Anort twenty of the delegates from the Hritish provinces to Detroit made a brief visit to St. Louis, and were handsomely entertained at the time. Thus the principal of the debt would remain the same—not diminished to the amount of a single dollar—but the annual interest would be reduced to the amount of twenty-five to thirty millions.

It is very probable that in ten years from this time the rate of interest upon a considerable portion of the debt will be reduced to five per cent, or even less, by this process of refunding, that is, taking up old bonds bearing high rates, by the issue of new ones at lower rates. In this way the debt may be kept stationary in amount, or "permanent," as Mr. Cooke has it, and was awarded the first prixe-a large silver medal—as the International Skow, held at Stettin, Prussia, a few weeks since "as the best sewing machine for all ordi-nary purposes,"—Hous Journal, June 23th . The general opinion amongst those who have taken the pains to inform themselves on the subject is, that the distillation before the war amounted to an average of seventy millions of gallons, and that it may be now safely set down at one hundred millions for the future, and this estimate saji thinks, sustained by the returns made during the fall and winter previous to the passage of the present law.

When he talks of keeping the debt permanent, he does not mean that these present bonds shall rum on beyond their own express limitations, but simply, that the national finances shall be managed as above indicated.

But is it possible to render a national debt like ours a national blessing—a source of strength, stability, prosperity and progress? Mr. Cooke says it is, and we are somewhat inclined to agree with him. But how is it to be managed? By keeping the bonds at least of the property of the bonds at least of the property of the community of the property of the bonds at least of the property of the property of the bonds at least of the property of the bonds at least of the property of the pr from experience there, that no augmentation of the tax has ever had the slightest effect upon the consumption or distillation. At this estimate, however, the single article of distilled spirits ought to pay into the Treasury a sum more than sufficient to meet the whole interest on our public debt. Add to it a reasonable excise on cotton and tobacco, and with the duties on foreign importations superadded, we may very soon afford, I think, to dispense with the thousand and one items of revenue that are only a source of versation and annoyance to the people without any corresponding returns.
