Horrible Murder by Negroes—Swift Retribution.
The following is from the Marshall, (Texas) Republican, of April 9: A young man by the name of Col. Green, who is said to have been a new settler in Rusk county, left Henderson on Saturday evening last, in a state of intoxication, for home. When he got about seven miles from town, on the Marshall Road, he stopped at the widow Griffin's place, where a body of negroes were making a crop, and ordered his supper. While eating it he was seized by five negroes, who tied his hands behind him, dragged him about half a mile, and hung him. While he was hanging they rolled back a log, dug a trench, threw him in before life was extinct, and then rolled the log back in its former place.
Two of the negroes were preachers. The principal one engaged in the murder, Julius Jones, stood by with a gun, directing the others, and telling them he would kill the first one that finished. The same negro went the next day to Henderson, preached a sermon and baptized fourteen negroes.
Green is represented as a refined, educated accomplished gentleman, but who occasionally, unfortunately, became intoxicated.
His friends missing him, it seems, found his horse at this plantation, and his hat at one of the cabins. On searching for him, they traced his footsteps upon the steps and the route he had trodden from his pocket.

Five negroes were arrested, who confessed the crime and were taken to Henderson and placed in jail. This was on Monday.
On Tuesday night, about eleven o'clock, a mob went to the jail, and hung every one of them on the public square fronting each side of the court house, the two preachers together.
