Mrs. Hall is in the greatest distress, and being young and smong strangers, her case has excited the sympathy of all who have become cognizant of it. The proprietor of the hotel is doing everything in his power to obtain some clue as to the whereabouts of the missing man.

The last letter which Mrs. Hall received from her busband was dated New York, and written on the evening of the alleged murder. Since then she has heard nothing from him, and it is possible that (if he did not dictase the letter purporting to come from Abbot) he may have been made the victim of a hoax, and may yet turn up all right. The most reasonable explanation of the affair, however, is, that the Abbot letter was either written or dictated by Ball, and ipat he intends to leave his wife to take care of herself. During weenessay attenden a German stacked a vegro and knocked him down. The negro remonstrated, but finding remonstrates of no use he drew his fist act with a powerful blow illed Mynherr flat as a flounder. Just at this time Frank Wygant came along, and not liking to see a white man knocked down by a negro, drew a pistol and threatened to blow the head off him. The black man fled, and the row terminated. During the same afternoon, another disturbance was created at the same house—a nexro being seized and stripped of every stitch of othning, after which he was chased through the house, and finally excaped by failing through into the cellar. Two men spaced William Little and John Whalen were greeted and held to answer a charge of assant in the battery, preferred by this mian, and Wygabt was arrested and, flued twenty dollars and costs for disorderly conductive only the house, was arrested and held to answer a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

One ports that nearly everything was used to prove of stills, and a number of new stills, which had not been in use, were saved, together with a small lot of oil—but the principal portion of the works, fences, abeds, etc., were totally destroyed. The loss has not yet been estimated, but it is believed that the amount of insurance is sufficient to enable the company to rebuild the works. The company had numerous contracts for refined oil, and the loss from this source, as well as that occasioned by the stoppage of these works, will be very considerable. The origin of the dre is somewhat singular, as it caught from a lamp, sitting twenty feet distant from the building. The workmen state that they small the gas, which was yeary strong, and fearing to enter the works with a light the amp wasset down on the ground soms twenty feet distant. The sir was very heavy, and it is supposed that the gas, in spreading over the surface of the ground, came in contact with the lamp, and instantly communicated with the lamp, and instantly communicated with the works. There were six men about the establishment at the time, but they all escaped without injury. Had they not been apprehensive of danger, some of them would probably have been either injured or killed.
