I will only add that whether we consider the subject from a christian or mercantile standpoint, the civilization of Africa, is the greatest question before the world, equally interesting to statesame, capitalists and churches, and we of America have it in our power to do more at less cost of money or labor than all other people, for we have little more to do than to cease to opposes the African race among us, who would gladly go and do the work, at the same time remove a disturbing element from our society.

Your friend, Your friend,

Hon. John Cessna on the Issues of the Day. We take the following extract from the speech lelivered by Mr. Cessna in Philadelphia last Baturday evening:

Saturday evening:

The war is now over. The promises and pledges of our friends, made in 1864, have all been kept and fulfilled. Those of our political adversaries have all been dissipated, and proved hollow, delusive and faise. Thanks to the herolam, courage and skill of American soldiers, sallors and officers, and to the God of battles, our bation is saved and the good old republic of our fathers still lives. Beet peace has again spread her gentle wings over our once happy and still beloved land.

The sound of frumpets, the roar of cannon.
