The Firemen's Parade.

The annual parade of the Fire Department (or rather a portion of the Department) took place to day, and despite the unfavorable state of the weather, was a very creditable affair. Owing to the fact that only half the companies agreed to turn out, the interest manifested by the public was not so general, and the streets were not thronged as "in days gone by," when the firemen were more unanimous, and turned out in full strength. Then the morning opened very gloomily—the rain falling briskly just at the hour named for the meeting of the several companies. This caused considerable delay in starting, and it was nearly noon when the line of procession was formed. The companies assembled on Penn street, with the right resting on Marbury, and moved over the route of procession in the following order:

Columbia Hook and Ladder, of Allegheny.

This company, as the guests of the Allegheny, No. 2, of this city, took the lead in the procession. They numbered sixty men, and the uniform consisted of black pants, red flannel shirts, straw-colored hats, and belts of a similar color. The axemen, four in number, were distinguished by the blue velvet collars to their shirts, trimmed with silver lace. The truck, which was handsomely ornamented by evergreen arches, was drawn by four grays, with boys, neatly uniformed, as riders. The hose carriage looked well, the spool being covered with merino of the national colors. It was drawn by the company, who presented a creditable appearance.

Allegheny Steamer and Hose Carriage.

Eighty-one men turned out in this company, dressed in black coats and pants, fanciful red leggins, and red hats of the improved Eastern style. Each man also carried a handsome evergreen arches, was drawn by four grays, with boys, neatly uniformed, as riders. Man Drowned.—Coroner Clawson to-day held an inquest upon the body of a man named James Handlin, who was drowned last evening while carrying a bucket of water from the Monongahela river, near Everson and Preston's mill. The deceased had gone to the river with two buckets, had dipped one and set it upon the flat upon which he stood, and is supposed to have fallen in while dipping the other bucket. He was missed from home, and on search being made, his body was found in the water. Handlin was forty-five years of age, and leaves a wife and two children. He had served three years in the Sixth cavalry, and one year in the 11th Reserves. The jury found a verdict of accidental death.

Fatal Accident.—A man, whose name we did not learn, fell from a train last night, at the outer depot of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway, in Allegheny, and had both legs so badly smashed that he died soon after from the effects of his injuries. We understand that he resided in Allegheny.
