He was knocked down, disarmed, and speedily lodged in the Raymond street Jall. The arrest was kept a profound serret, to give the detectives time to effect the selzure of the plates, toola, and counterfeit money, already manufactured a Fhilbdelphia, which they were mable to do prior to the arrest. They also knew of $20,000 in the fraudhent currency, which the menufacturer had brought with him to Brooklyn, and which they hoped to procure. After hodging their prisoner in conflorment, they immediately set out for Philadelphia, found the mill, and reized its contents, comprising the plates, tools, prease, $30,000 worth of the fraudhiest cur-reacy, all in 50 cent postage samps. Some of it was he an unfinished size, but the detectives declare that the completed issues would have de-ceived them instantly, that they would never have doubted their gaundinence.
