At other points, too, besides Pittsburch, Iron ore is in demand for manufacturing, and from the first of ening of the mines, this item of freight has here hocket to confidently to supply au impor-tant smount of revenue to the company. This, too, has been steadily increasing in importance, and for the hast year rapidly, and seems likely to increase still more rapidly in future years. Its importance can hardly be over-estimated, as the demand for materials of iron and the increase of iron manufactorics abundantly testifies. "The experience of the past year shows that the resources of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Natiread are as yet only imperfectly developed; that the true interest and highest profit of the company is to be found, not in competition with other roads for distant basiness, expensive to be estathed and to be managed, but in developing end encouraging that which properly bilongs to us, and which we may look on as permanently ours." and Brown.
