The fire caught in the kitchien, and the smoke had been to ascend the stairway before Mr. Robert Dickson could get his family removed. His father, who was seventy-seven years of age, had been sleeping in a room on the accordatory, and was wased up with the rest of the family. As soon as Mr. Dickson got his wife and : children down stairs, he started back fitted see that his father got down safely, but was unable to find him. He lad seed him on the platform but a moment before, as he passed down with his bidest boy, and supposed that he would follow immediately after. Every moment, however, the smoke and find, were increasing; and, if is evident that the old gentleman, on reaching the platform, was met with a Volume of fame, and fearing that he could not escape, jumped from the window. He was found soon after, juing in the tough of the head. He was conveyed to the residence of his soon. Thomas C. Dickson, No. 691 Liberty street, where he explied in about an hour. In the city of Detroit, by the side of the Biddle House Hotel, on Jefferson avenue, stands the building of the Mercantile Library Association, which was completed two or three years ago, at a cost of over farty thousand dollars.

The front building contains two stores and a main entrance. Back of these are the Library room, Reading room, Committee rooms, and Lecture Hall. The latter is a sort of oblong octagon in shape, nitery by seventy feet, with galleries, and seating sixteen hundred and seventy eight persons. The lot is sixty feet wide on Jefferson avenue, increasing to one hundred feet some distance back. The Library, Reading Room, and Lecture Hall are on the ground floor. The money to pay for the building was raised by domalious from the citizons who appreciated the value and utility of such in institution. Pittaburgh has three times the population and probably six times as much wenith as Detroit. Pittaburnh is peerless in physical energy and money-making brains. Is a topic of absorbing interest, just now. All classes of the community seem alike interested.
Mony of the wards and townships have their Committees at work, and are actively engaged in the work of furnishing recruits. The populous city wards, where the quoties are nunsually heavy, it where our citizens seem most puzzled in regard to duty. We observe notices of sevcral meetings called to consider the all-important subject of how to best fill the quotas. We can only exhort the people to attend these meetings, and ald, by their presence and counsel, these public efforts.

Good Inea.—A large force of workmen, with carts, are engaged in opening the gutters by digging trenches in the less to let the water run off as the less miles. In many portions of the city miniature inkes cover the crossings so that it is next to impossibility for ladies to go about. We notice that the less is more than a foot in thickness in many places. By making trenches for the water to pass off gradually the streets will be kept comparatively dry, and uncomfortable feelings of wet feet and appreheusions of drowing will be avoided.
