TAXES AND DUTIES ON STEEL We give place to the following commun cation with pleasure, knowing that Truth can never suffer in fair discussion, whatave may become of sophistry. We propose to append a few remarks : and to avoid repeti tion and save room we throw them into the form of reference notes. The reader will be kind enough to observe the reference marks (a) (b) &c. as he proceeds.

FITTSBURGH, April 25. MESSNA. EDITORS GAZETTE:-Reading HITTEDURGH, April 25. MESSIAS EDITORS GAZETTE: -- Reading in your issue of this morning an article from the pea of Mr. James M. Cooper, in favor of greator protection than at present given to the domestic manufacturer, point out some portions of his letter, which would seem far fatched and absurd to an unin-structed (perhaps disinterested would be a triffer would, esc. Inder word) eye. In his statement of the revenue derived from rolled or hammered steel, he includes the revenue derived from the manufacture the revenue derived from the manufacture of blooms, bar iron, crucibles, moulds, cast-ings, orcise on coal, oil, stamps, &c., each of which belongs solely to these separate branches of trade; and if they can, with propriety, be included in Mr. Cooper's statement, then should be also include the revenues and excise derived from the private excenditures of stry, workman, and emrevenues and excise derived from the private expenditures of, every workman and em-ployee in the trade. (a) He states that the government requires forty per cent. of the profits of each manufacturer, wherea, the truth is, it requires (but seldom obtains where the back the provision of a matter of even that) only ten por cent. of a portion of their net profil—permitting them to deduct a very liberal sum before levying the tax. All other taxes and excise are included by the manufacturer as a part of the cost of goods, and their profit then added, so that the manufacturer as a part of the cost of goods, and their profit then added, so that not they, but the consumers pay the tax. (5) Again; he complains pathetically that there is less than one can per pound differ-ence between the duty on foreign steel and the excise upons American manufactured steel. Allow 30% to use his own figures to abow what that "little difference" amounts to. Total imports, 10,000 tons; duty $763.-000 in gold, or $1,179,000 in currency. To tal domestic manufacture, 32,500 tons; ex-cise and income tax $720,000 in currency, or $460,000 in gold; whereas, if taxed equal to foreign imports, it would pay $1,105,000 in gold—s margin in favor of domestic manufactures of only $933,000 in gold, or mearly $1,400,000 at present rates of cu ren-cy. This does not take into consideration the protection afforded by 3,000 miles of transportation co imported steel, with its various charges and commissions, of the transportation on imported steel, with its various charges and commissions, or the enormous protection afforded during the past three years by the advance in exchange, (c) I might extend these remarks much farther, fut as I am an advocate of just pro-tection, my object is only to show that pa-pers such as Mr. Cooper's do us more harm than good, their fallacy being so easily ex-posed. BENARKS.

(a)-Nothing can be more disingenuous thin this first position. Suppose a manufacturer of steel manufactured his own blooms solely for the purpose of ultimately converting that iron into steel, he must pay an excise tax upon those blooms. He then converts the same fron into bars; these bars are also taxed. "He then finishes the process by converting these bars into steel; that steel is taxed fifteen dollars per ton. Here are three taxes which the article has paid in its transition from pig iron to finished steel, each and all of which add so much to the cost of production. Then suppose he

The negroes, who in Abraham Lincoln have lost their best friend, are naturally both grieved and indignant at this unexpected exclusion. Besides, we have accepted of the services of these citizens in the war, and it is disgraceful ingratitude to shut them out of our civic demonstration. and so of everything enumerated by Mr. Coopus. Can anything be more obvious to any mind capable of putting two ideas together, that these yarlous cum tive taxes all go to enhance the price of the steel. Where are the blooms when the process is finished ? In the steel. Where is the har iron ? In the steel. Where is the coal? Consumed in making the steel. Where are the crucibles? Haed up in the process of making the steel. Then where are all the tax naid by all these things ? In the steel too. Can anything be plainer than (b)-Why, to be sure the consumer pays it ultimately, although the manufacturer pays it in the first instance. But we are talking about what tax Steel pays, not what the manufacturer pays; and whether these several taxes are paid by one man or one firm, or by a dozen, makes no difference. (c)-That "3,000 miles of transportation we know, if H. does not, is a very small matter in the price of an article like steel. As regards the derangement of the currency and the advance in exchange, they have no proper place in a discussion like this. Evils as they were in themselves, they had one advantage-they operated during the past two years as a good, efficient protective tariff, and set the wheels of our national industry going finely-not in the matter of steel only., but everything. But this state of things' is passing sway, and hence it is the duty of the American people to prepare for a return to a normal and healthy condition of the currency, and to do it so wisely and so promptly as to avoid the crash which is inevitable, unless they foster and rotect their own home industry.

Our correspondent says he is himself a manufacturer. It may be that in his operations he requires some steel, and would like to get it a little cheaper than his own countrymen are able to make it. But doe he not see that the policy which would se cure to him this one little advantage would injure him in a thousand ways. He has sindled the philosophy of pational econd my to little purpose if he does not know that all the great interests of a country liks this flourish or languish together-that the farmer cannot thrive if the manufacturer is crippled, or that the mechanic or artist who may require some iron or steel in his operations, can only hope to prosper, when the producers of these prime articles are ring. And he has profited very little prospering. And he mapping not know by past experience, if he does not know that the only periods when this country ever enjoyed true prosperity have been those when it had a vigorous PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Whether Mr. COOPER will reply to this gentleman who lias taken exceptions to his calculations and arguments we cannot tell; but our own impression is, that they stand firm because they are true-that steel does pay into the National Treasury $32 per ton;

that the difference between the amount de rived from foreign steel by the government does not exceed that derived from American steel by more than one cent per poundand that, as Mr. Coores says, the government derives from this particular branch, as well as many others, forty per cent. of the profits, and is therefore to that extent a alhent and irresponsible partner in the whole of them.
