of these soldiers were eighten the presented, one twenty and one only syenteen. They were chased by fifteen dogs, in charge of some twenty men.

"One man, findling the dogs close upon them, and no chance of escape presenting itself, climbed on the porch of a house and waited till the party came up. Enraged that their thirst for Yankee blood had not been gratified, they made Crummit come down to them, then knocked him on the lead with a musket, formed a ring, put the dogs in the other. hend with a musket, formed a ring, put the dogs in it, and threw him to them. He was terribly torn, and soon after died. Harris and Cloes were treated in the same way and Cloes were treated in the same way and badly torn.

"Patterson, who was a mere boy, kneeled down and prayed these human fiends not to let the dogs tear him; but to no purpose. He was forced down, and on undertaking to regain the porch was kicked in the face, all has front teeth broken out and he rendered insensible, and in that state thrown into the ring. The dogs had gathated themselves with blood, and refused to touch him. This is only a single case of many which could be related."

A Wintry Scene During a Cavalry Raid.
During General Torbert's recent raid from Winchester or. Gordonsville his force merched two hundred and forty-seven miles in nine days. The expedition set out in a co'd, drenching rain that froze as it fell, and covered the ground with ice. This was succeeded by snow; then the weather became intensely cold, making thickice on all the streams, and men and animals suffering terribly. The expedition crossed the north and south furks of the Shenandoah, Hughes' river, Robinson river, White Oak river, Rapid Ann twice, Muddy run, Hazel river, Rappalannock, Cedar run, and Broad run. So thick was the ice on many of these streams that it had to be cut with axes before the fords could be passed. The men's clothes getting wet would freeze stiff and remain so for hours.

The expedition set out with two days' rations and no artillery, and returned with two pieces of artillery and one hundred prisoners. The people along the road, although "caten out" more than a score of times, had an abundance of fresh pork, mutton and poultry, and our boys fared sumptuously every day, in accordance with the new order to live upon the country. Good horses enough were captured to remount all the dismounted men, and nearly five hundred head of fine beef cattle were brought away. Nearly three hundred of our men were frost bitten, some of them badly. Several of the men had limbs fractured in their horses falling with them on the ice. A Wintry Scene During a Cavalry Raid.

The Fleet Continuing Its Work. STEAMSHIP SANTIAGO DE CUBA, De Norfolk, Jan. 3, 1865. I arrived at Norfolk, yesterday morning, and was fortunate in meeting Captain Glisson, of the steamer Santiago de Cuba, who cordiably invited me to the hospitality of his vessel and cabin.

I learn that Admirat Porter is still pegging away at the fort with the new Ironsides and his Monitors, keeping the rebels from making any alterations in their defences, and compelling the garrison to remain boxed up in their damp and unwholesome bomb-proofs. Whether he will succeed in driving them out or rendering the place un-tensible, time will disclose, but he is undoubt-edly determined net to give up the effort unless ordered to desist by the Department. Whether he will receive any further assist Whether he will receive any intra assistance from the array is not yet known, but I find that the impression in both army and navy is that a little of the same persistence if displayed by Gen. Butler, would have given us possession of Fort Fisher by the present time.—Baltimore American.

A I ahomian prisoner said to force our way into the town, our courage failed. We could not fight as we were accustomed to do. We trembled. We felt more like running than fighting. So the dark minded Fithiopian can not realist the conviction that rock is not as our rock, our enemies themselves being judges."

There is a rumor current in London-that the Princess Mary of Cambridge has married Viscount Hood. According to the royal marriage act, a member of the royal family cannot marry without the consent of the Soverelen, or without giving notice to the Privy-Council. The living notice to the Privy-Council does not make the marriage absolutely valid, for it may be decided illegal by act of Parliament. It is known that the Princess applied for permission to the Queen: and the Queen refused her sanction. However, there is no fear, if the marriage has been contracted, that it will be dissolved by Parliament, for the Princess is very popular and the Principles people are very sick of Garman alliances. The Princess Mary is thirty-one years old. Visceun Hood is rich, handsome, and enjoys a very high reputation.

COTTON IN THE CONFEDERACY.-A cot-COTTON IN THE CONFEDENACY.—A cotton speculator who has just returned from Molife says that there are over one hundred thousand bales of cotton stored in that city, held principally on French and English-account. The total number of bales of cotton in the Confedenacy at the present time is estimated by rebel cotton-dealers at seven million bales. They have not succeeded in getting out more than one million bales since the war began.—Washington Repub. FROM an officer of Sheridan's army we learn that the movement of cavalry upon Gordonsville was to divert the attention of Early and prevent a detachment of their troops to molest Stoftoman in his raid upon Southwestern Virginia. Our cavalry (thirty-five hundred) took but sixty cartridges, and thinking that they might be compelled to fight Rosser on their return, were in no condition to attack Gordonsville.—Nat. Intel.

In Swanzey, New Hampshire, there is a brave young soldier, on furlough, who is only eighteen years old, but has served three years in the Union army, taken part in forty-three battles and twenty-seven skirmlehes, had two horses shot under him, and during the whole time has received no injury.
