In this day of high prices and profitable spo lations, the rates of rents charged for houses, have been one of the last causes of complaint among those who are not so fortunate as to possess residence of their own. the large number of new-comors in the city this winter, the rates have been raised considerably -in fact the prices now being asked cannot be regarded eitherise than exhorbitant. Houses that a few months age could have been had for form $100 to $200 per year, cannot now be had for leasthan $200 to $250; and the same ratio of increase governs the letting; of better or less desirable locations. Tenants who may have a more illueral licent, but with those who have to depend upon thier own "muche" for sap-port, it is a matter of no small consequence, and this is the class who have to "rent" most. It is so be hoped that a proper appreciation of their circumstances, on the part of landfords or house-owners, will cause them to be more illoral, and that the rates may be fixed to as as to more nearly correspond to the locen of the tenants.

The fol-lowing notice of their "institution" is from the Lancaster Doly Express, at which place they had been exhibiting for several days: It is scarcely necessary for m to urge, our readers to avail themselves of this their last op-portunity to enloy so rars and pleasant an enter-tainment, for the experience of another crowded house last night assures us that there will be no vacant scale or spare shandlar room to-night. The entire combination is pharacterized with the facey of all. The management have not failed in a single point of any of their varied pro-grammea to fully meet the expectations of their patrons, and they will leave Lancaster with the respect and good will of all our clizens. with the greatest readiness. Monday was con-sidered a very cold day, but on Monday night it moderated, and rained all day yesterday. Is the evening, however, the 'moderation?' was rever-ed, and the snow that disappeared on Monday right was repined last night-so that heary winter again has the "best of the bargan." And, rather than experience mother day, such as yesterday was, we had rather have white, the "court being willing." Of all the rainy, sloppy and "masty" worther, we have seen this white, yesterday was the most so. It was such that, properly, a person whose capacity was not equal to that of a good sized steamer, had no bus-iness to venture out. Even the leadles, (who, as a greneral rule, have their own way,) had to some times acknowledge themselves "best." and stay at home-"so that the reporters and a ftw of tho more.
