SOUTHERN TRADE.

The South is evidently waking up commercially. It is stated in a Chicago exchange that sufficient tonnage could not be obtained on the Mississippi River to move forward the accumulated freight which the two railroads running southward from Chicago carried to the river ports. On one day, the 28th ult., 1500 barrels of flour and 117 car loads of other merchandise were unloaded from the Illinois Central Railroad at Cairo. Meantime, several hundred loaded cars were on side-tracks, at the different stations north, awaiting opportunity to be moved into Cairo. From that port alone, the shipments of through freight averaged ten thousand tons weekly; and the amount would have been largely increased had there been sufficient tonnage regularly in port to prevent a constant blockade. The loss, by casualties, of three of the largest river steamboats, in part occasioned the lack of tonnage, causing great inconvenience and reduction of profits alike to the railroad company and the shippers. For weeks, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, running from Columbus, Kentucky, to Mobile, Alabama, was unable to forward the freight destined for interior points, and is yet taxed to the utmost by the continuous influx of trade.—Flour, oats, hay, bulk meats, agricultural implements and merchandise were the articles most largely shipped; and to meet this demand quite an impetus was given to manufacturing industry. When it is remarked that cash is invariably paid on the receipt of the freight at its Southern destination, it will be readily perceived that the Southern traders are esteemed the best customers.

SAD ACCIDENT.—A sad accident occurred on the Kennebec farm, about half-past four o'clock yesterday afternoon, which resulted in the death of a man named John Gore. Mr. G. was engineer at one of the Palmer wells, and when found was dead.—As the engine was stopped, it is supposed that some part of his clothing became entangled in the machinery, drawing him in and winding him around the shaft. Mr. Gore was an aged man and very much respected by all with whom he was acquainted.

AFTERNOON PERFORMANCE.—Persons living at a distance will remember that the Wallace Sisters will give a grand family Matinee on Saturday afternoon next, the doors will be opened at 1 1/2 the performance will commence at 2 o'clock, admission 50 cents, children 25 cents. The beautiful burlesque of Prince Annabel or the Educated Cat, will be performed in all its magnificence and splendor, with rich and costly costumes, delightful music, &c. Let all the ladies and children attend, as the Wallace Sisters give the most chaste performance than any other troupe that has ever visited Petroleum Centre.

The survivors of the Ninth Pennsylvania Cavalry held a re-union at Harrisburg on the 15th.

The Pennsylvania Central Railroad has secured possession of the Alexandria and Fredericksburg Railroad.

Referring to the Onida calamity, the Boston Post says: "Mr. De Long, it seems had an unequivocal opinion of Capt. Eyre's conduct, stigmatizing it in the court as murder; and unless some new light is given to the whole affair our Minister's opinion will be shared by the majority of his countrymen. The examination, however, can hardly elicit any facts capable of redeeming the British captain from the charges brought against him, and our Government must look to it that his punishment is administered without delay and with a severity commensurate with the atrocious offense. Meanwhile, for the brave men who found a watery grave, whose shrieks for help were unheeded, and whose death even was made a jest of by the British captain, there will be universal mourning; their names will be remembered alike with those who have perished in glorious fights, and their memory will be an eternal reproach to the commander upon whose head rests the responsibility of their destruction."

The comedy of "Caste" was exceedingly well rendered by the Wallace Sisters and company, at Sobel's Opera House, last evening. Misses Jennie and Agnes won new honors by the charming manner in which they acted out the characters of Polly and Esther. Both of these ladies are not only stars of the first magnitude in the theatrical horizon, but are pleasing vocalists. Mr. S. B. Villa in the character of Hon. Geo. D'Alroy had a fine opportunity of displaying his artistic talent. We have seldom witnessed the character of a drunkard carried out in a more laughable manner than that of Eccles by Mr. J. B. Buckley. Miss Sabra Deshon as Capt. Hautree, and Mr. J. E. Webster as Sam. Gerridge executed those difficult parts in good style. The Highland Fling by the Misses Minnie and Maud would be hard to excel.

To-night will be presented the laughable comic burlesque entitled, "Fra Diavolo; or, The Beauty and the Brigand." Preceding the burlesque, Miss Agnes in her great specialty of "Our Gal." Let there be a crowded house.

An eccentric man in Nashville, Tenn., after leaving all his property to outsiders, winds up his will in this way: "Before any of these bequests shall be performed there must be erected over my wife and myself a nice monument. I have not given anything to my wife's relations because they did not visit my wife during her sickness, nor after she was dead, and my wife's sister desired me to send a close carriage for her while her sister, my wife, was dying."

Some people always have an eye to business, and do what they will, or to where they may, the "main chance" is first and last in their mind. Of this class is a reliable citizen of Corry—a very zealous and sincere Christian, by the by—who recently attended a revival meeting in a neighboring town, and raised his voice in exhortation to the unrepentant, in language earnest and eloquent. He sat down amid manifest marks of approval but suddenly it occurred to him that he had forgotten something, whereupon he arose and said: "I omitted to say that if any one desires to see me at any time, I can always be found at my store in Corry where all kinds of dry goods may be obtained at reasonable prices."

A Philadelphia telegram says: In a grocery seat the corner of Ninth and Walnut streets, Tuesday morning, Lewis Foster was stabbed nine times by Patrick Kelly, with whom he had been playing cards.—Kelly ran off, but soon returned with a man named Patrick Ward, and one of them fired a pistol at Foster, who was lying on the floor bleeding from the wounds already inflicted. Ward and Kelly were arrested.—Foster cannot live.

The father of Dorabella recently found that little girl's chubby hands full of the blossoms of a beautiful ten-rose on which he had bestowed great care: "My dear," he said, "didn't I tell you not to pick one of those flowers without leave?" "Yes, papa," said Dorabella, "but all of these had leaves."

It is said that the first mill erected in this State was built by the Swedes about the year 1643, on Cobb's creek, near where now stands the Blue Bell tavern, near Germantown. All traces of the building for many years however, have disappeared.

During the past week, 3,450 barrels of crude and 9,242 barrels of refined petroleum were received at Pittsburgh. The shipments during the same period, aggregated 430,580 gallons, making a total exportation for the year of 5,922,156 gallons.

The report that the steamer City of Boston had arrived at Queenstown turns out to be a hoax.

There are about 12 new wells on the Jack farm, the average product of which is nine barrels each per day.

The first marriage ever performed at Atlantic City, Wyoming Territory, was celebrated last month. It was a fashionable affair, but the facilities for carrying out all the usual accompaniments of a wedding in high life were not at hand. The wedding cards, the best the market afforded, were a superior article of playing cards. The invitations were written on the ace of hearts, and the name of the groom on the king, and that of the bride on the queen of the same suit.
