John Minor Botts.

This distinguished Virginia politician died at his residence at Culpepper, Va., on Friday, Jan. 8th, at about midday. He had been ailing for some time and his death will be mourned by a large circle of friends both North and South. Mr. Botts was born in Dumfries, Prince William county, Va., September 16th, 1802. During the greater part of his life he had been an active politician, a leading member of the old Whig party while it was in existence, afterward a member of the American party. He was as a Whig, an advocate of a protective tariff, a national bank, and of the distribution of the proceeds of the sales of public lands among the States. He was a warm friend of President Tyler until the latter abandoned the friends of the financial system introduced into Congress at the commencement of his administration.

Mr. Botts refused to join the South in the rebellion, and was imprisoned for a time in Richmond, but was subsequently released. Although a man of vigorous and active mind, he used very little influence in resisting the rebellion or in the shaping of events since; but he has occasionally given his views to the world through letters and opinions which have been published. He seemed not to possess the skill and power to adapt him for a leader, and he was too independent—forming his own opinions of passing events—and too restive to follow men of less mind and ability, for the sake of notoriety or the pleasure of wielding political influence and patronage. He will be more missed, however, than many others of less capacity who have been more active and prominent during the stirring events of the past few years, and in his death we lose one of those with whose name is associated the better and most prosperous days of our country's history. Peace to his ashes.

General Grant, it is stated, wishes the grade of general to be continued, and is advising against the passage of the resolution offered in the early part of the session declaring that the grade of General in the army shall cease when vacated by the present possessor. The General, it seems, is of opinion that this honor should of right fall upon Lieutenant General Sherman, and the rank of Lieut. Gen., he believes, would be judiciously bestowed on gallant Phil. Sheridan.

The Iron foundry of Rogers & Owen, Philadelphia, was damaged by fire on Saturday.

Gov. Claflin, of Massachusetts, was inaugurated on Saturday and delivered his message to the Legislature.

A dispatch received at Port Jervis, N. Y. on Saturday, states that Smith the murderer, has been found at Hamilton, Canada.

Thursday the Maine Legislature re-elected all the present encumbents of the prominent state officers.

An old gentleman, at the late disaster on the Ohio, finding that he could not get off the burning boat, went to his stateroom and lay down, so that he might gratify himself by "dying in bed."

An Indianianian, who has had the experience of eight wives, expresses himself in favor of divorce rather than funeral, so far as economy is concerned, as a means of disposing of a partner.
