PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S GOOD NAME.

No man was ever more abused than Mr. LINCOLN. He was ridiculed as an "ape," a "baboon," a "filthy jester" and of course, uncultivated man, and denounced as a "tyrant," a "King," a "usurper," the enemy of his country and the subverter of its Constitution. In England he was laughed at, jeered at, hooted at, and sneered at, with every possible variation in the terms employed, and scarcely one of the prominent presses of that nation could bring itself to the task of speaking of him even in decent language.

But Mr. LINCOLN paid no heed to all this. He pursued the even tenor of his way, animated by a lofty singleness of purpose, and an honesty that never swerved a hair's breadth from the true line. Disregarding all assaults upon his good name, and all provocations from abroad and at home to change his policy, he first settled in his own mind what was right, and then adhered to it with the sternest determination.

And behold the result! After years of systematic detraction his bitterest defamers are compelled to do homage to the spotless purity of his life, to the exalted honesty that marked his public career, to the lofty patriotism that animated his every public act, and to admit that he belonged to the highest order of statesmen. Even the English papers admit all this, and testify to the fact that Europe was all along relying upon his purity, his statesmanship, his foresight and his sound judgment, whilst the press, and the rostrum rung with denunciations of him.

Never was a man more thoroughly vindicated than he. Never did a man escape so suddenly from encompassing clouds to stand forever in the clear sunshine of eternal day. The enemies who plotted his death little thought that in taking away his mortal life they were securing to him that immortal fame which belongs only to the few who are destined to live through successive years.

HARD TIMES.

The flunkey who paraded Gen. Lee's views of the political condition of the country, has also been pumping Hardee—a soldier who is better known by his "Tactics" than any distinction won in the rebel army. Hardee does not aspire to the statesmanship of Lee, but here are sundry smaller questions growing out of the collapse of the rebellion upon which he feels competent to give an opinion as positively as the himbleed chieftain who has only one suit of grey clothes. His great fear is that the rebel officers will have to work for their living! This is dreadful. Says Hardee: "They must go to work. The prospect before them is gloomy indeed." Gloomy! Hardee may well say so. How can the high-born Southern gentlemen, who never did any harder labor than wallop his nigger, come down to the degrading task of work! His small feet and his beautiful hands will be ruined! His fair complexion will become tanny, and if he is seen swinging a hoe in the field or hurling curses at his lazy steed in the plough, what, will people think of him! Alas! what if he comes to this—when it is "root, hog, or die" with the chivalric woman-whippers of by-gone days. Hardee may well say "The prospect before them is gloomy indeed." We are very sorry we cannot sympathize with them.

But the worst of it all is in HARDEE'S own case. Of course a man is likely to take a darker view of his own affairs than he does of other people's; but perhaps HARDEE is dark in regarding his own lot as the worst. "It will be very hard on an old man like me," he says. Why did he not say "an old fool" instead of "an old man"? He is only forty-six years old, having been born in 1819, and men do not count themselves "old" at that age in the North. We cannot admit that he is "an old man," therefore, but will cheerfully certify to his being an an old fool. He had a good position in the army and was the author of a military book that would have ensured him a competence; and yet he threw all this away to become a mere nobody in an infamous rebellion, and having failed so egregiously is graceless enough to whine over it. "It will be very hard on an old man like me!" He hasn't the sense to be grateful that his life is spared; all he thinks of is the hardship of having to work for a living. Let him console himself with the reflection that it is much harder on the nation that he should be permitted to live.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY.

The National Anti-Slavery Society has not endorsed the proposition of its late President, Mr. GARRISON, that the time had come for its dissolution. By a vote of two to one the Society declared its conviction that its work was not done, and that duty required the continuance of the organization.

In this we think it acted wisely. Slavery is practically dead, and so far Mr. GARRISON was right, but the spirit of slavery still lives, and the country has yet to pass through an exciting agitation for the extirpation in which we will need all the aid and strength of principle and right which the Anti-Slavery Society can muster. Nominally the negroes of the South are free; but as yet they have no political rights, and until they are thoroughly enfranchised they cannot be said to be really free.

The National Anti-Slavery Society was the pioneer in the great work of abolishing slavery. It must now be pioneer work in securing to the slave just released from his shackles the political rights which belong to him as a man. This country will never be at rest, nor fairly in a position to invoke upon itself the blessings of Heaven, until the spirit of caste has been thoroughly exhumated, and all political distinctions on account of skin abolished. When we have done for the negro all that he needs, the slave will have ceased for disbanding the Anti-Slavery Society, and not till then.

An Escaped Slave Invited to Return to Tennessee.

Rev. J. W. LOGUEN, of Syracuse, who escaped from slavery in Tennessee in 1835, has been invited to return to his native State by a clergyman of Nashville. His daughters have been solicited to accompany him, to engage in teaching. The letter to Mr. LOGUEN contains the following language: "On your part the way is open for you to return to your native State. Tennessee is free. I repeat, it is free State. I would be very glad to see you in our city, and to partake of its hospitalities; and I hope you will come and see us; and also that you may have a chance to see your mother. This is not the only invitation that Mr. LOGUEN has received. Five years ago his former masters, addressed him by his old slave name of Jerm, demanded of him one thousand dollars for himself, besides pay for a horse that he had employed to aid in his escape. Mr. LOGUEN aided, and was indicted for aiding in the rescue of Jerry, in Syracuse, in 1851."

INTERNAL REVENUE DECISION.—REFUNDING OF FERTILIZERS.

—Where fertilizers have been purchased by a farmer, the amount expended therefor, (if the fertilizer were applied to the land in the year of its ,) should be deducted as part of the expense of producing, in estimating income.

THE RETURNING SOLDIERS.

A dispatch yesterday spoke of the march of fifty thousand of the victorious veterans, who fought under GRANT and SHERMAN, through the streets of Richmond on their way home. A spectacle at once so morally and so martially grand, has rarely if ever been witnessed. The transition from citizen soldiers to soldier citizens is thus going on; and these brave men will scatter to their respective homes and take their places as they were before they went out. Their coming will make glad thousands upon thousands of hearts. They will be honored while they live, and their memories will be revered and cherished in after generations. Make room for them at the hearthstone and in the walks of peaceful industry; and in every proper way let their countrymen show that they are grateful for the service they have rendered to the country. Some will come safe and sound, some maimed, some broken in constitution, and, alas! thousands will never come, and thousands of the resting places of the good, the brave and the beloved will never be known. But though their mortal remains repose in undiscovered graves, their memories will long be cherished in the home circles, and coming generations will honor them as the saviors of their country.

"When this war is over," said the lamented General REDS to his soldiers before the march into the Wilderness, "and you go home, you will be received with shouts, and hosannahs and tears of joy; you will be honored and cherished as men never were before in the world; your children and children's children, to the farthest generation will make it their proudest boast that their fathers fought in this great and holy war. You will found families in the land; the highest in the land will be proud to say, 'My ancestor served in the great war.' And if we die on the field of battle, as many of us must, do you think we shall be forgotten? Ah, don't believe it! When the war is over, be sure every smallest incident of its history will be traced, every name will be recorded, every brave deed will be searched out, and for a century to come, your trials, your sufferings, your constancy and bravery will be the chosen theme of the most finished scholars, and the greatest writers our country produces. No act of ours will escape the vigilence of that multitude of busy writers, who will, in every State and in every town, search out our names and the story of our service, to make them known to the nation which will call us fathers of a redeemed country, the soldiers of a greater revolution. Ah, it is a proud thing to fight in this war!

Obdurate Still.

A rebel citizen of a neighboring county told a member of the Legislature a few days ago that his neighborhood were rejoicing over the prospect of an early removal of the Federal troops from their midst, and that there would be an uprising of the oppressed people of Tennessee within thirty days to drive the illegal, and unauthorized Legislature now sitting here, from the city. We have every reason to believe from various indications in this city, and elsewhere, that disturbers of the peace, members probably of a secret order, are working at this time with redoubled activity to effect a complete revolution in Tennessee, and restore the old pro-slavery dynasty. The man who dreams of peace in this State, without the aid of a strong military force, is wilfully blind to unmistakeable indications of trouble. The spirit of treason is only temporarily quelled, not crushed. Traitors are not only not impoverished in Middle Tennessee, but accumulate wealth and aspire to political power. We have the testimony of several gentlemen of the highest character natives of this State, and citizens of it all their lives, that the men who voted the State out of the Union in 1861, confidently expect to regain their supremacy, and make existence intolerable to Tennessee to all who have been devoted to the National cause.—Nashville Times.

The remedy is easy and simple. Disfranchise the Rebels and their sympathizers and enfranchise the loyal negroes. If this is not done, the very thing dreaded by the Times will happen sooner or later. The Union men of Tennessee have no guarantee of safety so long as they leave political power in the hands of their enemies and withhold it from their friends. If "self-preservation is the first law of nature," its instincts should teach the loyal Tennessean to stand firmly by their friends, the negroes. Let them give the colored men votes, and they may then dismiss all fears of the rebel sympathizers resuming power.

The Reaction South.

The late Mr. Chittenden said to a friend of ours two or three years since, that the people of the north need not give themselves any trouble as to what should be done with the leaders of the rebellion when the war ceased. The people of the South, he said, will take that matter out of their hands. While the fighting lasts, while passions are at a red heat, they will go with the leaders; but when the war ends, when the excitement is over, and they shall see what utter desolation and ruin they have brought upon them, the reaction will come, and woe to the guilty authors of their miseries.

This prophecy has been fulfilled, so far as the army of Johnson is concerned, in which we were told by the telegraph on Friday the men had begun to beat and kill their officers. The privates express feelings of intense disgust and contempt for the persons who have led them into a frightful distress, and with difficulty are their hands kept from the throats of those they once cheerfully obeyed. Not among the soldiers only, but the civilians as well, is this feeling prevalent. An officer of Sherman's staff informs us that throughout North Carolina, so far as his observation extended, thousands of people, once secessionists, now excoriate the name of DAVIS and his compeers. This hatred will grow with time, until it will be altogether impossible for any active agent of the insurrection to live at the South.—N. Y. Evening Post.

Obituaries.

HENRY PROPERTY CONFISCATED IN NEW JERSEY.—The United States District Attorney, Mr. A. Q. Keasbey, obtained a decree yesterday, confiscating the slave property found in Bergen township, Hudson county, owned by Matthew J. Buchanan the rebel naval agent in England. This Buchanan commanded the famous Alabama when she was brought out of Liverpool to commence her depredations on the commercial fleets. It is also connected with the Laird's, and has something to do with the building of the pirate in question. It appears that he had attempted to convey the land through our consul in Liverpool, Thomas H. Dudley, who immediately sent information of the proceeding to Mr. Keasbey, and the purpose was stopped in a summary manner, the land being seized before the power of attorney authorizing its transfer had reached his agent in this country.—Newark Daily Advertiser, May 9.

A ROMANCE.—Miss Muloch, the authoress of "John Halifax, Gentleman," was married at Bath, on the 28th ult., to Mr. Craig, of Glasgow. The STORY runs that this gentleman, who is much younger than the authoress, was a year or two ago the victim of a railway accident, by which he lost a leg. When taken to a hotel he was insensible, and the people, finding about him the address of Miss Muloch, sent for that lady, who, recognising a youth whom she had known as a boy, nursed him tenderly. The denouement may be imagined.

NEARLY one-half of the city of Bucharest has been submerged by a rise in the Dimbowitza, a rivulet so unimportant in size that it can be easily forded in the dry summer at slowest any part, but this spring so swollen by the enormous masses of snow which fell in February that it seemed like another Danube.

THE latest news from Cuba represents that Gen'l Garfield has perfectly recovered from his wound, and walks freely without limping, though he still uses a cane. The General is surrounded by the members of his family.

A TRANSPLANTATION.—The peach originally was a poisonous almond. Its fleshy parts were then used to poison arrows, and was for this purpose introduced into Persia. The transplantations and cultivations, however, not only removed its poisonous qualities, but produced the delicious fruit that we now enjoy.

Our Next U. S. Senator.

ED. GAZETTE:—The public mind begins to be exercised with reference to the selection of a suitable person to represent this section of the Commonwealth, in the U. S. Senate, upon the expiration of the term of Hon. Edgar Cowan. Already, the politicians of the "Eastern slope" are trimming their sails with the intention of selecting the Senator from their section, while they will magnanimously yield to the Western district the Governor!

It may be well enough to let our sturdy Republicans of this part of the Commonwealth speak out in time. We have conceded much to our friends of the Eastern division; but the West claims the right to select a Senator to succeed Mr. Cowan, because the East already has the other Senator; and we shall in due time insist upon a Western man for Governor, also, because the East has monopolized the candidates for that position for several years. Philadelphia is not the State of Pennsylvania, nor are all the Republican voters in the counties upon the Eastern slope, as an examination of the returns of late elections will show.

Insisting upon our claims, therefore, to present a suitable candidate for U. S. Senator to succeed Mr. Cowan, allow me to present a name not unknown to fame. In the political record of the Hon. Thomas Williams, now representing the XIIIth Congressional District, we have assurances of a representation in accord with the political sentiments of the great mass of the Republican party of Pennsylvania, and of whose power, integrity and zeal they have had ample assurance. Intellectually, Mr. Williams has no superiors, and few equals. Whether at the bar, or in the public forum, as the great popular leader of the people; whether standing up alone, as the self-appointed champion of popular rights; in the Legislature of the State, boarding the lion in his den; in the broader sphere of national legislation, in the midst of the gravest questions which have ever engaged the minds of statesmen, Mr. Williams has ever stood out in bold relief as a man of mark—an intellectual giant, whose incorruptible integrity has never been questioned, and whose ability has ever been acknowledged. Mr. Williams is not a politician. He is not an adept in caucus, nor is he sufficiently pliable to meet the views of cliques or cabals. But he is known by the honest masses of the people as their trusty friend, and they will sustain him, because he has struggled for them. He would be an ornament to the Senate, where giants in intellect have heretofore held sway, and he would fairly and ably represent a constituency which has not for some years, been represented in the Senate of the United States. ALPHA.

THE GREAT PURIFIER.
HEMAPANAKA.
Since the introduction of medicine, the origin of disease has undergone both the subject of more serious and scientific consideration by the most learned of the profession than any other measure with the laws of the Great Creator; not a few have contended that all diseases have their origin in the stomach; others, the solids of the body; others again, and by far the greatest number, contend and reason that the BLOOD itself is the very fountain of life—that if it becomes impure, then disease in its worst forms—Scrofula, Cancer, Ulcers, &c., appear, and in order to cure these diseases we must purify the blood by purifying the blood and thereby effecting their eradication and cure, proves the to be the true theory of acting upon which theory, the medicine now known as HEMAPANAKA, was compose and brought into operation, producing the most surprising results.

It has been extensively used in almost every section of the country, and has given perfect satisfaction in every case, and has proved itself the most SCIENTIFIC AND EFFECTIVE PURIFIER

Ever yet discovered, and is recommended by PHYSICIANS, CLERGYMEN, and PUBLIC MEN, as the GREAT PURIFIER, and will cure SCROFULA, CANCER, ULCERS, SALT RHEUM, LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, RHEUMATISM, GENERAL DEBILITY, &c., &c., &c.

So sure to give, from the time it is first taken, some symptoms to the patient, by exciting such a change for the better, that the good it is about to accomplish. It was thought best to put it up for sale in 50c. and $1 per bottle, although it was supposed the $1 was enough, but we often observed in the experiments on the trial here can be made at a moderate outlay, to satisfy the purchaser that the article is what is claimed for it to be, that the greatest BLESSING, SUCH, FOR SCROFULA, before the people. Delicate Females will find it to be precious.

That the public may form some idea of its efficacy in curing scrofula, we subjoin a list of the principal articles of which it is composed; with a full description of the uses and adaptation of each, from the highest authority known to medical science:

HONDURAS SARSAPARILLA

Is used with a beneficial effect in cases of Rheumatism, Scrofulous Affections, Cutaneous Diseases and other depraved conditions of health.

DANDELION

Is used in Chronic Inflammation of the Liver, Jaundice, and Affections of the Kidneys. It has a powerful effect upon the Liver, carrying it when languid, to exertion. It has been much used in Germany in diseases of the digestive organs.

IODIDE POTASSIUM.

There are few diseases in which it has not proved beneficial; it is used in Scrofulous Affections with great benefit; it is also beneficially employed as a solvent in treatment for inflammation of the Eye. It generally increases the appetite and health.

LAVENDER FLOWERS.

Are aromatic, tonic, and highly invigorating cases of Nervous Debility.

WINTER GREEN

Is especially valuable in cases of Scrofula or Constitution.

CHAMOMILE FLOWERS

Are advantageously used in cases of Enteritis (Ileus), but are especially applicable to cases General Debility with weak digestion.

MEZEREON BARK.

Is also favorably as an alterative in Chronic Affection, Chronic Rheumatism and obstinate Diseases of the Skin.

The balance of the formula is withheld as a professional privilege.

OHIO RIVER BRIDGE.—Notice is given, that on MONDAY, THE 8th DAY OF MAY, 1865, the Holliday's Cove Railroad Company will, under the authority of its charter from the Legislature of Virginia, and under the Act of Congress, erecting the Ohio River Bridge at Steubenville a lawful structure, commence the elevation of the channel span of said Bridge, and for this purpose, it will be necessary temporarily to obstruct three hundred feet designed as a channel way.

Attention of persons engaged in navigation, is called to the provisions of the second section of the Act of Congress: "Therefore and crews of all vessels and boats navigating said river are required to regulate the use of their said vessels and boats, and of any piers or chimneys, belonging thereto, so as not to interfere with the erection, construction and use of said Bridge."

All persons are also notified that the span next west of the channel span is only sixty feet above low water mark of 56 feet below low water, and there is a water way of two hundred feet between the piers.

All persons are notified further that the bridge is erected without a draw, and that all the regulations of the Act of Congress have been complied with by the company.

The erection of the channel span will be proceeded with as rapidly as possible and notice will be given as to the time when the obstructions will be removed.

UNITED STATES
7-30 LOAN.
The sale of the first series of $200,000,000 of the 7-30 Loan was completed on the 31st of March, 1865. The sale of the second series of Three Hundred Millions, payable three years from the 15th day of June, 1865, was begun on the 1st of April. In the short space of forty days, over One Hundred Millions of this series have been sold—leaving this day less than Two Hundred Millions to be disposed of. The interest is payable semi-annually in currency on the 15th of December and 15th of June, by Coupons attached to each bond, which can readily be cashed at any Bank.

It amounts to

One cent per day on a	$50 note.

MORE AND MORE DESIRABLE.

The Rebellion is suppressed, and the Government has already adopted measures to reduce expenditures as rapidly as possible to a peace footing, thus withdrawing from the market an borrowed money and purchasers.

This is the ONLY LOAN IN THE MARKET now offered by the Government and constitutes the GREAT POPULAR LOAN OF THE PEOPLE.

The Seven-Thirty Notes are convertible on their maturity, at the option of the holder, into

U. S. 5-20 Six Per Cent
GOLD BEARING BONDS,
which are always worth a premium.

FREE FROM TAXATION.

The 7-30 Notes cannot be taxed by Towns, Cities, Counties or States, and the interest is not taxed, unless on a surplus of the owner's income exceeding six hundred dollars a year. This fact increases their value from one to three per cent. per annum, according to the rate levied on other property.

SUBSCRIBE QUICKLY.

Less than $200,000,000 of the Loans authorized by the last Congress are now in the market. This amount, at the rate at which it is being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within two months. When the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans. It now seems probable that no considerable amount beyond the present series will be offered to the public.

In order that the citizens of every town and section of the country may be afforded facilities for taking the loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Bankers throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions on commission. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which they receive orders.
