What these measures will be we can only guess; but we trust they will be such as will effectually attain the desired result, without crippling business or interforing with the prosperity of the country. That the volume of the currency is too great every one will admit. We have first the issues of the National banks; second the issues of the government; and third the issues of the State banks. The aggregate of these is estimated variously from $1,300,000,000 to $1,500,000,000;but is probably nearer the inside than the outside sum. Under the national banking law all State bank issues will be so severely taxed, after July 1, 1866, that it be impossible to keep them in circulation after that date. Much of it has already been withdrawn, and the rest will be cancelled on or before that day. We shall thus, by the 1st of July next have no currency but that of the govern ment and the national banks. The retire ment of the State bank issues will reach probably $100,000,000; and within the the same time the government will probab-ly fund $50,000,600 of its compound inter-
