He had entered a room where a colored grif was sleeping, and while admiring her by "de light to be moon," she waked up and gave the alarm. It appears that his comrade, Washington, had entered another room, and placed a dress over the window for the purpose of darkenlag the room, and facilitating his pluedering operations, when the alarm in the adjoining room waked up the sleepers in this spartment and caused him to hasten out. A couple of policemen were sunnoned, and the two larks were toted off to the watch house. On searching Washington no less than three watches were found secreted in his boot legs and two in his pockets. Two of these watches were gold—one of them a fine and valuable time piece—and the others silver. Johnston had in his possession a silver watch. They had not stolen anything from the house, but their conduct indicates that they are both thieves—and bold operators at that. Washington is a "sharp nigger," and plead his own case with the cunving and skill of an experienced lawyer, cross-examining the witnesses, and making his points with legal accuracy. The principal witness against him was a woman who had seen him in the room. He asked her if she could swear positively as to his identity, and she replied that she could not, but the man she saw answered his general description. He claimed that this evidence was not sufficient, and argued that the could not be held to answer under such testimony, but the Mayor over-ruled that point, and in default of hell committed both him and his companion to jail for a time, in hopes that he may find an owner for some of the watches found upon them, and of the possession of which they can give no satisfactory account. Officer Cytras Elaly was assigned the task of preserving the peace there, but as yet he has not succeeded in getting the ruffians under subjugation. On Studay night he was roughly handled while making an arrest, and last night he was attacked by a fellow mamed Harkins, who attempted to draw a weapon upon him, but as the officer drew his revolver and fired, the ruffian took to his beels and made good his escape. Soon after, a crowd of excited men gathered around, and it being reported that the shot fired by the officer had struck a woman, several of the rowdlee present made this a pretent for seizing the cufficer. Getting him in their power, they dragged him to the river, and were making desperate of the river, and were making desperate of the whole neighborhood was alarmed, and the Mayor was sent for and visited the place. The police and ceeded in arresting three of the principal rowdles, John Oliver, John Launon, and William Oliver; but several others equally as bad, managed to escape. The three worthies above named were kept in the lock-up all night, and this morning, in default of a fine of twenty-five dollars each, were committed to juil for thirty days.

A clerk named Craig, in the employ of Messra. Chambers & Mathews, dry goods dealers in Washington, Pa., was recently suspected of piliering goods, and discharged on Saturday last. He at first became quite indignant, and demanded a reason for his discharge. He was told plainly that his honesty was doubted, atthough there was no proof of his guitt. On Sunday morning he called upon one of the firm, acknowledged that he had subscrited one hundred and fifty-six dollars from them, and with terns and capressions of sorrow, refunded the amount. This circumstance becoming known to Mr. Baird, Adams' Express agent, and recollecting that Craig had been in the habit of alipping packages of goods to a lady in Farkersburg, he made known the facts to the firm, who, by telegraphing to the Meeling, secured to last package shipped, which contained articles identified by Chambers & Mathews as their property. Craig had left in the meantime, but he was arrested at Canonamy, and finding the proof against him, clear and overwhelming he confessed to having stolar goods to the amount of $1,000 from Chambers & Mathews, and $2,500 from Mr. V. Harding, in whose employ he had been previously. He had $7,000 in Government bonds in his possession, and on making good the aboy's andomins he was good character, and by attending church and Sabbath schools, got credit amour honest peocous to the more per continued to the permitting so base a secondrel to go unwhipt of justice.
