It is simply tolet their lands out to any one, black or while, who may wish to engage in such employment, at a certain amount of the product per acre, or por bale, if the article talsed's cotton. One planter at the mouth of Red River, who has six thousand acres to rent'in this way proposes to retain to the state as a compensation for this land, and forginning the cotton a small amount additional, which will bring the price up to about one third of the crop—the same propertion as that charged for all corn lands in other sections of the country. This method has proved successful everywhere else, and there is one reason why cotton culture and the southern part of the coun-try should be an exception." Emperor: We have always been in favor of him gince we metsjiim near London, many years ago, and thought him a vory modest man. On that occasion-predicting the revolution of 1848 in France-we inquired of him what he should do under certain cir-cumstances, and he replied that he was in the hands of derivey. This marked him as a modest man, ind predisposed us in his fa-yor. Since then he has shown himself incan, generous, plous, wicked, a perfect rascal, a perfect gentleman, a genuine scoun-drel and a first rate Emperor. These con-tradictions in his character have plqued our curiosity and excited our interest; conse-quently we have made him the subject of careful study, ard we now thoroughly ma-derstand his policy.
