TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1865. WISAPPOINTED EXPECTATIONS. The European enemies of our Republican institutions fondly expected that the disbandment of an army of a million o mentwould lead to disorder and outbreaks. if not to revolution. Arguing from the experience of European governments, in similar cases, they regarded these disorders and outbreaks as irevitable, oran from the disbandment of a small army; hence, looking at the immensity of the army that was to be "turned loose" in this country, they concluded that a revolution and over-turning of the governmen must be looked for as unavoidable. mortify them, is to us an evidence of the strength and stability of our government, and an eloquent tribute to the intelligence and integrity of the people. No monarchical government would have dared to do what ours ben done, but would have looked on with fear and trembling, while even a gradual disbandment of a large army vas taking place. The muster out of our name of a million of men, within a short period of time, has ot caused a ripple upon the surface of affairs. The soldiers resumed their dress as cltizens and mingled with their former asociates as quietly and aparently with as little effect as a river emptying into the sea. old faces, and welcome them back; but be youd the partial supplying of an active demand for laborers and machanics, there is no perceptible change in any direction. The one million has mixed in with the other millions and quietly gone about their business, in many cases resuming their old places, and in all easily finding something to do, but creating no disturbance and exciting no fear in any direction.

The world has never witnessed such a result; as this before, and it is exceedingly creditable to the soldiers that it has been atthined. The education of a camp is not of the highest order; but, bad as it is, the men have been superior to it, have resisted its corrupting influences, and have come back good citizens, much to the disappointment and chaggin of those who had hoped

A DILEMNA. Throughout the late contest in Pennsylyards and Ohio, the Copperhead papers and orators inhisted that hegro suffrage was the issue of the campaign. They fang all he changes upon this theme; and they solemply declared that every rote for the Republican candidates was a vote for negro suffrage, and every vote for the Cop-he the short address of Mr. Withiam A. ead nominees was a vote against it. W.LLACE, Chairman of the DemocraticState Committee, this was the sole point presented. The people of the State were ferventimportuned not to disgrace themselves in particular, and the white race in general, r electing the Republican nominees, but to defeat negro suffrage and negro equality ing the truth, then the voice of Pennsylva-nia has been most declayely uttered in favor of negro suffrage; and if they undertake to say that the voice of Pennsylvania has not been so uttered, then these men were wilful liara. There is no escape from this dilemna, and they are welcome to either horn of it. Either they were engaged in a bold and deliberatcattempt to deceive the people, or the people have decided against rebel suffrage and in favor of manhood suffrage.

LOSS OF CONFIDENCE. The Copperhead Democracy have not so much faith in the President's policy, since the election, as before. The Cincinnati Enquirer, which insisted before the election that the only way to sustain the President was to vote the Democratic ticket, now turns upon the whole policy of the Administration, and says : We have no light to require emancipa-tion, no right to appoint Provisional Gov-ernors, no right to de anything but march our trees out of the court trees out to our trops out of the conquered territory, and leave to the inlabitants of the South to as full and complete an extent as we enjoy it outselves, the power to manage their own affairs.

Of course if there is no right to require emancipation and none to appoint Provisnonal Governors, everything the President has done is unconstitutional; and on the contrary, if he has the right to do these things, he has the right to go further, and require equal political rights to all men at the South, without distinction of color or race. There is no escape from this conclu-

The American Cstizen published at Butler Pa., in its last issue has the following appreclative opinion of the Commercial newspaper of this city, which has disgusted the loyal half, and delighted the Copperhead half of its readers, for some time past, with low, insand, and pointless gibes at the region sufficient and Thannews Sraves. BOOY. None have more frankly and cordially admitted the chains of the returned soldiers upon the gratitude of the people than ourselves. The action of our party in giving preference to those candidates for office, who have evinced their large of country in the large of countr love of country in its service, had our warm apwobation; and that so many of them have neen rewarded by the suffrages of their appreciative fellow citizens, adds to our gratification at the successful issue of the late political campaign. t proves, too, that the people generally share with us in these sentiments. Even that upworthy minority, who, in their opposition to the war, were unsparing in their abuse of those engaged in it, now feign for them a new born and suspicious friendship. None acknowledge a disaposition to repudiate their indebtedness to the defenders of their country. If such a disposition be possible, however, some of the soldlers themselves are adopting a ourse which directly tends to engender it. The "Soldiers and Sallors? National Union League" have issued an address to their comrades throughout the country, urging them to conthine in as serting their claims, and in wielding their politcal influence irrespective of question of creed or party. The tone of the paper throughout is one rate the very end for which it was designed. It s like dunning a creditor who already tenders

But we are sure that, few soldiers will unite in such a scheme as this. To throw away their distinctive principles for the take of the spoils of cilico-to join with any and every party inifferently, that may proffer the desired reward -these are propositions which we know they cannot entertain. And even if they should, the achievement of their arowed object, political preferment, would be far more improbable that f they trusted to the spontaneous rewhich is now accorded them by the people of Dir, E-i- editor of the Bosto Journal, died recently in the West, where he had gone to recover his health, threatened by the insidious approaches of consumption. Mr. Dix nty-nine years engaged in the Journ office. That paper, in noticing his decease at 43 years of age, says: "When about fourteen pears of age he entered the Journal office as ar apprentice, and became a rapid and skillful compositor. He then succeeded his father as all news collector, and for several years fille that position with marked ability and success. He was subsequently advanced to the position of assistant editor, and in 1864 Mr. Dix became the editor, and has held that position until the day of his death. His writings were marked by str gular perspicuity, close adherence to the erbject in hand, sound reasoning and well balanced Indignient. He wasted no words, and had no patience with the extravagant and affected smartness which sometimes diafigure modern urnalism. He bore all classes of readers mind, and directed all his editorial efforts for the benefit of each, with rare discretion and success." The Transcript says of him: "To all who knew Mr. Dix personally, there something inexpressibly attractive in the blended modesty and decision of his character, In the quiet self-reliance of his bearing, in the sorough integrity of his mind and disposition. His brethren of the press owe it to his memor that a man so honorable so just, so regardful of the feelings of others, so large and generous in his judgments, of such unmistakable vigor of mind and solidity of acquirements, of such concientious devotion to the performance of impor ant public duties, should not be allowed to pass way without the most emphatic testimony of his talents and virtues." VARIOUS ITEMS.

by yoting the white man's licket.

Well, the white man's licket went under. The appeal to the prejudices of the people against the blacks, did not win. We do not know how many Union voters were thus tedeced into the "white man's party;" all we know is that the so-called "white man's ticket" was beaten some 25,000 in Pennsylvania, and that the Copperheads have been worse trounged than they have been fin any year since 1860.

A TERRITER tragically occurred last week in the town of Shiloh. Randolph county, Illinois. Doctors Campbell and Minner, physiclams of that place, purchased some calounel of a druggist in Chester, which was administered to some forty of their patients, producing most alarming symptoms. It was rubesquently ascertained that the calounel contained corosive sublimate. Seven persons had died from the effects of the joison, at last accounts, sum it was feared executed others would not survive. Among the deaths was a sister of Dr. Campbell. It is said the calounel was put up in the ordinary way, and had not been tampered with after leaving the store of a St. Louis wholesale druggist, by whosh it was imported from England.
