WORKING TOGETHER FOR GOOD.

There are times when the Suprems Ruler seems to leave nations for years and gener ations to work out their own destiny and shape their own policy, without any manifest interposition on his part-besto on them the common blessings of his Providence, and affording all mental, moral and mhysical power needful for their prosperity sseand then permitting them to exercise their nowers wisely or anwisely. righteously of torighteously, as they please. This was the condition of the United States, as a nation, from the close of the Revolution until the beginning of this war. Never was there a theatre upon which human wisdom and skill had freer scope, or so grand an opportunity, Allthat men could do to bring about great and beneficent results was done. Never did the world witness such trapid idevelopment or such mer-ness uch urply a Population, wealth, in velous properly. Population, wealth, in selligence, science, skill, urfacement and civilization advanced together; and not without cause we became selligence and not without cause we became selligence and not with out cause we became selligence and not without cause we became selligence and not without the selligence and not selligence and not without the selligence and not with the selligence and not selligence and no andly at fault in some things. To see peace, purity was sacrificed; and principle was made to bend to expediency. Things which in their very nature were antogonis tle were bound together and forced to harof which was "to secure the blessings o Liberty," was at the same time made to b the guarantee of human bondage: and this unnatural commingling of discordant powers was termed, in party phrase, one of the 'compromises of the Constitution.' These active, undying, antagonistic principles Men ardently desired peace, and, to obtain it, entered into compromise after compro

At first it was, hoped that the good prin ciple would overcome and extirpate the vil-that Blavery would gradually die out but instead of this it grew in power and arrogance until it became the-ruling spirit in the nation. To oppose it was regarded for its abolition was fantamount to once rebellion. From the clear, beautiful light in which we now stand, it makes one shudder to look back to the darkness and degradation of 1850 to '55, when the Fugitive Slave Law was enacted; when the Misson compromise was repealed, and the Dred Scott decision pronounced. We had then sunk as deep as we could sink, and yet re-sunk as deep as we could sink, and yet retain vitality enough to rise again.

Then it was that God Interposed by letting loose upon the plains of Kansas that which the Bible so expressively denominates "the wrath of man," and causing it to praise him, by giving to the nation new life. He permitted the opposing principles of Liberty and Slavery to be both aroused to intense activity and to grapple in deadly conflict. This war, so far as regards physical powers, began in Kansas; and the same spirit which, animated the "border ruffana," applied the match to the cannon in Charleston, harbor, waged a long and furious war with the government, systematical ly tortured and staved our prisoners, and finally maghened the brain and nerved the arm of the assassin who took away the life of Annaham Lingolm. All these, things of Abraham Lingolm. All these things were necessary to evoke a true and living latitotiam, and a proper devotion on the part of the mation to the principles of Right and Justice and Freedom—to raise us up from the depth to which we had gradually and almost imperceptible descended—to open our eyes to the atrocious wrongs which millions of our people were enduring, and at which, for sake of peade and in violation of our conscience, we were conhiging to the same content of the mation to the principles of Right than the mation of the mation to the principles of Right than the mation of t nacience, we were conhiving -to teach us that there was a higher law constitution was so interpreted us to make it the minister of wrong and oppression. God knew how to teach us, and He has taught us; He knew what we needed, and He has given it; He knew how to give the nation s new life, and it now rejoices in that life; He knew how to abolish slavery, and He has done it effectually; He knew how to lay the nation at His feet in sorrow, contrition and humble dependence, and that which He has led us, His everlasting arm has been beneath us. His good Providence has been over us: His counsel has guarded us, and His Holy Spirit He has not taken ving-from our national father, whose spirit has departed, to our Heavenly Father. who ever lives, and who never forsakes, and also to the living man who now fills the place of that beloved one whose tragic death we so deeply mourn. He needs the chesring voice of his countrymen; and we know how he yearns for their confidence, their. ove and their prayers.

STILL REBELS, The surrender of LEE was made be cause it could not be helped, and not because there was any change in the rebellious spirit of himself or his officers. A ndent of the New York Times, witting from Richmond says:

"Among the officers, the sentiment of "Among the omicers, the sentiment of pertinacious refisience seems; to be universal, and scarcely any of them but express the most determined hatred towards the Government of the United States, and it required the greatest forbearance and patience to hear calculy these fiery and missied continuous meaks to such outrageous guided gentlemen speak in such outrageous terms of our common country and glorious

They always speak of exiting in such cases. Singularly enough, the greater number of them who thus exhibit such hauted of our people, speak of Mexico as their inture refuge. One of them, a Colonel, laughingly yet meaningly said: "You know by going to Mexico we have a chance to meet you again, and wipe out some old recres."

The best thing these fellows can do will he to exile themselves as soon as possible. try. If they delay going they will and the atmosphere growing hotter than an oven about them. The government will respect the bargain which lets them loose on parole; but the people have lost all idea c forbearance, and every untamed rebel will prove bls wisdom if he puts a sea or a continent between an indignant populace and TERRELY POT.—If women cannot write letters without adding postscripts to them, they can pus their meaning into very few words when they want to. Witness the following letter published in the Tribune:

Paltimore, April 15th, 1865,

Nothing more strikingly attests the solid-great problem; but it is settled now. But it was not settled until the disturbing element of slavery was cast out of our system Less than ten years ago the profoundest thinkers of this and other lands doubted whether the jarring elements, the antago-nistic forces, the warring passions and opposing interests of so great and wide-spread a nation as this could much longer be safely. left to rest upon the single foundation of public opinion and the popular will.

But they doubt no longer. God throw as into his crucible, and sat as a refiner and outifier of silver-saving and refining that which was good in our system, and co ing or casting away the dross. It was a reible, an agonizing ordeal; but now that he has given us rest, we see how good it was. He Anished our great experiment and solved the mighty problem.

Something to be Looked After. George N, Sanders sends us a roll George N, Sanders sends us a note from Montreal, which we publish in another column. It implicates Hon R. J. Walker, so for as Sanders' assertlenes can implicate anybody, in a disgraceful and criminal atmpt to secure a surrender of the powers and rights of the government, as the price of peace with the rebellion. It is a little more contemptible, and a good deal more sourd than the previous peace palayers, which had disgusted the loyal sentiment, of the had disgusted the loyal scuttment. Of the country of time, in our judgment, when Sanders and his associate conspirators to Canada should be treated as they deserved. They are simply making Canada a nest of the they may safely hatch their schem; the country of the steel of the statement is not better than an indefinite where they may safely hatch their schem; prolangation of the present struggle, with lans raid. The selzure of the steamers on Lake Eric was their work. They contrived the hellish plot for burning this city. Beal and Kennedy were burning for crimes which these cowardly scoundrels plotted and detail and Kennedy were burning for crimes which these cowardly scoundrels plotted and devised. They organize the raids upon border cities, which are from time to time detected and defeated. And there is very little room to doubt that the assasination of President Lincoln was but one instance of a conspiracy which they devised and set in cy—traceable, we do not doubt, to the rebel segrate in Canada, of whom Sanders is one of the most reckless and unscrupulous haders, and who cloak their halliah designs, under pretended negotiations for peace.

It is time this gang of murderous scoundrels was broken up. And it is time especially that Americans who claim to be loyal at oald crase to make themselves their toadles and tools. What, business has Robert. I washer to be dancing attendance on that prince of insolent rebel adventurers, George. N. Senders, concocting with him and his confederates a "basis of sottlement," agreeing to the surrender of principles vital to our government, and seeking to seduce loyal citizens into complicity with their plots? We do not credit the assertions of Senders coaccuring Mr. Walker's agracy in this matter, but it is time for the government to give Mr. Walker and everylonger be tolers ed. And If these ingreer our conspiracies can be traced to answer yard his associates, their surrender is a safety sine should be demanded of the without man thorities. The government has frifted with this sort of thing long trackles as the capture of Mobile would have sant a thill of delight throughout the loyal States, but so overwhalming is the national grief, caused by the murder of President Llacoin, that there is no room for the opposite sentiment of joy in the public mind. The fact is neverthelers highly gratifying, since it things us one step nesere the end of robollers and civil was. We believe that Mobile was the only port east of the Mississiphiner in rebel hands, and its loss is laves them without any possible outlet to the orean, with the exception of Galveston, which is closely blockeded.—Washington Chronicle.

To What Base Uses.—The Toronto Globe—which, to its honor be it said, is draped in bourning for the death of our great chief, says that when the news of the assassination reached Toronto on Saturday morning, a lot of Southern refugees in that city assembled at the chief hotel, and entered spon a noisy debauch in honor of the rad event. A clocyman among them at the Licak'ast table, remarked in a floud voice; "that Lincoln had gone to hell a little before its time." How could, a man reach a lower infamy than this? The Globe should publish the name of the scoundrel.—Chicago Tribune.

The Erming Post expresses a hope that the Rebel leaders will fies out of the country, but insists that if they are explured, they shall be tried for their crimes, and then pardoned by the President, if he shall deem best, upon conditions that they leave the country at once and forever. It opposes the idea of an amnesty proclamation at the present time, because the war is not at an end, and while Lee has surrendered, and Johnston will probably do so, it a not impossible to end, and while Lee has surreneered, and Jona-ston will probably do so, it is not impossible to believe that Davis will put commands in the hands of Beauregard and Taylor, with instruc-tions to continue the war in the Beathwest to the bitterest extremity. BRUTAL .- The blockade runner Col. Lamb, at BRUTAL.—The blockade runner Col. Lamb, at Halifar, was gaily decorated with flags on the reception of the news of the assassination of President Lincoln. So says the telegraph.

If the yillain who commands this blockade runner shall ever come into the clutches of our sallors, he will be made to wish that his tongue had been paralyzed before he gave the order to have his ship thus "gaily decorated."

Nothing more strikingly at ests the solidity and strength of our Goversment than the fact the late awful calamity, which boverted the whole nation into a house of mourning, had no appreciable influence upon the mational credit, upon the price of gold, or the market value of the national securities. The relative value of the national securities. The relative value of both currency and stocks as compared with coin, was gradually and healthfully advancing before that event, and they have continued to advance in value since.

This is a fact of incalculable political value to disc country and to the world; for, taken in connection with the quiet, peace, full and uncestenanceus investiture of another citizen with the manule of power dropped by the illuminous departed, if will satisfy all mankful that the experiment of five government is a grand success. It required almost a century to work out the great problem; but it is settled now. But it was not settled until the disturbing ele-
