The Cattle Disease—Its Spread on the Continent.

The mysterious cattle disease, which has been raging in Fingland all summer, while the cholica has been advancing across the Continent, has now made its apparance in France and Belgium just to the cholera has broken out in Liverpead. The excitement caused several years ago by the fatal mainly called plen responsionals is not to be compared to the terror and anxiety with which the European profile regard their present affliction. The men of sclence devote their time and skill, and the pressit space, to elaborate investigation and discussion as to the origin and nature of the epidemic, and the manner in which it should be idemic, and the manner in which it should be met; and a large share of the public attention is taken up by the practical justions which lisu; As to whether the discuse is really a contagion or an epidemic, after three months of active inquiry and det ate, very little seems to be positively known; and in fact few things are detlnitely ascertained about it, beyond the fearful extent of its ravages among the herds of England. In France it is called "contagious typhus," adopted for combating it. In Eagland, where it has raged for five months, nothing appears to have been done with any system. Some committees have been organized, several cattle insurance associations have been formed; and the Queen has just appointed a Royal Commission on the subject; many cattle, well and sick, have been slanghtered, without remuneration to the owners, except in the lessance of a subscription most absurdly started to indemnify Miss Burdett Coults, the richest woman in the kingdom, for the death of a law choice animals; and nothing has been done in the stage of the cattle of the subscription most absurdly started to indemnify which the property of the cattle of them, and so realize the memitry of the crime they had committed. In France on the contrary, where the disease has only just appeard, complete systems of quarantine, staughter and compensation have seen established by the government police an therities, and even the dogs in infected districts are placed under the most rigid regulations, which must be obeyed under penalty of summary execution.

Thus far not a single case of the cattle distemper has been discovered in Ireland, thanks to a very prudent and thoroughly enforced interdict against the trace portation of cattle arrest converse to obtain what we want. Our Government is a grand and lonly structure; in searching for its foundation we find it amarket from which to obtain good beef. This result should teach a valuable leasn to us west of the Atlantic.

If as many urge, the disease was only imported into Great Britain from Russia, then by a careful quarantine, of attil better a strice embargo upon all importations of cattle, we may reasonably hope to escape the terrible in fliction allogether. With a healthy condition of power, and also to a great constitution of the finances and a general prevalence of the flaboring classes. In this country, where already, from a variety of emissa, the prices of all the necessaries of life range so high that poverty is but one may be the solution to the first to vote in the States, it may establish such rules as will restrict the vote to a small number of persona, and the reach of the laboring classes. Our only safety lies who have the power to control the same thing for my own purposes in Pennsylvania. Our only safety lies in Pennsylvania. Our only safety almost imperable. It is as imperative a duty It would not do to let the negroes have universal sufface now. It would breed a war of races.

There was a time in the Southern States when the slaves of large owners looked down upon non-slaveowers because they did not own alayes: the larger number of slaves their masters owned, the prouder they were, and this has produced hoetlilly between the mass of the whites and the negroes. The outrages are mostly from the negro upon the non-slaveholding whites against the negro, and from the negro upon the non-slaveholding whites against the negro, and from the negro upon the non-slaveholding whites against the negro, and from the negro upon the non-slaveholding whites against the negro will yote with the late master whom he does not hate, rather than with the windsal state of the negro will not with the late master whom he does hate. Universal suffere would create another war, not against an, but a war of caces.

Norther thing. This Government is the free-stand best on the earth, and I feet sure is destined to last; but to secure this, we must elevate and purify the ballot. I for many years contended at the South that Slavery was a political weakness, but others said it was political weakness, but others said it was political strength, they thought we enfield three-fifths representation by it, I contended that we lost two-fifths. neumbent upon all having an influence in the cattle-raising business, to prevent any importations which may bring the deadliest of animal plagues to our shores, as it is for the general public to give no foothold, by negligence or tolgration of uncicantiness, for the insidious approaches of that handly less dreadful visitor, the cholera

The Execution of Champ Ferguson -He makes a Confession.

The Cincinnati Commercial of Monday says: A letter from Nashville gives us some particulars of the execution of Champ F.: guson, and his confession. During the prayer of the minister, on the scaffold, when the God of the widow and the fatherless was implored to be the friend of the family of the dying man, Champ, shed and the fatherless was implored to be the friend of the family of the dying man, Champ, shed tears. His hast coherent words were: "I will repeat that i die an out-and out rebei; and my last request is, that I may be moved to White county, Teonessee, to be buried in good, pure rebel soil."

His wife parted with him without much emotion, merely shaking hands and bidding him good-bye. His daw, hater, a preposating young lady, clong to him passionately, calitus him her "dear pap," and sobbling piteously. He made a full confession, saying he surrendered under a promise that he would be treated as a prisoner of war. He did not think he had done any strong; has killed a good many men, of course, but never killed a man he did not know, or, if he did not know him, know at least that his victum was attempting to take his life. He said, in the course of his confession: "It is faise that I never took any prisoners took a number of prisoners and paroidal them, but they would not take me prisoner, but would shoot me down whenever found. This is what made me kill more than I should have done. They (the Federals) never go a man that belonged to my company or one that belonged to my company that was with me, that what they killed him; and, of course, they must are peet that I would uot miss doing so to their men."

A LETTER received at the Freedmen's Bureau from the officer in charge of Freedmen's affairs at Helena, Arkansas, states that not a case of wani exists among the freedmen of that district, rations being drawn only for those in hospitals.

The letter represents them as industrious and orderly, seldom guilty of a breach of the law. A LEADING planter in Mobile. Colonel Goode, is about to apply to the Legislamre of Alabams for a charter for an agricultural steochalton, to comprise the realdent agent of the Freedmen's Bureau, the object of which shall be to establish mutual relations and a good understanding between employers and laborers. The Mobile Register regards the plan favorably as a temporary expedient. At a meeting of bankers in Frankfert, Gor-many, it came out that about three hundred mil-lions of Dailed States bonds were held in that city, and its neighborhood, and that nearly svery bond held on the continent of Europe was the property of persons realding in or near that city.
