DAREPENTANT REBELS. A refel major of artillery writes from hmond to a gentleman of Philadelphia, (who had been a friend of his before the war,) saking him to favor him with a loan of $200 or $300 till he could "get a start." He says that he served all through the war, beginning as a lieutenant of infantry at Bellief and ending as a major of artillery max. He glories in the part he bore in the war, and brage that his battalion scheld the whole army of Gen MEADE at Gettysburg, and perhaps saved LEE's army." Now hear him again :

"I have returned to town overwhelmed with spring and disappointment. But man purposes. God disposes. I have done my whole duty as it seemed to me, and have no with soring and disappointment. But mas purposes, God disposes. I have done my whole duty as it seemed to me, and have no self-reproaches. I have loose all but my hone of and must begin life anew at forty. Had I not been married I should have preferred death to the humiliation, but since God has given, me, my life, I am anxious to spend what remains of it in doing what good I can I think the trials and hardships of the war have, been of great profit to my soul. I have related that the world is full of trouble and sorrow, and that heaven is the only sure place of peace and happiness. I lost my only seen has year, and was able to bear it with resignation, I trust."

His friend, in his reply, which is also published, gives him a sovere rebuke for both his treason and hypoerisy.

Now the question arises, "What is to be done with such a man as this, and others like him?" Although beaten, as they them selves acknowledge, they are just as much the enemies of the government as ever. They boldly and unblushingly avow that, in fighting against it they have done their whole duty, end "have no self-reproaches." Gen. Lee in his farewell address to his army, commended his soldiers for their "decotion to their country," meaning of course the Canfederacy. Can such men as these be safely restored to citizenship? Are they may less traitors now than they were when Lee invaded Pennsylvania? Can men who shed the blood of their country, meaning of course the Canfederacy, they have only done, their duty, this, the part they have acted has been "of great profito" that country they have no regretis, that they have acted has been "of great profito" their country, and then, after failing in the country when have none their country in the proper amount of contempt for the action they have acted has been "of great profit to their souls," can such men be allowed to Fun at large with eafety to the Republic We have nothing to do with their conatlances; but men who fight against the gov-strament, and then when beaten by that gov have done, have no business here, nor can they be safely allowed to stay there, much less be invested with the privileges and powers of citizens. Is the government going to permit the control of the government of any State and send representatives to Congress? The South is full of just such men, as bold, as impudent, as defiant, and as full of enmity as he. "Error of opinion may be tolerated (said Mr. JEFFERSON) so long as reason is left free to combat it;" but let us beware of regarding treason as a more error of opin ion. It is an awful crime, as we have learned by bitter experience; and men wh have committed it in its most henious form, and then tell us that in doing so they dis their whole duty, and that they have no elf-reproaches, must be punished either by death or expatriation, if we would hope to amjorn peace! and tranquility. It matters not how many there may be of them; for hadyidually they are none the less guilty; and the more numerous they are the more dangerous each one is individually. Were there but a few, they might be overlooked without danger to the country, however justice might be outraged by so doing; but seing so numerous as they are, any other

Baglish Statesmen, whose sympathies have been with the rebels, predicted, and indeed many of our own less hopeful coun-Mymen apprehended, that after the great armies of the rebellion should be overcom and disbanded, we should have a long and hitter warfare with roving bands of guerrillas, animated at once by hatred to the Yan less adventure—that gangs of desperadoes would conlinue the war "on their own hook," and ruin, as far as lay in their powor what they could not rule. But these forebodings are not likely to be realized. Every day bilings us accounts of the volunthry surrelider of this class of men, and o their quiet return to their homes, for most

The cause having failed, this its adjunct will cease. Its object was to assist the mbel government; but now that there is no rebel government to assist, there is no object to be gained by carrying it in. In fact, this guerrills warfere was analogous in its lis warfare was analogous in its me to sparks which leap from a vehement fire—when that fire is extinguished there are no more sparks. Then our government dared not to treat guerrillas as outlaws, because so many of our own men were in rebel hands as prisoners of war; but now that the regular war is over, the case is very different. Henceforth whoever may commit any act of war whatever will be treated, not as enemies, but as outlaws, and shot down or hanged with little ceremony sive of much more trouble from this source RETRESCHMENT. - The work of Retrenchment is promised by our energetic Secretary of War. The mustering officer in this city has received orders to muster out the drafted men heretofore on duty at Camp Reysolds, and we presume that similar orders have been sent all over the country. Just as fast as the men now in the army can be safely spared, they will be mustered out and before us. We venture to say it supplies an illustration of "neutral" malice, imbedility and cowardice combined, such as has not been witnessed during the whole of this been witnessed during the whole of this war.

The Shenandoah put into the harbor of Melbourne on the 25th of January, having completed a cruise, during two months of which—from Oct. 29 to Dec. 29—she succeeded in capturing and destroying nine American merchantmen. On reaching Melbourne, Waddell, the commander of the Shenandoah, demanded the right of putting his vessel into the dock for repaira. This demand was at once complied with. And the local Commissioner of Customs was ordered by the governor to examine what repairs were actually necessary, and report upon the time required to make them.

A commission was also instructed to supervise the wark, so that nothing extra should be done—such as increasing the vessel's speed. The time allowed for the job was ultimately fixed at ten days. And the Government slip was allowed to be used for the purpose.

in answer to this threat, he returned unanswered.

It is a fitting corrollary to these outrageous proceedings that a public meeting should have been held at Melbourne, denouncing the government for not treating Capt. Waddell more courteously. And we can readily believe the report—extraordinary as it appears—that the pirate, when last seen, was lying off the cosst a short distance from Mclbourne, in wait for a number of merchantmen expected from New York.

Surely this is a case so far out of the ordinary range even of the neutrality we have been accustomed to, as to demand special incurry on the part of our government.—N. toen accustomed to, as to demand special inquiry on the part of our government.—N. Y. Times.

The Rebel State Governments. Johnston has surrendered on the same terms granted to Lee. It is probable-indeed it may be regarded as certain that the maining forces of the rebellion will either disband, or surrender also. The military power of the rebellion is therefore broken; what we have now to look to is the destruction of its civil government. The chief rebel "government," that of which Davis is the head, was extinguished, of course, when it was expelled from Richmond. It cannot raise its head again but the most persistent head, was extinguished, of course, when it was expelled from Richmond. It cannot raise its head again; but the most persistent and insiduous efforts will be made to maintain the rebel state governments.

It is most important that every attempt of this kind shall be at once metand checked, as will be seen if we analyze the nature of these organizations. In the first place, every state officer in the South has swom to support and defend the "South has swom to support and defend the "South has

Of couse we cannot recognize or admit the legality of such amendments and acts, this would be to admit within our body politic parts which defy the general and supreme law of the land; to allow persons and politic v of the land; to allow persons and poli cal bodies to exercise the lights of clizen ship, while at the same time they give allegiance to a foreign and dangerous

The members of these rebelstate govern The members of these rebel state governments are as much usurpers as their chief and masher, Davis. They have aided Davis to the utmost of their power. They have for four years kept the yoks upon the neck of the southern people. The men who called themselves governors and legislators filled the Southern statute books with laws which riveted in every possible way the chains in which they had laid the people. Such men can have no part nor lot in reconstruction. They are forsworn traitors, who can never again be trusted.

There is not one of these persons but is as defiant a rebel. as Davis. There is not an act of theirs on record but is an act of theirs on record but is an act of theirs on record but is an act of their son record but is an act of their son record but is an act of enulty against the United States. They and all their acts and "mendments" must be torn down and swept away, before there be tern down and swept away, before there is room in any Southern State to build up a loyel and republican State government.—

M. Y. Eccating Post. Hewell Cobb.

The distinguished rebel, Howell Cobb, who was a prisoner for a short time in our short as Macon, Georgia, until General Bierman ordered his rolesse, richly deserves the fate reserved for Jeff. Davis, whenever the latter traitor falls into our hands. Cobb remained in Buchanau's cabinet long amough to enable the traitors' conspiracy to gain very important advantages. Not the least of his crimes consisted in ordering our revenue cutters to Southern Howell Cobb.

Not the least of his crimes consisted in ordering our revenue cutters to Southern ports, where they could be conveniently selzed by the rebels and appropriated to their own use. He likewize contrived to remit large sums of government funds to the sub-trensules of the South, all of which wite stolen, together with th: $490,000 which he traitorously permitted to accumulate in the United States Mint in New Orleans for the benefit of the rebels. Cobb has been figuring lately as a Major General of Georgia militia, and we have heard repeatedly, through Southern sources, that he was very unpopular with the people, and with the rebel troops. As an instigator of rebellion, and a traitor in Buchanan's cablset, he deserves the execution of the Amerfean people, and a halter would be a just set, be deserves the execution of the American people, and a halter would be a just return for his abominable treason.

On the evening of the same day the National ensign was again hoisted in Mobile. On the anniversary of the Savious's death the joy of a redeemed land was changed to astonishment and mourning by the assassination of our twice-chosen President, the beloved of mankind. The same period witnessed the rising again of the now purer flag of freedom on the battlements of Sumter. The succeeding fortnight has been signalized by the tri-the now pure flag of freedom on the battlements of Sumter. The succeeding fortnight has been signalized by the triumphal obsequies of our martyr President. Among the strange surprises of the ovenful month, came, on the 18th, the almost inexplicable fresk of Sherman—his mischievous armistice, to which, however, President Johnson most promptly applied the antidote. On the 26th Booth explated hisfolly in St. Mary's county, and on that day the Confederacy virtually yielded up the ghost in the surrender by Johnson of about all its remaining military forces. The record of the 27th is burdened with the most frightful steamboat catastrophe known to sur Western waters—the explosion of the Sultana, and consequent loss of more than fourteen hundred lives—the most of hese victims being veteran Union soldiers returning, at last, from primeted suffering in Southern prisons. Had ever any April more of alternating sunshine and gloom!—Missouri Democrat.

Lee Not a Descendant of Washington. Lee Not a Descendant of Washington.
A newspaper article, which is going the rounds of the press, speaks of the robel chief as a descendant of Washington. This is a mistake, and one that should be corrected for the sake of the memory of the great man who is thus libelled. Washington had no children and consequently he could have no descendants in this or any other generation. Mrs. Custis, whom he married, was a widow with two children—George Washington Park Custis and Elimor Park Curtis. From the latter the unitor Lee descended, and his veins coulain no single drop of blood that had its tain no single drop of blood that had it source in those of the Father of his country — Phila, Bul.

purchase the BEST FAMILY SEWING MACHINE.

Which should be considered by those who dear

We arehaving a great many inquiries for Sewing Machines from various parts of the country, and as we can not sonventently reply to them all by mail, we have thought it preper to state our opinion in regard to them in this public manner. We have used Wilson's patent, manufactured by the Wheeler & Wilson Manufacturing Company, and we can say in regard to it, that it is without rival. It is simple, not easily put out of order, and, in penit of effectiveness and finish, no other machine stands ahead of it. We state this much in regard to the excellent machine upon our own responsibility. in regard to the excellent machine upon our own responsibility.

This Company have made and on during the last three months, 10,675 machines, and are now producing and seiting 150 per day. They vary in price from 801 to $150, the medium priced ones sell-best. In their business there is over 1,000,300 invested, and they keep 1,000 menregularly employed manufacturing machines. The system pursued is the same as that adopted in the manufacture of aims; every piece'is made to a guage, and consequently the parts of any machines may be transposed with those of amples machine of the same size; or should an accident occur, the broken partons immediately be replaced on application at the office.
