Two of our prominent and wealthy citi zons made a wager of $500 a side, yester. day, that the Jas. S. McCray farm would produce 1.500 barre is of oil one day this year. The bet is decidedly a novel one, and the prevailing opinion appears to be that the party betting against the production of 1,500 barrels in any one day this year wo'd ing the month of July: the locer. The next few days for il probably decide the question.

It was expected that the Phillips well, on the J. S. McCray farm, would be completed hast evening, but so strong was the volume of gas from the well that the drillers had to stop work for the time being. Durlog the night the gas was lighted up and illuminated the surrounding bills for a long distance, so much so that many supposed it was a big fire. The gas was not so strong this morning and drilling was resumed. The well will be completed shout midnight.

The Erie Dispatch contains the following: Charles L. Phelps, Esq., ex-editor and publisher of the Girard Spectator, and more recently advertising agent for Dan. Rice, died at his home in Girard yesterday morning He will be buried to-day with Mason more. . The funeral will be attended by the Grand Chapter and lodges from Girard and Albion, and also by a delegation from the encampment of Knights Templar here. Mr. Phelps was well known throughout the country and much respected and his decease will be regretted by hosts of friends.

It gives us pain to record the demise of one by whose side we have "stuck" many a tilype," and whose many excellent traits of character, from a long acquaintance, we can bear ten imony to. In common with his many friends, we tender our heartfelt sympathies to his bereaved family. Peace to

A DINNER AND A KISS.

THE RESIDENCE OF THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY

"I have brought your dinner, father," The blacksmiths daughter said. As she took from her arm the kettle And lifted its shiping lid. "There is no any pie or pudding, So I will give you this," And upon his toil-worn forehead She left the childish kiss.

The blacksmith took off his apron, And dired in happy mood. Wondering much at the savor Hid in his humble food, While all about him were visions Full of prophetic bliss; But he never thought of Magic In his little daughters kiss.

While she with her kettle swinging, Merrily trudged along, Stopping at sight of a squirrel, Catching some wild bird's song, And I thought how many a shadow Of life and fate we would miss, If always our frugal dinners

Were seasoned with a kiss.

CARD.

The undersigned takes this method of announcing to the citizens of Petroleum Centre and vicinity that he has personally withdrawn from the retail Coal business at Petroleum Centre, having leased his premises to Messrs. John Burton and S. H. Kooker, two well known and highly esteemed citizens of the Centre, the latter of whom has for the past fourteen months been his (the subscriber's) very efficient and trustworthy assistant, and to whom he desires to express his grateful appreciation for zealous, untiring and faithful services performed, and pleasant personal relations existing during that period. And he would further strongly recommend the new firm to his friends and customers, assuring them that they will find it greatly to their interest to continue their patronage to the old stand, under the auspices of the new firm. The understaned would further state that he can not take leave of his old friends and customers without taking advantage of the present opportunity to express to them his deep sense of obligation and full appreciation for the valuable patronage he has received and the unexcentionably agreeable personal relations that have existed between himself and friends and patrons. There is probably no other place in the oil region where (notwithstanding the many unjust, unpleasant and faise aspersions c. at upon it) an equal promptitude in payment . fliabilitles, or equal general and reciprocal good feeling and harmony among the bus ness portion of community exists, and be takes pleasure in having the opportunity of placing this assertion upon record as the result of his business and personal experience and | 'ady was elected thus, and the hat holder observation.
