WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1865. THE INAUGURATION HOLIDAY. Pittsburgh, like many other places, was taleep on the 22d February, and there was have been: but there seems to be a waking up going on, and we trust that the proposition to make the appoaching Fourth of March a holiday will be generally accedes to, and that every one will acquiesce in the arrangements making by the committee apied at the meeting of citizens held yes because the President, on that day, renews his cath of fidelity to the Constitution and the Union. It is not a personal ovation to him, nor a political rejoicing over his reelection, but a general outpouring of me tional gratifude over the continued success of the netional arms; and the day of the President's isauguration seems the most fitting time for such a celebration. Four years ago, when the President was first inaugurated, the national flag was scarcely to he seen South of Mason and Dixon's line; on the day of his re-inauguration i will float over every scaboard town from Cape May to New Orleans and ove every ofort then held by the rebels whilst the States of West Virginia, Keh-Jucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkanas, and Louisians, then held by them, have been weached from them, with a fair prospe that Georgia and the two Carolinas will soon follow. Then the rebellion was just begin ning: now it is drawing to a close; and i ever there was a fitting occasion for the manifestation of national joy, the re-inaugurstion of the President under such cirmetances furnishes it. By looking bac to the beginning of the Presidential terr now drawing to a close, we can realize he much has been accomplished and reloice sincerely that the new term begins under WHO BEGAN ITI

The Rebels are now quarrelling about who becun the rebellion. But a little while since and they were all proud of it; now they bogin to grow asbamed of it, and to toss the reponsibility from one to the other. The Richmond Enquirer of the 23d ult., says: "Virginia did not commence this war, no

Sichmond Enquery of the 25d uit., says.

'l'yirginia did not commence this war, nor did Aennessee, Missouri or Kentucky. Its magnitude and losses were perceived by those on whom the brunt of battle would fail. The States further south, protected by those on the border, repelled advice, rejected concert, and, with funcied, iscurity, cut the finiteinings which bound us together, and cast. Virginia and her rehildren on the exposed western frontier adrift amid terrific and increasing ware. In vain did these States fortell the future and protest against the ungenerous rashness of those who expected by the mistorium of others, to escape the calamities of civil strife. We told them that the storm would indulge its fury on our soil. We pictured to them a devastated country, pillaged fields, burning towns, instructed by the mistorium of the soldiery instructed to them a devastated country, pillaged fields, burning towns, instructed adversals of the civil these layers, and a hired soldiery instructed in the civil of the suit appeals, nor the terrific fate, which was increasing and advancing, theck the selfish impetuosity of those who risked little of diasster, to be endured by others. We were fold, we must follow our own people or be against them.

Upon this the Washington Chronicle remarks:

"We were aware that the cotton Stat "We were aware that the cotton States were the first to more in the imatter of secession, but we had supposed that the Engagerer regarded that fact with the lealousy of a Virginian who had in vain urged his notive Blate to take the initiative. ble, though hardly probable, that the Reb els have negro regiments already enlisted, and that the angry discussion of the que tion is only a ruse. It says:

"The only a ruse. It says:

"The only doubt in the case is not whether the Rebels mean to raise a nagro force, but whether they have not already raised that force. It is shrewdly suggested that this appearance of debate and telay has no other purpose than to cover the process of organization now actually going on. The appointment of Lee as General in Chief. orgatization now actually going on. The appointment of Lee as General-in-Chief when he was known as an advocate of arming the negrees, showed that he was to have his own way, and we have a roport from a source that oughtio be well informed that the Rebels have been for weeks, it not for anontha, busily engaged in drilling an army of negrees and that at this moment they are about ready to enter the field. It is asserted that they are to bear the brunt of Sherman's advance, and that without evacuating Richmond or even Petersbright Confederacy. By the belt of this new negro army, will prove itself able to risk a battle for the possession of North Carolina. We do not youch for the report. There are many probabilities against it. The Richmond papers are too much in earnest to be countereiting. The reluctance to overturn the "corner stone" of the Confederacy has been too feal. It is but lately that the opposition seemed in the way of the ag silenced. But the report itself is an officer wide need that the fact is about to be accomplished.

Gottschalk, in his farewell address, suzgests a new application of the Irish echo. The Irish echo, it will be remembered, when asked "How are you?" replied, "Pretty well, I thank you," and Mr. Gottschalk's echo is equally enterprising and original:

echo is equally enterprising and original:

"To my friends and the public:

"On the ove of my departure from this country—my indive land—the land of my earliest affections—I feel that I must express my hearlieft regrets on parting with the public, where kindners has sustained me tinoughout my public career, To all my friends, who have given me so many proofs of warm interest. I bid a long farewell. The clouds that conceal the future arctransparent and bright only in the morning of life. I have aiready come to the age when they show, more decentions than joys. Even as I say to you all farewell, methinks a distant echo faintly answers "adicu." A list, a long—farewell."

CONDITION OF CHARLESTON .- So Jones as Charleston resisted the naval attack made against it, the rebel journals repre sented that the city was comparatively up harmed by the Yankee fire. They asserte: that but few or our shells exploded, and that unless we received to some new factics, an entire century would be consumed in de-inolishing the crafts of the rebellion. New notising the craws of the resenton. Now, however, that it has fallen, we are informed by these same Southern prints that "it is not Charleston city, but the empty and ruined shell of a city, that the enemy have found lying with its door open; and entered without opposition.

The Republic of Linears.—Letters from Monrovis aroud an encouraging picture of the condition of the colored man's consitry. The amount of sugar raised this year is a third larger than last year's product. Coffee promised a greatly increased yield. The growth of cotton and its manufacture, by domestic industry, is gradually increasing. Furely, this is progress. Less than fifty years ago, the chief article in this region for the foreign market was slaves.

As a powerful force is reported to have moved against the latter line of communication, Lee will have to be spry or nothing will be left him but the Lynchburg road into Tennerice; and this too is in danger of being either broken or destroyed.

At the Berlin Postoffice a letter arrived addressed to "William L. King, of Prussia." As the sorter into whose hands this inlistive fell imported to be totally unactualited with the English language, he could not make out the import of the second part of the address, while he read the King's Christian name, which was bally written; as "Wilhelmi." Opening the Berlin postoffice Directory, he soon found several persons of this name; and disnatched In postofice Directory, he soon found several persons of this name, and dispatched the letter at once to the first. Withelmi on the list. A day or two afterwards the letter was returned to the General. Postofice or namented with several, superscriptions to the following effect: "Party here unknown." "No-such person known here," "Nobody of this name to be found," See. It appears that the letter had been tried all over the nostal district into which it had been sent, but without success. From the General Postofice it was at once dispatched to such the sub-district, but with no better result, as it shortly made its appearance there significantly with the additional superscription, "No such person known here."

"No such person known here."—In April, 1861, after Beauregard's war-declaring bombardment of Fort Sumter, President Lincoln, in his first call of troops te enforce the supreme authority of the Uniton, said that among their first duties would be the task of recovering the forts of the United States of recovering the forts of Charleston harbor, is gat length fully accomplished. From Beautort, in North Carolina, to New Orleans, there has been a clean sweep, involving the recap use of over a thousand ploces ing the recap tite of over a thousand places of artillery. Fort Sumter very properly finished this branch of the business, and the work remaining to be done is comparative ly light and easy.

The Savannam Corron.—Over seven million dollars worth of cotton has arrived at this port from Savannah, and from advices received at the Custom-house nearly double that smount will probably reach. New York before the close of next week. The arrangements for storing this staple on Etsien Ishand are nearly completed, and in a short time there will be ample accommodations for the several cargoes expected. Many of the vessels are new lying in the stream, waiting an opportunity to discharge their freight. Collector Draper is expected home about the 4th of March.—N. Y. Times.

They bribed their guard to take them to Barnum's Hetel, where they luxuristed in a sumptuous supper and the smiles of sympathising ladies. They were discovered during the ovening, however, and marched off to prison, while the Union soldier in charge of them was severely punished for his dereliction.

TALLAN OPERA SINGERS LETTER. NEW YORK, December, 1864.

WESSES, STEINWAY & SONS.

Having used water $1.

MESSES, STEINWAY & SONS.

Having used your Planos for some time is public and in private, we desire to express our unqualified admiration in regard to their merits. They are characterized by a sonority, harmonious is induces and roundness of tone, combined with an actounding prolongation of sound, most beautifully blending prolongation of sound, most beautifully blending rolling to be derired. Indeed we have never met with any instruments, not even of the most colorated manufactories of Europe, which have given us such ENTIRE SATISFAOTION, especially as regards their unequalid qualities for accompanying GERHAN OPERA SINGERS' ENDORSEMENT We heartly concur in the high obliging of the STEINWAN AS SONS' Planos, as expressed by the cingers of the Italian Opera, and can only add that in consequence of their wonderful capacity for supporting and blending with the woice, we prefer them, and use no other make of Pinnos when a STEINWAY instrument only the had. We recummend them the all sinderies of votal music, who desire a rilable corne in the cultivation of the voice. Carl Anahuts, Earths Johannsen, Carl Formes, Barls Frederick, Tos.
