rania opened, last summer, the democrats full of confidence. They really believed they were about to be restored to power in the Commonwealth. So effectually had they, in their own judgments, covered all the nely and trophlesome points of their past record, that they were disturbed by no uncomfortable doubts as to the resultaleed they began to indulge pleasant speculations as to plans and measures to be dopted when the returning tide of public favor should bear them to their old seats of power at the national capital.

Mr. WALLACE, the Chairman of their State Committee, an experienced and able wan, did not think it worth while to make an active campaign. The fruit was ripe, and would fall in luscious maturity, into his hands. He waited, in perfect composure A TEATH beathind was pronounced at a pubuled expectation, election returns unid at once disclose the popular remains a superior of the democratic party, and this strategic achievments as among that should at once disclose the popular resction in favor of the democratic party, and magnify his strategic achievments as among st brilliant and effectual ever displayed on the field of politics. He waited. The returns came, and great was his disapnointment. The majority he counted on as certain evaded his clutch and came up on the other side. The people were exactly where he thought they were not. For a political manager who plumes himself on a stateness, that was an unpleasant dilemma. It chafed his pride and mortified his vanity. He did not even stop to reflect that he was not alone in his grief; that his associate leaders were just as much besfiled and nonplussed as he was himself; and that not a few of them were lacating in the consolation that had fallen to his personal share. Though his party was ignominiously defeated in the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and bean returned for three years more to the State, he had carried his district and the state had been erroneously supposed. The great trans to the commerce or St. Louis, Pittaburgh is of this commerce or St. Louis, Pittaburgh is the commerce or St. Louis, Pittaburgh is of the state commerce or S the Senate. That was something. A man of modest ambition might contentedly swallow such a bitter pill when coated with

Not so with Mr. WALLACE. The burlen of the democra tic party had been lai on his shoulders. It had not been carried. It had fallen abjectly. This was bad. He resolved to pick it up, or to have it surely the State Committee to meet him in council at Harrisburg, we suppose to have fellowship in lamentation and to deduce courage from despair. The Committee agreed that their next State Convention shall be held on the 5th of April coming.

The democratic organ of Berks county explains the cause of this unseasonable a tivity. It is to take measures for entering early and with vigor upon the gubernator ial canvass. The democratic discomfiture is attributed, not to the effete condition of the party, not to its lack of confidence in itself, nor to the decadence of popular regard for it, but to a temporary disposition to slumber. It was caught napping by the Philistines, and overcome. Now it means to rouse itself, like another Samson, and put forth all its trength. It means to commence early, keep at it, and means to commence early, keep at it, and not to relax its efforts until the ballot boxes

Mr. CLYMER lives in Berks County. He was once a Whig. He is now a Deme crat. He has enjoyed a taste of public life having filled a seat in the State Senate. He has the manners of a gentleman. That is to his credit. He has an abundant fortune That is most convenient. He has an unblemished personal reputation. That is more than all men who get into the Legis lature manage to get out with. He has fals abilities; enough to make a passable Governor, if his political principles did not stand in, the way. He wants to be Governor The ambition is laudable. He has many admirers among the Democrats who would be gratified in sceing the gubernatorial ors wreath his brow. His chances of attaining that distinction do not, even in his own eyes, appear flattering. This late defeat, to signal and overwhelming, does not admit of half-measures. Hence this proposition to overcome difficulties by industry, and make disaster minister to cour The pluck evinced is admirable. Alas! that it is destined to be ex pended as hopelessly as in beating the air. This sort of drowsiness, which, but for politeness, we should call a sort of atrophy, which has betrayed the Democrats of Per sylvanis into defeat, this year, seems to have taken on a peculiar type that makes it epidemical. In fact, it is universal among them. It has become diffused all through the loyal States. Even in New Jersey, where the Democrats hitherto have managed to be wateful fand alert, it has overcome them, and left them to be bound, hand and foot, and delivered over to the tormen But the hypothesis of somnolency is both too short and too narrow. It covers neither the sides nor the ends Every northern State has recorded a formal and solemn judgment against the democrata. This judgment is not a simple disparagemen of their methods, but an Impeachment of their loyalty. The masses of the people of these States see and feel that all through the war their sympathies have been enlisted not in behalf of the government but on the side of the rebels. The only States that endorse the democrats and their doc-

This is commendable on the part of the rebels. They not only understand who their friends are, but do not mean to separate from them. Their own overthrow on the field of battle draws out their sympathies afresh for fellow-sufferers who have been overwhelmed on the field of politics. The conjunction of these two defeated elements mischief does not promise to be formid-

The Union State Committee, at their re cent meeting, decided not to fix the day for the State Convention till January. We concur freely in the desire expressed by many of the Union journals for an early assembiling of the Convention, to be followed by an active and thorough canvass.

PATRICK FLEMING, one of the murderers now in jail in Chicago, under sentence of death, has sold his body for fifty dollars, to a well-known surgeon, for dissection, in one of the medical colleges. When approached by the surgeon with the offer, Fleming replied that the money would do him no good, as he could not spend it. The railroad depot at Milford, Mass., was broken into on last Thursday night, and the safe blown open, and robbed of about $100. One of the burgiars was found on the floor, in the morning, with his skull iractured by a pleee blown from the safe. The man has not been identified, nor have any traces of his accomplices been discovered.

The murderers of Art. Heiferman are sentenced to death, and will be executed as soon as the approval of General Thomas (who, at last accounts, was at Mobile) can be obtained. One of the parties arrested has turned States' evidence and informed against the whole gang of cutlaws, numbering twenty or more.

BARON ROTHESHILD once complained to Lord BARON ROTHSCHILD once complained to Lord Brougham of the hardship of not being allowed to take his seat in Parliament, "You know," said he, "I was the choice of the people." To which the ex-Chancellor, with his usual causti-city, replied, "So was Barrabbas."
