The Titusville Herald has the following ecount of the "City on the hill" at West Hickory: It is three weeks old, and yet town. Fagundas City affords the last strik- trip. ing illustration of the peculiarities of the town building, energetic inhabitants of the oil region, and to-day equals in number of buildings and the different branches of trade any place of similar character in the region. The owners of the farm upon which the pains in the surveying of lots and streets, and there will never be seen here, the crooked lunes and alleys that are usually a chief and south and at right angles with the county line between Forrest and Warren counties. The west side of the street is the only portion upon which leases have been granted for business purposes, the owners of the land reserving the opposite side, as it is supposed to be the choicest part of the farm for oil purposes. There are now forty-one buildings completed, or nearly so, and tim-Ler on the ground for as many more. The following trades and houses are represented : News rooms, botels, hardware, grocery and provisions, drugs, clothings, restaurants, boarding houses, tobacco and cigars, boote and shoes, meat market, bakery, billiord room, and the usual number of shootings over the line where you can procure any liquid drink, from the mild batmless bowel restorative, "shoo ily root beer," to the "rattle snake renovator" that cats through the bottom of a cast iron heatle in two hours --But fow second hand building are seen here, upon the surrounding bills.

Oll City Races.

A large number of people were in attendance at the race course yesterday, including a very numerous and solect audience of ladies. During the day and up to about three o'clock in the atternoon, the weather was just what was desired, but the race had proceeded but two beads, when the rain commenced to pour down, literally drenching the people.

The borses were called at the appointed hour, and after several send-offs, made winning the heat. The second heat was jigs." givon to Darby, when the storm interfered, and the races were announced as postponed. from the Judges' stand until to-day at two o'clock. All pools and bets were declared off, the races to open anow to-day. The thus made in the two heats won by Clara and Darby were 2:42 and 2:37.

Owing to the stormy weather just evening, there was not a large attendance to witness the opening performance of France & Lannier's Theatrical company. The bistorical drams of Lucreti a Borgia was brought out in excellent style. In the obsracter of Lucretia Borgia we have never seen Miss Kate Estelle's equal. Her acting is so simple and life-like that it at once charms the entire audience. She is a finished artist in every respect, and a lady of rare accomplishments. Mrs. Grabanatti is also a versatile actress and a great favorite with the theatre loving portion of communito. Messra France, Lannier, Chapman, Stetson, &c., are first class performers, and is fact the entire company exhibit that degree of merit that at once eatitles them to
