THE PETROLEUM CENTRE.

The Proprietors of the Petroleum Centre, Pa., have been fined a combination and intent to violate the Criminal Code against obstructions. They have employed an attorney who is to receive a fee of $250 in every case that he wins, and nothing more if the party is convicted. A number of the names in Venango have been closed, owing to the action of the jury, and the healthful laborers are going about the street like madmen, saying when they may "know something" that keeps a little.

The Legislature has been petitioned by the High School of Venango for the abolition of the district law.

The article in which Henry Clay was mentioned was offered for publication at the Venango, Pa., and declined. It is a laughable specimen of journalism, and is said to be very valuable for its original work.

General McPherson's order that in all cases of military law in the Department of War, no case should be allowed to proceed.
