It was not mere falle lequacity that reindered at leaders to fixsome to the stateman, but chiefly his patiotic anciety about the Republic. He dealered to express his kind about; the condition of the country, to failfill the official duties—as Secretary of Bate. The attending physicians had problicited speaking even before the attempted assassination, but to express his thoughts by writing was also impracticable, as his right arm yeas broken. But as soon as the condition of his fractured bones would allow; the medical genitemen had to bandage and fasten the upper third of the arm (where the fracture cristed,) so sis to enable him to use the lower part, and the hand for writing. In this manner he converted wifth the President during the hat days of that amenical functionary's life. The President would sit at his bedside and express himself on the exciting questions of the day, when Seward would write his views of a falte. In the same manner he conducted his interviews, before and after the assassination, with Mr. Homer, the Assistant Secretary of State, and thus actually conducted the affairs of the Department of State, the papers, dispatches, documents, etc., of which had to be carried to his bedside even during the critical periods of his linear.

It was the same patriotic restlessness and activity of Mr. Saward which provailed on the physicians to send for a khillful physician of New York, who arranged an artificial wire apparatus in his mouth, which enabled him to speak without risk, even before his jewbone was healed. This apparatus caused the illustrious patriot at first excruitating pains, and at one time became displaced, so that the New York physician had to be carried to his degraphed in order to replace it. stronger than the opposing principle of State rights. We how to it as RES ADJUDICATA; and rights. We bow to it as his Anti-Diegra, and the NEXT battle that is fought on the re-opened question will not begin in the South or be fought on Southern soil. We have made our bloody libition to a doctrine we believed vital to a true, enlightened and permanent freedom. We have lost the battle and "thrown up the sponge." Alabama has lost her sovereignty in the Issue. So has New York. Georgia has lost hers. So has New York. Georgia has lost hers. So has Oho. It is way well for Mr. Vallandigham to continue to talk about "State Rights" in the presence of the mighty revolution which has just swept over the Government of our fathers but who can concaive of a practical value and vitality in State rights, when the word has just now bloodily preclaimed that there is no such thing as State Remadies."

Harpen's Weekly, containing a good like Maliborville—in a recent trip to the capital of Georgia we were agreeably disappointed in the appearance of the piace and the number of its inhabitants. From reports we had expected to find it desolate, and to see nothing but black and charred ruins in place of stately residences. But little damage was done to the town proper by the lawading army of Sherman. The people are quietly adapting themselves to circumstances, and are not inclined to despair of the future. Sensible regulations have been made by the military authorities with regard to the freedmen, and little trouble is anticipated in the future. The Governor's mansion will be occupied by ex-Governor Brown. Governor Johnson's family, we understand, will remain in Columbus. Governor Brown is recovering from his recent attack of fever, and is now able to sit up. In addition, the bundle contained a large number of allk cravats of an elegant patchen, one half of kind and a pair of buckkin gloves, one silk and two or three cambric handkerchiefs, two obserts of collars and other small articles. These goods evidently were stolen from a furnishing or ciothing store. They may be seen at the Mayor's office by any person having lost anch articles. It would seem that these roberdes are the work of a gang of burglars banded together for the purpose of carrying on their nefarious occupiation. It is to be hoped that the efforts of the 'police may prove successiff in bringing the midnight plunderers to justice.
