But those who do so ought to bear in mind that although they can get volunteers wherever they can find men not themselves liable to draft, the credits of these club volunteers can, under the late act of Congress, only be given residents and not to the sub-districts of which the members of the club are residents. Neither the Secretary of War nor the Provost Marshal General has authority to order otherwise. As far as possible, therefore, these clubs should procure relidents of their own sub-districts to go as, what may be called, their substitute volunteers; because should one half the enrolled mon of a sub-district form themselves into a club, and procure the other half would be left to fill the full

The bridges have been all aways away or injured, except the railroad bridge of the Morthern Central road at St. Mary's, seven miles above Harrisburg. The Injury, however, to the bridge of the Pennsylvania Road at Rockville, and that of the Cumberland Valley road at Harrisburg, are comparatively slight, and will soon be, if they have not already been, repaired. The injury, however, to the lumber interest is very heavy. A very large portion of the lumber and timber rendy to the eart down on the spring fresher, has been swept away, and the lumbermen must be heavy sufferers, pecuniarily. A latter from Harrisburg states that "thousands of timber logs, with millions of feet of sawed lumber, have already passed this point. suming that Messrs, Cass and Harraugh can omplete the Connellsville Road, notwithstanding the obnoxious legislation which ics the hands of the Cennellsville Company. hose gentlemen can have no just objection o letting this community know the grounds of this assumption. They can scarcely expect the company to resign into their hands the task which it is their own duty to perform, until satisfied that Messrs. C. and H. can accomplish it better than themselves. Let Mesers. Cass and Harbaugh come out and disclese fully the ways and means by a bich they claim to be able to do what they which they claim to be able to do what they intlinite, that neither the Company nor any body else can do. Or if there is any secret connected with the matter, and the it log is to be effected through some mysterious agency, which it would not do to make public, let them at least unfold their plans to the Company, so that they may judge of their merits.

to the Company, so that they may judge of their merits.

The Company has adopted the only medes which, according to the common sense of the case, are practicable to effect the restoration, or rather the maintenance of the charier, which alone gives them the right to finish the road. They have asked the legislature to repeal the het which professes to repeal the charter, and they have asked the court, in view of the probable refusal of the legislature to, for the robable refusal of the legislature to, file the services of their rights, notwithstanding the legislative interference, and these measures they are proceeding, with all possible diligence. Do Messra. C. and H. pretend to say that they would go on and finish the road in defiance of the repealing act, which is at least prima facts of a want of authority? If they do, we misst presume that they, have some secret treaty to be let alone, with those whose duty it would be to enforce the repealing act against the Company grany at its azonts, so long as it stood unrepealed by the legislature, or unannulled by the court. If so, let them communicate this secret to the Company, and if they can satisfy it that they are really as they claim to be, the only parties by whom the completion of the road can be accomplished, the Company cannot he sitale for an instant to hand it over to them.

Another thing had better be kept in view men who are making arrangements for hatever may befall them. It is, that substitutes put in after the draft will be subject the same rule.

HE FLOOD IN THE SUSQUEHANNA ppears to have been the heaviest ever nown by the people living on that stream, the bridges have been all; swept away or transfer to the same rule.

It does matter a good ded! "who builds the road." Would Pittsburgh to willing to see it built by the Penswyleania Railroad Company to their built by the Penswyleania Railroad Company as well as of the company? We trow not. The road must be built by a trival interest to both those concerns, and one that can never be anything but a rival then we shall have the perpetual competition indispensible to our permanent protection against monopoly. The present company is that rival interest. It has the means secured to go on with and complete the road to Cumberland the moment the impending legal difficulties are removed, for the bridges have been all; swept away or quenched, and of course, the furnaces will chill.

A dispatch from Danville says:

All the bridges on the west branch as far as Williamsport are gone. The Lackswanna and Bloomsburg Raitread is under water in places ten feet. The canal in many places is completely destroyed.

It is somewhat remarkable that although the Susquehanna and Delaware were both in high flood, the Schnylkill, lying between the two, was scarcely musded by the rain. The snow thawed in the The Wall of Jefferson Barls this when he sent his wail into the so-called Confederate Congress. The farmers refuse to give their produce to the deposits for the wretched paper money of the rebels. To demand this is not only an insult to them, but a robbery to boot. And in order to get food for the army, Davis asks for "two millions of Golars in cant". How is Le to get tit. One of the Richmond paper myed a few weeks ago; that the specie should be got out of the Richmond banks; in other world, that the specie should be got out of the Richmond banks; in other world, that these Earks should be plundered for the sake of keeping up the rebellion. In fact, Davis proposes a grand scheme of spoliation upon the private property of the people of the Boath. To this send he further proposes a grand scheme of spoliation upon the private property of the people of the Boath. To this send he further proposes that the lay should be repealed which prohibits this officers of the army from impressing provisions without making payment at the time they are impressed. His extuse for this is that the limit for issuing treastly notes is nearly reached, and that there notes cannot furnish prompt payment for these supplies; and he coolfy adds that the law to rake revenue from taxes is useless, and has just been signed by his rigged Majestly And then he utters this most dismal groan: "In this condition of things it is impossible to supply the army, although ample stores may exist in the central?"

This, we are told by Davis, is the darkest hour of the rebellion and he seems resolved to make it so dark that the sun will never rise upon it again. The gloom of defeat has come, and it is to be succeeded by the midnight of despair. We shall soon hear either that the Southern people have accepted Mr. Lincoln's conditions of peace, or have huited Davis from the power he iter usurped and then abused.—Phila Press.

It has been commonly predicted that the Rebels would fight one more desperate battle, and, it beaten; would then give up. The leaders would probably choose to fight such a battle; but why should the rank and such a battle; but why should the rank and file! Have they not long enough borne up against hunger and cold and exposure to the inclementes of the elements! Have not their wives and children shivered and famished for years! Have they not seen their comrades fall and die till they who curvivs are but a remnant! And for what should they now fight a desperate battle! Hope being dead, why should not life be cherished! Why should they not yearn to look once more on the faces of their wives and children!—N. Y. Trib.

Davis, in his message, alludes to a proposition made for an interview between Grant and Lee, a knowledge of which is news to copie here. It appears that, subsequent to the failures of peace negotiations between Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Stevens, General Ord had an interview with Longstreet, in which he told the latter—had an interview with Longstreet, in which he told the latter—

"There was a possibility of arriving at a satisfactory adjustment of the present unhappy difficulties by means of a military convention, and that if General Lee desired an interview on the subject, it would not be declined, provided Lee had authority to act. This communication was supposed to be the consequence of the suggestion above referred to, and General Lee, according to instructions, wrote to General Grant on the 2d of this month, proposing to meet him for conference on the subject, and stating that he was rested with the requisite authority. General Grant's reply stated that he had no authority to accede to the proposed conference; that his powers extended only to making a convention on subjects parely of a military character, and General Ord could only have meant that an interview would not be refused on any subject on which he (General Grant) had the right to act. It thus appears, says Davis, that neither with the Confederate authorities of any State, nor through the commanding Generals will the government of the III.

The Newspaper Press in the Confederacy. Washington, March 18.—The Danville Register, of Wednesday, remarks that "the recent movements of Sherman and Sheridan have greatly decreased the number of newspapers published in the country. In Virginia we have daily papers issued from four different points—Richmond, Lynchburg, Danville and Petersburg, and the weekly at Clarksville. The number has been largely curtailed in North Carolina. Wilmington, Fayettoville, Goldsboro, &c., are in the hands of the enemy. The Yankees have a paper at Wilmington. Some think that Raleigh may, too, go. Then Greensboro and Charlotte, and some smaller places will be alone left in South Carolina. It is even worse. The Mercury was removed from Charleston some time before the occupation of the city by the enemy, and the Courier, which remained, was taken in charge by the Yankees, not-The Newspaper Press in the Confederacy. onemy, and the Courier, which remained, was taken in charge by the Yankes, not-withstanding it opposed nullification in 1882, and is now issued as a Yankeo newspaper.
