England the recessity of disowning and denouncing it.

The occurrence, horrible and revolting as it is, will have, it is hoped, one good effect and that is the assurance of a better government for Jamin'es. Teat islend has been governed by a simil knot of landed aristocrats, numbering less than 3,000, and they have ruled it with an iron hard in their own interest. It is now proposed to make it a Crown Colony, and send out a Governor with full powers, who will be free from the infidence of the besotted tyran's now in authority, and fully vested with all the rights of a local legislature. In this way, if the right man is sent out, Jamaics may escape from help resent thraidom and her handreds of thousands of laborars be restored to their proper condition as free men.

KENTUCKY. The proclamation of General Palmer, based on Judge Johnston's decision, that slavely no longer exists in Kentucky, created but little excitement in Louisville. The papers unite in declaring both the decision and proclamation to be re, yet regard them as simply anticipating what is regarded as inevitable, and therefore they yield to them with a good grace. It is probable, however, that throughout the state a similar acquiescence will not follow so readily. The slaveholding interest dies hard, and will not yield until it cannot help it. LAMARTINE ON AMERICA. The remerkable article of M. DE LAMARTINE

Europe has the right, and France has taken the initiative from us,

"The globe is the property of mankind, the new American condition to the property of Europe."

The principle of European protection and its independence, at least in the seventeen Southern States of America, rests evidently on us and all the powers of the Old World. We must prevent events. We must protect the Latin race, and is order to protect it we must take our position on the point meanced by the United States.

And why should Europe or all the world recognize the piratical rights on land and sen, of the United States, while in the Old World we not only recognize the right of protecting the the United States, while in the Old World we not only recognize the right of protecting the properties useful to all, but also recognize the right of appropriating, without indomnity, the States and individuals of all properties which are tended by all? This principle of common protection, useful to all, which we apply to a community, why should it with less right be applied to a whole conditional, and protect it in its independence? Europe has these rights, and is her duty not to shanden to the United States the Latin race.

The patives of Bombay, India, are much excited by the operation of lighting the streets by gas, just introduced thre. Long before the lamps are lighted on an evening, numbers of natives may be set grouping round every lamp post, and when the lamplighter approaches, (a llowed by a razmuth clowd), the greatest extirement prevails, the strongest pushing the workest in their modeavors to secure the best jostible place. After a little preliminary chaffing the lighter ascends the ladder, and when the illumination is complete the mob heave a sigh of relief and quickly sit down at the foot of the post, and with upturned faces gaze into the lamp for hours, welle every now and then they class the post with their hands to feel whether it gets hot. The mystery why the post does not get hot they cannot solve, and they argue for hours together upon the ins and outs of the question, until finally, tired out, they return to their homes to dream of the wonders produced by "Sahib."
