The press is enthusiastic in its endorsement of the Great Arlington Minstrels. The Kingston, N. Y. Gleaner says: "There is no discount on that the Arlington is the best minstrel troupe now travelling." The Milwaukee News pronounces William Arlington "the most versatile general performer in the business." The Arlingtons will appear at the Opera House for one night only, on Monday evening next.

LOVE AND SPRING.—It must be, as Tennyson says, that love works the young man up in the spring. At one place we hear of a deluded lover slaying his mistress, and then cutting his throat with the butcher cleaver, and in another have tidings of a second fond swain assaulting a young parson who refused as a father would not consent to be a father-in-law. Two cases of assault upon supposititious damsels, unconnected with fatality of victims, as per above, are also noted. Unhappy intimation! Why not live young men, and sing

"If she be not fair for me,
What care I how fair she be."

A supposed manner was discovered in a miserable hovel in Toronto, Canada, on Tuesday. A laboring man and a drunken woman by the name of McKenna, who had lived there for some time, had suddenly become engaged in a fight which resulted in the death of the latter in the most shocking manner imaginable. When the visitor arrived, he found the woman dying, stretched upon the floor, with her head in a pool of blood. The whole premises were literally besmeared with gore, and the remains of the woman were greatly disfigured to behold. The doctor immediately gave McKenna into custody. He denies any guilt in the matter, and says that his wife came to her death in a drunken fit, from the effects of which she died.
