OUR PARIS LETTER.

Cerrespondence of the Pittaburgh Gazetta. PARIS, FRIDAY, July 14th, 1865. A good deal of attention has been attracted their by a correspondence published in the French papers between Lord Cowley and Lord Russell. A short time previously the Fairs had contained a mysterious paragraph, significant of its old Southern tendencies, to the effect that "France Routhern tendencies, to the concession of the control of the contr From the well known sympathies of the above sion of the moment. You may judge, therefore, that the surprise was considerable and the satisfaction not great when, by the correspondence above alieded to between the British Foreign Minister and the British Ambassador at Paris, it was made to appear that the right accorded to and which so justly aroused Mr. Seward's reand almost stipulated for by the French Foreign Minister, M. Drouva do L'Huva. At least Lord Cowley, writing to Lord Russell on the Sist of May, are that the French Minister "suggested" this as a "slight further concession to Confederate reasels." while he himself supported the view that such vessels belonged absolutely to the United States Government. Lord Russell, writing back in reply to this French suggestion, admits that the English Grown lawyers recognized the claims of the American authorities to these vessels. Nevertheless, with strange inconsistency, and in compliance it would seem with this French suggestion, in his dispatch to Sir Fr.Bruce on the subject, Lord Rusself authorizes the said disarmanent, at the risk, it is true, of the parties effecting it and without the privilege of the twenty-four hour's start. The British Minister, in short, while authorizing the Iransection, leaves the risk of it to the transference of the ways. But the offish proposition of "sale and disarmanent" came from the French Minister; also that the American people may estimate aright the action of the parties towards themselvies, I have thought it desirable to call attention to the above facts.

European pohiles would be a dead letter as surn at this sesson, were there not a rounce.

towards themselves, I have thought it destrable to call stention to the above facts.

European politics would be a dead letter as usual at this season, were there not a rumor afficial of the Emperor's intention to revive the question of a Pence Congress. At present, however, the report is vague, traceable to no authorized source, and flastly contradicted in a semi-cofficial tone; by La-France. I myself attribute as faith to it. In fact, the hopp of a revived acommercial intercourse with America: is just now far more prominent in the French mind than any political question. How can one wonder that such should be the case. Casting my eye the other day over some recent official returns of French commerce; I was able to appreciate the effects of the late tunble in America upon this country. The exports of French allies alone to America; which amounted to one hundred and three millions in 1800, had failen to twenty-three millions in 1800, had failen to french exports to the United Estates had decreased in the same three years from two hundred to huntry-four millions. of French exports to the United States had decremed in the same three years from two hundred to ninety-four millions! Stimulated by the Treaty of Commerce with England, the French manufacturers have made prodigious progress of late and look forward to compete successfully with England in the new outlet opened to them try the return of peace. Every-effort is being made to organize the Havre, Brest and Now York line of steamers on the most complete footing. The calculation is that the voyage to Brest should be performed within ten days. The Europe did it lately in nine days and seventeen hours. Thence an express train will take on passengers and dispatches in twelve hours to Peria. There will soon be five first-rate steamers on the line, of which the Napoleon III. will be of 1,200 horse power.

Many of its stations throughout the South have already been removed, as our armies have been disbanded and sent home, but still there is a very large and useful field for their supervision; in those parts of the country where troops are still stationed. Almost all the Eastera branches have been withdrawn, most of these remaining being in the West and Southwest. St. Louis is the headquarters for the latter section, while St. Paul, Minnessta, is used as a base for operations among the soldiers who are engaged against the Indians.

There are also yet stationed at Nashville, Louisville, &c., but orders have been sent to most of these to dispose of the surplus articles on hand, and forward the proceeds to the general fund, which is hardly sufficient even now to meet the Cemmids made upon it from all quarters. Persons have eccased contributing to the Cemmission now that the war is over, and it requires the greatest economy of its resources to carry on the important work it has on hand.

The Commission is engaged in getting up what they call "floan libraries"—little bookcases nicely furnished and holding one hundred and twenty-fire volumes, which are sent to all the military stations throughout the United States, with the simple condition of requiring a monthly report of the number read. They contain not only religious books, but volumes of history, of travel, of fletion, and many standard works. Something like iwo hundred of these have been already sent out, and flily more are nearly ready.

In addition to these, over one hundred libraries, of second hand books have been furnished. Some of the facts connected with those are very interesting, and it is the intention of the Commission at the close of its work to publish two volumes, giving an account of its doings. One of these is to be a bistory of its whole work, to be written by the Home Secretary, while the other volume will contain the various incidents, bumorous and pathetic, which has come under i

This paper, which was lately suppressed for seditious is nguage, was issued again on the 21th by the same editor and proprietors. Not at all cured of their rebillions propensities, they say in their first issue:

That it may be per mitted to live unmolected for many s year come, is our fervent hope. That we should be allowed absolute and perfect freedom of discussion on all subjects in the heavens above, or the earth beneath, is the dearest wish and aspiration of our hearts. But as that, it seems, cannot be, we shall endcavor to do the best we can, under the embarrassing and harrassing eircumstances that surround us. If we fail to give free and independent uncernate to the opinions we entertain and the convictions we chrish, we desire the good people of Virgioja to understand, that it is no fault of ours. "Cribbed, cabined and confined," as it is our unfortunate lot to be, we cannot expect to make up a paper salisfactory to ourselves or acceptable to the public, and the generous people of Virginia, we are sure, will not only sympathize with our situation, but extend to us and to the Whig all the "aid and comfort" in their power, during the continuance of the restrictions which the military antharities have seen fit to impose upon us. With these hints, we have only to ask our friends in clty, and country to lend us the light of their constemances, as in the batter and brighter days of yore, and we trust to do for them as well as can be expected—under the cirgurstages." At sundown last evening, Jeff, was allowed to take fresh air by a promenade on the ramparts of the fort. Major Gen, Miles walked on one side of him and the officer of the gnad on the other. Davis teamed on the arm neither, and walked alone, firm and creet, and very unlike an invalid. The evening was participately line, and Davis seemed to enjoy the quiet squast excenc. To guard against the possibility of an attempted escape, a lamp is kept burning all night in his cell. Against this light, Jeff, entered a protest, but the light was kept burning despite the demurs of the prisoner; and that was the pet grievance for a little while. Then his leading questions on the present state of the country size not answered, and that makes Jeff, querrulous. LARGE AMOUNTS OF COTTON IN THE COUNTRY New York, July 27 .-- A Vicksburg correspondent says: Judge Sharkey is now at work organizing the Courts of Judiciary as fast as possible. Wherever civil functions have not been disturbed throughout the State he has reinstated the old occupants, and called upon them to qualify themselves by taking the oath and resuming their duties. One of the best works of Judge Sharkey is to abridge the power and abuses of for military officers to entertain civil causes and small judgments in matters where they had small judgments in matters where they had neither right nor law to stand on. This is now being stopped.

Another iniquitous echeme has been frastrated by this appointement. Some office-holders, trade agents, contractors, and others, generally of northern birth, had concotted a scheme whereby a military Governor was to be appointed, and in furtherance of their purpose, General Davidson had illicitly endeavored to get control of the newspapers in this place and Natches, but the echeme has been handsomely thwarted. The natural prosperity of the State is gaining ground. Since the close of the war, the farmers and planters are cashing about to do something.

and planters are casting about to do something. Cotton, of which there are still small lots in the country, is coming in quite freely. Several hundred bates have come from Yazoo alone. There is but very little cotton growing on the shores of the Mississippi, in consequence of the overflow, and there is none in the interior. The Red river, Ounchita and their tributary streams are being drained of immense amounts of cotton.

are being drained of immense amounts of cetton.

Persons from Shreveport and the northern part of Texas say there is a large amount of cetton in the country. As soon as the railroad communication is restored large lots of cotton will come to merket from Pearl river.

Cars are now running regalarly from Jackson to Corinth, to Lenstavis, and to Meridian, eastward from Vicksburg to Big Black bridge, where a line of stages is running to Jackson.

Cincinnati, July 27.—Gen. Sherman left here ing, and the bride exhibited to his Honor a marsueps to pisces with which they had been pre-viously familiar, but at all events the fond couple, with one of the associates of the bride, paid the visit. The young man has doubtless marritd hastily, and he will therefore have am-ple time in which to repent.

Death from Intemperance. rief mention of whose case we gave in our evening paper, and who was lying at the watchnouse during all of yesterday in a very critical condition from the effects or intemperance, died physician in attendance, did everything which medical skill could suggest, to restore him, but without avail. He was assisted in his ministrawithout avail. He was assisted in his ministrations by several of the Mayor's police. The body was ceffined by undertiker Dayore, end will be removed to his office, on Grant street, this morning, where of inquest will be held.

The deceased appears to be a stranger, and no one as yet has been able to identify him, or give only information concerning him. He was a stout man, of shout jorty years of ago, baldheaded, wore a moustache and imperial, and is believed to be a returned coldier, although his appearance would indicate him to be amechanic.
He had in his presented at the succession of the authorities to have the remains respectably interred in Hilldalg

Feath of a North Carolinian in Pittsburgh.

Penth of a North Carolinian in Pittsburgh. John Weaver, of Burke county, North Carolina, died yesterday at his boarding house in the Ninth Ward, from lockjaw. Weaver was im-Ninth Ward, from lockjaw. Weaver was impressed into the rebel survice in North Carolina, and seryed about nine months in the Confederate army. He then descreted and came within the Federal lines. For some time he has been in the employ of the Fennsylvania Railroad Company as a brakeman. Last week, while in the neighborhood of Florence station he stumbled and fell with his hand upon the track, when a moving train took off two of his fingers. Modical aid was summoned at once, but was unavailing. He died yesterday, He had not heard from his parents since he entered the robel service. This paragraph may meet the eye of an acquaintance, who will convey the sad tidings to his former home.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, with their usual generosity, largely contributed, if not altogether defrayed the expenses of the functal and the proprietor of the boarding house intered him with as much respect as if he had been a son.

Hemicide in Lancaster County. On Saturday evening last a shooting afficay occurred at Mountville, Lancaster county, which resulted in the death of a returned soldier. of the 20th Pennsylvania Cavalry, named John Hogerdobler. There appears to have been some lil-feeling between Hogerdobler and Wm. Bookman, the homelede, arising out of some love affair. On Sunday evening, Bookman drove into the village, and hitched his horse in front of a tayen. Shortly after Hogerdobler drove past in a buggy, having with him two women who were the original cause of the silf feeling. In passing Bookman's carriage Hogendobler's vehicle care in contact with it breaking the wheel. The latter drove on, but shortly after returned through the village, when Bookman ordered him to stop. This he refused to do, when Bookman tows revolver, fired and shot flogendobler through the head, from the effects of which he died on the following morning. Bookman surrendered himself to the authorities and was lodged in Jali. Hogerdobler. There appears to have been some

A period of four months had clapsed, and almost every one else who had friends in the battle had heard of what became of them. Some had been driven to Libby Prison, some to Andersonville; while others had been sent to hespitals and from thence to battle sgain, but many—very many had died; but the widow and family had given up all hope of ever hearing anything of Aim. At length the notice caught the eye of laddy who knew the diffressed family. The widow sent for a copp of the pictures, compared it with the originals, and thereby, in a corner of the State of New York (five hundred miles from the city,) the mother and children were made acquainted with the fifte of their loved one. The family were in abject powerty; their neighbors were supporting them From the sale of the photograph from the ambrotype likeness, they were soon made comfortable. The Minstrela.—But two more intertainments will be given in this city by Daprez and Green's Minstrels. Therefore all who are ideal rous of zeeing them should make their arrangements at once. The liberal patronage which has been extended to them still continues, and they arem to draw as full houses at the close of their season of three weeks as they did at the commencement. The bill offered is repleted with "gcod things," and as the managers are liberal adveitsers, programmes may be obtained readily any where and everywhere. Secure one, and you cannot resist the temptation of paying a visit to their excellent entertainments. Conferee Election.-The Union Represen Conferee Election.—The Union Representative Conferees from the district compact of the counties of Indiana and Westmoreland, met at the Everett House, Blairwille, on the 25th, and elected George E Smith, of Indiana county, and James R. McAfee and James McElroy; of Westmoreland county, nominees for the Legislature, and also ratified the nomination of James Alexander as representative delegate to the State convention from Indiana county. The conference declared taking any action in regard to the two sets of delegates appointed from Westmoreland county.
