By the Governor: ANDREW J. FLETCHER, Sec'y of State. THE END OF THE GREAT REBEL. [From the London Times, April 24th.]

the Philaceiphia Press:—From the moment the bail struck him he was dead and helpless, with a mind clear, in intense suffering, a living witness of his own just punishment for his atroclous deed. Was there not the averaging hand of God upon him from the moment he exclaimed on the stage of Ford's theatre, "I am avenged!" In the leap upon the stagethe fibule, the small bone of the leg, was fractured. For ten days and nights the forests and swamps were his home, with pain, and dread, and anguish. When discovered the barn was fited, before him a sea of flame, ready to engulf him; beyond the grave a still greate sea of flame awaiting him; and at that in stant he rebeived his peculiar, his wonderful wound, which we have described.
Could the end of such a life have been more painful; more appalling? Was there not in it the hand of an over-ruling Providence? The greatest rise on record of the Mississippi river, we believe, was in the spring of 1862. The water then rose in the city to two or three feet higher than it has you reached. But at that time leaves protected he swamp country, and held the immens rolume somewhat within bounds. The floo volume somewhat within bounds. The flood is perhaps as great this year as it was then; but owing to the loss of leaves, the water has a wider scope of country over, which to epread, and consequently will not inuidable the more elevated portions to the same extent that it did then.

DeStote, however, is getting the free benefit of the rise. We do not suppose there is as acre of dry ground upon the peninsula opposite. Vicksburg, and ever most of it a steamboat could float easily. Some of the houses are in the water up to the roofs, and none are tenable except for the fishes of the sea.— (Vettburg, Herold, 25th.) Agricultural.

The recent heavy rains—protracted through several weeks of the planting season—have seriously prejudiced agricultural interests in this valley. Not one half the corn lands in this county have been plowed yet, and, of course, but little corn is planted. If we have ten days of fair weather now, however, all will be right. The wheat fields look superbly. We understand that the area planted in tobacco in this county will be considerably less than that of 1884-5, but still preparations are making for extensive planting, so that Montgomery will still loom up heavily in the tobacco market. Fruit prospects—strawberries, currants, gooseberries, cherries, peaches, apples, quinces,—are most promising. With good weather during the growing season, 1805 will equal the products of 1855.—Daylon, (O.) Journal. Among the many striking remarks which fell from the lips of Mr. Lincoln and were placed upon record, we remember none more impressive than the following, related by Bishop Smerson in his funeral address at Springfield:

To a minister, who said he hoped the Lord was on our side, he replied that it gave him no concern whether the Lord was on our side or not, for, he added, "I know the Lord is always on the side of the right," and, with deep feeling, added: "But God is my witness that it is my constantantisty and prayer that both myself and this nation should be on the Lord's side. should be on the Lord's tide.

A Lone Shirker.—Forty years ago, Miss Susan Blackley left her home at St. Stephens, New Brunswick, and worked at Portland, Maine, the first year. Then she married Daniel Watsou, of Farmington N. II., and moved to that town. She left at St. Stephens three brothers and one sister, whom for the last thirty-nine years she has never heard one word from directly or indirectly. Meantime she has raised up a family of children and lost her husbund. A few weeks ago she sent a letter to her long unheard from brothers, and soon recolved from them a letter stating that all three of lier brothers and sister were alive and well. At a recent election in Australia the naturalized Chinamen voted for the first time; being thoroughly free from political opinions or prejudices, thirty-three of them were engaged in one district by one of the candidates at eight shillings a head, and tutored to any 'yea'' to every question which might be put them in the polling booth. One of the first questions asked was, "Have you voted before at this election!". Answer, "yea," and forthwith they were uncaressoniously bundled out of the booth. [Frem the Lockes Times, April sith.]

Buch is the end of the great army which, biganized by the extraordinary genius of mo man, aided by several other commandars of eminent ability, has done such wonders in this war. Not even the grand army of Napoleon himself could count a sories of more brilliant victories than the force which, raised chiefly from the high-spirited population of Virginia, has defeated so many invasions of the State and crushed the lopes of so many northern generals. Onder and soldiers have falled for the first and last time. They were victorious until victory was no longer to be achieved by human valor, and then they foll with honor. Theirs has been no gradual decay in courage and discipline, no demoralization the result of successive defeats. What they were at the Chickshominy and at Chancellors will be wreton the day when the lowerpowering forces of Graut and Short, das forced them back from their defences at Petersburg.
