New Well.—Well No. 1, Omega Oil Co.'s tract of the Wm. McCray farm, was completed on Saturday last, tubed and cased yesterday, and testing commenced last night. It started up at the rate of 70 barrels per day, and as soon as the head was pumped off, it settled down to fifty barrels per day, which it is now producing by actual measurement. The well is 828 feet deep, and had 37 feet of as fine fourth sand rock as the oil region affords. From Mr. Robert Fulton, superintendent of the company, we learn the above facts.

MURDER AT PARKER'S LANDING.—By a dispatch we learn that a man named Alex. Fleming, aged about 39 years, was shot dead by a pistol ball from the hands of W. H. Greenwood, at about 12 o'clock Saturday night. The body was pierced by three bullets. The cause of the affray was, Fleming was caught in company with Greenwood's sister, after being warned to keep away, under penalty of death.

We also learn that after the death of Fleming, the girl took a dose of laudanum in order to kill herself, but through the exertions of the physician, her life was saved.

During the heavy gale night before last, the old Murch House, situated between Pithole and Plumer, on the Plumer road, was blown over and smashed to pieces.—At the time of the accident several families lived in the house, who had barely time to get out before it went over. Fortunately nobody was hurt, although those living in the house were badly scared.

A Parisian lady recently called on her milliner to inquire the character of a servant, which proved satisfactory. "But is she honest?" asked the lady. "I am not so certain of that," replied the milliner; "I have sent her to you with my bill a dozen times, and she has never yet given me the money."

THEATRE.—Those old-time favorites, the Wallace Sisters, were greeted with a crowded house, last evening. The performance of Misses Agnes and Jennie was decidedly superior to anything of the kind we have ever before witnessed. In the great historical burlesque of "The Field of the Cloth of Gold," their rendition of the characters of Earl Darnley and Lady Constance de Gray, was carried out true to life. They have well earned and merit the title bestowed upon them as being two of the finest actresses upon the American boards.—This is the prevailing opinion of all who have seen their life-like performance.—Messrs. Villa, Murphy, Miller, Webster and in fact the whole company executed their parts in fine style. In this connection we cannot refrain from making special mention of Mr. Webster's performance. His delineations of Irish character are life-like in the extreme. As a representative man, professionally speaking, of the "sprig of shillalah and shamrock so green," he has but few if any equals. Little Misses Minnie and Maud fairly outdid themselves, and well earned the applause of the audience present.

To-night will be presented the beautiful operatic burlesque entitled, "The Invisible Prince," preceding which will be produced Agnes Wallace's specialty of "Our Gal."—Little Misses Minnie and Maud in new songs, dances, &c. As this is positively their last performance in this place this season, we hope to see the Louse well filled.—Give them a rouser!

The Circus in the Country.

A writer in the Boston Times remarks that though planting time is the busiest and most toilsome season of the year in the country, it is in the rural youth also the season of the highest enjoyment during the year, with the exception, probably, of muster day (which, since the war, has been revived and made "an institution,") and Fourth of July. It is the season when the circus comes round, with its accompanying menagerie, the denizens which are pictured in the same belligerent attitudes, on large colored posters, which glorify the fronts of country stores, barns debouching on the roadsides, and all convenient places favorable to publicity. Thousands of rural youths fervently believe that the dreadful combats between lions, elephants and rhinoceroses take place at the circus precisely as they appear on the illustrated posters, and many long boarded ponies are brought out to pay for a peep at the mole. There will, perhaps, be a little disappointment in realization; but that is easily worn away by the sight of the extraordinary feat of riding upon four horses at once; the daring bare-back act; the extraordinary Protean performer, who mounts his horse as plain farmer, transforms himself into an Ethan Spike, thence into Paul Pry, then anon into Rob Roy, presto! again into an Indian chief, and after peeling himself of a couple dozen waist coats, winds up as Apollo in very red body and tights, dazzling bespangled and grand. And then, is there not a clown with his antediluvian jokes, which are always green, though mostly watered with whisky; the foolish countryman who will pay a dollar for a ride and get so numerously spilt and knocked about; the baby ride—"dear little love of a thing!" and the lady with her public contempt for the use of trains or traveling dresses; the acrobats who always jump down their own throats? All these have most exciting effects on the minds of rural youth, and serve for the incidental talk of the year until the circus comes again. Toil to them is sweet which has such sights in prospect as a reward; and we trust they will all have it in course, as also their seniors, who enjoy the circus equally as well as they do.

HARD ON CORRY.—What we have been looking for has come. Corry is being foreclosed on. The Blade says that one person gathered up sixty grains of sulphur which fell in the storm of May 21st. As it is not probable there are as many righteous ones in the city as there were in Sodom, we consider Corry as a cooked goose. Good bye, Corry. We understand an enterprise, King Yank in Titusville, has already contracted to build a steamer to navigate the Dead Sea which is to flow over Corry; and that a company will open salt works as soon as the boundaries are fixed. Good bye, Corry! We know that Pain would finish you.—[Jamestown Journal.]

In addition to the races advertised to come off on Friday next, there will be one or two scrub races between horses owned in this place. Sporting men will bear this in mind. There is great fun ahead and the "boys" will undoubtedly be on hand to enjoy it.

The Post office at Personsville, Venango county, was opened for business the first time yesterday. I. C. Wells is Postmaster. The Postoffice is located mid way between Pleasantville and Shamburgh.

CRUDE AND REFINED.

The Cincinnati Times of Monday last says: "In the stilly night of Saturday, R. F. Miller and Miss E. Miller, in violation of the commands of their parental heads, secretly departed their homes in Harrison county, Ky., walked twelve miles to the nearest railroad station, took the first train for this city, and on arriving at the Broadway House, had their business done up with the most exciting dexterity—matrimonial business, we mean.

A Danbury wife cured her husband of singing "Shoo Fly" when she was lecturing him for being out late of nights, by letting her shoe fly at his head with such force as to give him a headache.

A practical temperance lecturer in Connecticut first goes round and gets samples of the liquors sold at the place where he promises to lecture, has them analyzed, and tells his audience the result.

A recent internal revenue decision was given in Rhode Island on two children peddling sassafras bark. Though they had no license their dog had, which it was ruled would cover all their sales of bark.

It has snowed in Virginia City, Nevada, and a local paper gracefully says: "Slumgullion is trump!"

The Alabama Post pleasantly says: "We've got a man over here that's got cross eyes, sandy hair, freckled face, lantern jaws, bean pole legs, goes to church barefooted, and looks generally as though he'd had a bale of hay kicked out of him.

The Denver Herald achieved this epigram on the labors of a woman:

Strong-minded Susan said to Hobbs; "Had we our choice of labors, How soon we'd take the biggest jobs, Away from our neighbors.

Said Hobbs: "Already you can beat The men, if they but knew it; How easily you sweep the street! But then your trained to do it!"

The Indianapolis Mirror says: "Mayor Macaulay was imprudent enough to intimate to his colored servant girl that it wasn't the cat that stole the sugar, and Mayor Macaulay has been made the victim of a dreadful revenge. She left the bosom of his shirt limp as a diabrag, and starched the tails to the stiffness of a clapboard. There is something diabolically unique in this."

A day or so ago an express train on the Erie Railway drawn by the locomotive William M. Tweed, was run seventy-three miles in ninety-six minutes; forty-two miles were made in fifty-seven minutes.—Newt. Serven, the engineer, stuck his head out when rushing through a town with the inquiry, "How's that for high?"

Girls of the period are now called "sixteenth amendments."

American four-in-hands in Paris are reported to surpass all others.

Feathers are very much used for the hair for full dress, instead of flowers.

A colored man, aged 27, now in Delaware, is said to be living with his fifth wife.

Paper fabrics in imitation of leather are exciting much attention.

A young man in Louisville examined a keg of damaged gunpowder with a red hot poker to see if it was good. It is believed by his friends that he has gone to Europe, although a man has found some human bones, and a piece of shirt tail, about twenty miles from Louisville.

An Italian society has undertaken to collect the remains of all those who fell at Solferino in 1859. Eight thousand skeletons have already been exhumed. A number of relics have also been picked up and placed in a glass case. Among these is a silver watch found at Caviaria. The hands are at thirty-three minutes after four. The last combat in this spot took place at half after four. The interior of the watch was filled with blood. It is evident that the wound was in the breast, and that the blood stopped the movement of the watch. Therefore if the hands do not indicate the precise time of death, they unquestionably point out that of the wounding.

A Western paper, speaking of the fate of the City of Boston, says: Some three or four years ago it was suggested that all ocean steamers carry with them carrier pigeons, by whose use communication with either shore could easily be effected. Had this been done by the missing steamer, its fate would have been known long ere this; and it is possible that rescue might have been afforded the vessel had it been in the situation to receive it.

The semi-centennial at Indianapolis, on Tuesday, was a failure. A reporter irreverently says that "only about fifty of the old codgers gathered in the woods, and talked to each other of the old times."

A game at marbles between two boys in Tennessee, on Sunday week, was abruptly ended by the skillful use of his pen-knife by one of them. Marble now marks the grave of the other.

The Oil City races commenced to-day, a large number of our citizens are in attendance.

Infringement Notice.

The subscriber has learned that a certain firm in Titusville, known as "Bryan, Birmingham & Co.," have commenced the manufacture of Sucker Rods with Socket Joints. This is a Direct Infringement on his rights, as his claim is "connecting two sections of rod by means of wedges, wedging sockets, and double coupling bolt." He does not specify any particular shaped wedge, nor of what material it shall be made. All rods made as above described outside of his manufactory, are direct infringements. This, therefore is to

CAUTION OIL OPERATORS, and all others, against buying or using any rods so made, except those of his manufacture, as by so doing they will render themselves liable, and will be dealt with accordingly to law.
