Copt. Jacob H. Siegie, was the next speaker. He said he appeared as an "mer, over man "to fill in the time until those absorbed to address the meeting would arrive. Then he has all dressed a political meeting in Pittsburgh, siavery was the great question. No one thought the for finterfering with that inefficient in the States where it then existed, and the Prestdent of bounded that the rights of the Southern States, under the Constitution, would be protected. Talls he said seen after South Carolina and other States had would themselves on, of the Union, and asked them to come back, proof to Issaining his emancipation proclamation, Tao South were fold that if they rained the Issae, rebelled were told that if they raised the issue, rebeller against the Government, thry would be brought to judgment and excention—and a bloody execution it has been. The people of the North be divided. Thousands of the country shall never hand. to judgment and execution—and a bloody erectain in that here. The people of the North rose en mose and said this country shall naver be divided. Thousands of lives have been list, hundreds of millions of money spent; but the rebellion has been crushed. There were those in our milst who maked questions, said the Suth were too chivalrous, could not be subdaed, and that their cance was just. These mon are yet amongst us, still taking questions, but sleen Grant crushed, before Richmond, the egyshell of rebellion, they have sumswhat changed their time. They now talk about our great National dokt, taxation, dec. Shill those who encouraged the rebellion, and refused to take up arms, succeed in power like who said of the wear of the South are yet as great rebels as they were during the war. They were in extrest, and chicavored to break up the Union. They were overpowered and had to succend. If they had the power now, they would disrust the government. No single State, North or South, shall be fallowed to ru out of this Union, and we must prevent. Northern rebets, at least, from getting into power. Our National debt is the largest in the world, except that of England, and much more able to bear it. Our opponents would have the debt consolidated, end the interest on the bond-held by the people reduced. They would clos assume the consolidated, end the interest on the bond-held by the people reduced. They would file assume the consolidated, and then interest on the bond-held by the people reduced. They would sho assume the consolidated, and the interest on the bond-held by the people reduced. They would sho assume the consolidated, and the interest on the bond-held by the people reduced. They would sho assume the consolidated, and then interest on the bond-held by the people reduced. They would sho assume the consolidated, and then interest on the bond-held by the people reduced. They would sho assume the consolidated to the Union men r. main linactive, and without organization, defeat would follow. The time was short; but

We are in receipt of a copy of an address to all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors in the kyal States, from the "Boldiers' and Sailors' National Lague, of Washington City, D. C.," apparent importance of organizing leagues throughout the States, having for their object the maintenance of their rights and best later than and the fortune of the rights and best later. the maintenance of their rights and best later ests, and the fostering of that heroic spirit which led them forth to battle in a sacred cause, and the diffusing of those great particult ruths and lessons velved by the success of their offers. It is designed to call, at an early day a National Convention of soldiers and saffors, with a view to definitely determine the character, aims and object of the leanny, mould list form of government, and do other things towards its establishment upon a firm foundation. To this end "comrades" in every section of the country are urged to form themselve into leagues similar to that now in existence a noun soldiers and saffors temporarily residing at Washington. We learn that stop are about to be 'akee to organize a league in Pittsburgh, and we trust our boys who have doffed the "blue" and are engaged in peaceful pursuits at home, will enter into the matter with spirit.—Communications will be addressed to William Stringer, Esp., Corresponding Secretary, Soldiers' and Sailors' National League, Washington City, D. C. which led them forth to battle in a sacred cause,

Personal.—Mr. John Griffith, correspondent of the Weish Lewspaper, "The Baner Ac Amserian Symra," London, was on a virit to our city last week, and solourned with a few of his countrymen. He was in attendance at the trial of Marchall,, the murderer, and took great interest in the proceedings. Mr. G. has the opputation of being a very able correspondent, and will doubless write home his impressions concerning our smoky city and its institutions. We regret that his stay was so brief, and his opportunity for observation necessarily limited. thereto, between Marchall and Frecke, the murthereto, between Marchall and Frecke, the murderers, relative to thieving operations, implistated Richard Marchall, a brother of the one convicted last week, and it will be recollected shat officer George Culp, of the Mayor's police, was detailed to pro to New York and arrest the brother, it being learned that he resided there.
Officer 'Os. mission was unsuccessful; but, before starting on his return, he placed the warrant for the arrest in the hands of New York defective. Richard Marchall, doubtiess hearing of the arrest of his brother, keps out of the way, not going to his usual place of abode; but a few days gues he was appleaded a badde; but a few days gues he was appleaded in the city, in charge of two detectives, who delivered him over to the Mayor. He was locked by in the tombs.
It is scarcely probable that he had any connection with the murder. We understand, however, that he may be used as a winness against Frecke, in contradicting some of his statements about the proceedings in New York, and corroborating his brother; complession in some particulars. Richard Marchall is twenty-three years of age, unmarried, and bears a closs resemblance to his brother; cucepi in staters, not being more than of medium height. He says he was in this city, in July last, on a visit. Regardless of Cost.—For the next sixty days. H. Smith and Co., of Oak Hall, Clothing House, No. 63 Fith street, opposite the Opera House, announce that they will sell regardless of cost all; styles of seasonable clothing. Mr. Thomas Byrne, well and most favorably known in the business, has the superintendence of the establishment, and customers will find him a most dashle and fair dealing gentleman in all his transactions. The conversation at the breakfast table, with which the volume opens, is a good specimen of the insignificant matters which so frequently give rise to family foods. Our anthor enaumerates twenty infelicities and four folicities, which, in the present state of society is about the average—one in every five. Of course this only applies to such families as are the accuse of strife and confusion. It may seem strange that such a state of domestic misery should produce laughter, yet, we think few can read the volume without having their risible faculties considerably exercised.

The Case of Auguste Freeke.

In Court this (Saturday) morning District Attorney Kirkpatrick amounced that he would call up on Wednesday sext, the case of Auguste Freeke, indicted with Beulamia Bernbardt Marchail for the murder of the man on Boyd's fill, whose name it is now believed was Henry Freymann. Freeke continues to strongly protest his innocence, and in speaking of Marchall yesterday, said he would "swear the ears off the cevil." He appears very much concerned about the wincas Earnest Miller, and the inquired whether Miller had yet been sworm,
