OUR PARIS LETTER.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.

Paris, Tuesday, July 25, 1865.
This day the public subscription opens for the new city loan of two hundred and fifty millions, and the fact is almost the only one which affords as a topic of conversation or imparts some detion. The subscription, however, has been going on for some time previous at the various money-changers, before whose windows the rich prizes of this municipal lottery have been hang-lies; in tempting array 'as a sort of bait to the small fry of the population. Apparently the desired effect has been produced, for the crowd assembled before the doors of these agents was everywhere great and eager; and though their offerings were not very large, yet numbers, mus soon swell the amount, and there can be littl doubt that the subscription will cover many times the required sum. Looking in at the Credit Mobilier, I found a vast concourse of people, chiefly belonging to the laboring classes paying, in to that establishment their savings t be invested in city stock. No doubt the prize offered (more than a million of france ever year) is the main cause of all this slacrity. Still, the way in which the people come forward to offer their meney to the city is a proof of great, excidence in the stability of the existing dist few weeks after the collapse of the rebellion state of things and must consequently be pleas. state of things and must consequently be pleasling to the government. For in all French revolutions the city revenues have been the first to suffer, and to suffer mest saverely, the duties from which they are mainly derived being essentially dependent upon public tranquility and the presence of a vast number of itch foreign sojourners in the capitol. The increasing personal popularity of the Emperor and Empress, which is unmistateable, is also another ground of confidence. The result, too, of the general musicipal-elections throughout the country has municipal elections throughout one county neajust cold elections throughout services and the last of the loan. These elections for the rereconstruction of the municipalities take place by universal suffrige, and the opposition had counted upon a great success and almost a popular demonstration azainst the local adminisout the country has trations at least, if not exactly against the gov trailons at least, if not exactly against the government litesif. The contrary, however, has proved to be the case. The returns, which are pouring in at every moment, show that the list candidates favored by the authorities has almost everywhere been carried. Only in one or two localities, such as Marsellies for instance, has the opposition list been wholly triumphant; and this result has been more remarkable because official influence has been more spaningly and cauliously need than has been the case in any previous elections. The Imperial government has evidently still a strong hold upon the imaginations of the masses.

previous elections. The Imperial government has evidently still a strong hold upon the imaginations of the masses.

The impression of a thoroughly good understanding being re-established between this country and the United Sates, coupled as it is with a renewal of commercial relations on a large scale are further grounds of public confidence. The Homiteur recently took occasion to speak on the most favorable terms of the state of things in America. The amnershy of President Johnson, it said, was now much better understood and appreciated, and his liberal use of the prerogative of pardon was highly commended. Also, the Moniteur remarked with great satisfaction, the humiteur remarked with great satisfaction, the humiteur remarked with great satisfactions, the humiteur remarked in a policy of the United Bates generally, and noticed that such questions as that of Mexico had almost coased to be agitated among them. Especially the official journal commended a "pelition" which it represented as being aigned just now by many of the principal merchanis of New York, in favor of the recognition of the Mexican empire. Certainty, nothing but such an act as the one alluded to is now required to draw as closely as ever the bonds of friendship which have so long united the prople and government of France and America, Tag great hope have is that the Cabinet of Washington may cred one find such recognition to be not inconsistent with the national interests and dignity.

necessary from the fact that the surrender of the Texas troops under the arrangement between Kirby Smith and Gen. Canby, was a complete swindle, those troops having been disbanded and sent to their homes, retaining their arms, before the Commissioners sent to confer with General Canby Arrived.

The surrender was carried out in good faith as far as it effected the Arkansas and Missouri troops. As a natural consequence there are large quantities of public horses and wagons scattered throughout the State, which it is the purpose of this order to collect together. The good effects of it are already to some extent apparent.

Fram Meyer, aged twenty three, and his wife Anna, aged bineteen, from Canton Soleure, Swizerland, were passengers in the ill-fated William Nelson, recently destroyed by fire at sea. In the confusion incident to the efforts to save life the husband and wife were separated. The husband was picked up by one of the ship's beate, which was soon failen in with by the brig Mercury. The wife, young and encient, was not discouraged at the uncertainty of her husband's fate, but prepared for her own, safety, Self-preservation could not suppress her woman's instincts so far as to ignore the, feeble cries for help from an infant only fourteen days old, left to perish by its distracted parents, but regardless of her own state, she plunged, with her self-imposed charge, into the sea. For two whole days did this brave young girl support herself and the infant on the remnant of a ship's spar, without food or water, sustaining the infant's life by the moisture from her own mouth!

Late on the second day the same vessel in which her husband was saved, having ceased cutaing, without hope of resculing more life, full in with this heroine, and saved her and her little tharge. Eventually the family were landed at Havre, France,
