Why is a fine specimen of handwriting like a dead pig? Because it is done with the pen.

Capt. Higgins, late of the privateer Cuba, is at the Pierpont House in Brooklyn.

It is becoming quite fashionable now for ministers of the Gospel to announce in the newspapers the subject of their next Sunday's sermons.

As many of our readers would like to know how to be happy and comfortable in mind and body, we would like to tell them; but really we are unable to fix upon any system that will bring these blessings.

THE FIGHT.—The fight which came off at Atkins Hall last evening, between the wolf "Jack," of this place, and the dog from Oil City, was declared in favor of the dog; he winning the fight in about thirty minutes.

BUFFALO CLOTHING STORE.—The Buffalo One Price Clothing Store is still in the field, and are bound to sell cheaper than the cheapest. Give them a call—Main street, opposite the McClintock House, near Lower bridge.

LATHER AND SHAVE.—Charles J. Leonhauser has fitted up and moved into the rooms over his old barber shop. He having greatly increased his facilities is now prepared to do all kinds of work in his line. See his advertisement and small bills, and give him a call.

LARGE, FAT TURKEYS.—Messrs. A. & E. Parker, proprietors of the New York Meat Market, opposite the McClintock House, have received a large supply of nice, fat turkeys. Thanksgiving day is near at hand and the turkeys rise in their majesty and exclaim, "buy me and I'll do you good."—At the New York Market there is to be found all the choicest meats. Call on them.

This morning about nine o'clock the old Phillips well on the Tar Earm took fire from the escape of gas, and the whole rig, and tank containing some oil, was consumed.—The flames communicated with a well on the adjoining lease destroying the derricks and engine house. For want of particulars, we are unable to state the amount of the loss.

IMPORTANT PURCHASE.—Messrs. Arnold & Phinny, of this place, purchased, a few days since, the Price farm, lying in the Shamburg district, containing 55 acres, for the sum of $20,000. This land lays between the Tolman & Atkinson farms, and the land on which the National wells are located. It is closely adjoining territory that is now the best in the oil regions, and in the hands of Messrs. Arnold & Phinny, will soon be dotted with derricks.

The young man who has been traveling about lately and jumping off the trains to kiss his sister, and then apologizing when he found his mistake, has become converted, and will lead a different life. He tried the thing on at New Haven the other day, when the damsel raised her veil he found she was so black that charcoal would make a white mark on her.

Sale of the "Coming Horse."

Mr. Robert Bonner has just purchased the stallion Major Windfield, the "Coming Horse," and has changed his name to Edward Everett. The price paid was twenty thousand dollars each, and the seller, ex-sheriff Libburn of Rockland county, remarked it was the largest sum of money that he ever had in his pocket at one time. Major Windfield—now Edward Everett—is the sire of Commodore Vanderbilt's Mountain Boy, and of Mr. Bonner's much more wonderful five-year-old, Joe Elliott, who on the 4day, of November trotted a mile in 2:19 1/2—the fastest mile ever trotted on Long Island, except by Dexter, who is a half brother of this stallion. He is altogether the finest stallion sired by Old Hambletonian. We learn that Mr. Bonner's idea in purchasing him is to experiment on breeding a race of hardy trotters from his celebrated mares, Flatbush, Palmer, Peerless, &c. Edward Everett is a bright bay, a little over fifteen hands high, and is now in Mr. Bonner's stable in this city. He is gaited very much like his noted son, Joe Elliott. The sired horsemen say that this purchase is a great piece of generalship on the part of Mr. Bonner, as he now gets all the benefit of the performances of his own colt, and indirectly those of Mountain Boy, who was sired by this stallion also.

A CIRCUS AT AUCTION.—The entire effects of Dr. James L. Thayer's circus were sold at auction in Cincinnati on Tuesday last. The Commercial of that city has the following particulars of the sale: "The performing horses were first offered, and sold at prices averaging about one hundred and fifty dollars each. Mr. Adam Forepaugh became the purchaser of the trick pony, "Doctor," paying for him the handsome sum of nine hundred and thirty dollars. An elephant, small in size, but dignified in appearance, was next led forth, and immediately became the observed of all observers. Bidders seemed to be very shy about making offers, however, and finally his diminutive majesty was knocked down to Forepaugh for $1,275. An old showman, who was present in the crowd, remarked that "that little animal ought to have fetched six thousand dollars," and walked off indignant at the sacrifice. Four fiery and untamed lions were next offered, and, after some lively bidding, were awarded to Oscar H. Norman, at $8,000. The "kings of the forest" did not seem to be much affected by the novel process of being knocked down—to the highest bidder, of course—and blinked lazily at the crowd through the iron bars of their cage. A few timid persons inquired whether the cage was perfectly secure, and looked fearfully upon the tawny beasts, whose massive jaws and powerful limbs seemed waiting only for the opportunity to burst forth, wild with resistless rage and fury. Mr. Forepaugh and Norman were the principle purchasers, the former invested $4,200, and the latter $9,055. The sales will foot up to about $15,000.

Improvement in the process of matchmaking between men and women is proposed by the Revolution, founded upon the customs of countries in the North of Europe. This custom is for the marriageable youth of both sexes to be called together at stated seasons, when each one writes on paper the name of the individual of the opposite sex whom he or she desires to marry. The papers are then committed in confidence to a committee of two discreet persons, and if, on looking over the names, any two are found to have declared a mutual regard, the fact is announced, and the marriage follows; while in every other case, where no reciprocal attachment appears, the papers are destroyed with divulging the secret intrusted to them. It is to be questioned whether there is any need of this expedient in American society. Our boys and girls, we apprehend, know how to let their preferences appear plainly enough, and there is seldom any mistake as to what they are.

Samuel Jessup, who died in Lincolnshire in 1817, took between 1791 and 1816, 226,934 pills, which is at the rate of 10,806 pills a year, or twenty-nine pills a day. For the last three years preceding 1816, he took pills at the rate of seventy-eight a day and in the year 1814 he swallowed not less than 51,590. In addition he took 40,000 bottles of mixture, and juleps and electuaries, extending altogether to fifty-five closely written columns of an apothecary's bill. He lived to be 65 years of age, and the trusty and worthy apothecary who supplied him with all these delicacies was obliged to sue his stingy customer for a small balance due him.

A New Orleans baker lost a mule, advertised for the recovery of his animal, which he described as "a gentle mule, valued at $150, and answered to the name of Fanny," offering at the same time a "heavy" reward to the finder. The animal was discovered on the levee, in the possession of a suspicious person, and taken to its owner, when the latter fulfilled his promise by counting out fifty old-fashioned pennies.

An Eastern youth traveling in the uncivilized regions between here and California provided himself with a small pistol, so as not to be out of fashion. While he was apparently examining it, but really showing off, a brawny miner whose belt was weighted with two heavy six shooters, asked him what he had there.

"Why, replied the young man from the East that is a pistol." Wall, said the rough, if you should shoot me with that, and I should ever find it out, I'd lick you like fun.

The death of the Hon. ROBERT J. WALKER recalls an incident of the Border Ruffian war in Kansas. While WALKER was Governor of that State, he made a tour through its southern counties and was not very heartily greeted by the Free State men. At one of the towns where he stopped for the night, the pro-slavery men held a meeting in his honor, and wound up the affair with a huge bonfire. While the embers were still smoking, a party of Free State men determined upon treatment of a different sort. Armed with rifles and revolvers, they procured a stout rope, and started for the hotel where Gov. WALKER was staying, but before they called him out they concluded to consult Mr. ALBERT D. RICHARDSON, who was then the Kansas correspondent of the Boston Journal, and a prominent advocate of the Free State cause. They showed him the rope and said: "We have made up our minds to hang him, and let the Administration know that its Governors are not safe here."

RICHARDSON counseled moderation, told them they would only make matters worse by killing WALKER, and finally persuaded them to give up their intentions, and go quietly to their homes. Gov. WALKER left town the next morning, little dreaming how nearly he had missed being executed.

TELEGRAPH REPORTED FOR THE DAILY RECORD, Afternoon Dispatches. Louisville, Nov. 11. Petroleum Fire. BERLIN, Nov. 12. The Bremen bark Cupid, with Petroleum from New York to Densig, burnt to the water's edge at the latter city yesterday, where she had just arrived. Loss heavy. JAY GOULD'S WESTERN R. R. FIGHT. AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Last night the Atlantic and Great Western Railway case began in the Court of Common Pleas. The parties interested represent the first and second mortgage bondholders against Jay Gould and the Erie Railway. Gould strives to get an order from the Court to seal the road, thus putting him in control. The bondholders are opposed to hastening the sale because, if forced, the property will not yield the full amount it reasonably should. Jay Gould, Mr. Archdall, and Mr. O'Doherty were appointed receivers of the Atlantic and Great Western road last April. The present hearing is on the motion from the bondholders for the removal of Gould as receiver, because he is President and a Director of the Erie Railway, and therefore, under New York statutes, an Erie bondholder and an interested party. The case is still on.
