Enough money has been subscribed by the friends of the Columbia Cornet Band, in this place and at Columbia farm, to enable them to replace the instruments lost at the late fire on the farm. The instruments have been ordered and will arrive in a few days. This is as it should be, and will again place this excellent band in the front rank of Western Pennsylvania bands. Success to it!

The editor of the Jamestown Journal pitches into the Record at a lively rate, accusing us of lying, stealing, getting drunk, and numerous other crimes, which, considering the source it comes from, is decidedly a good joke. Pitch in Journal, if it don't "wash" we'll express you a bottle of crude petroleum to make it. We still adhere to the statement made by us in regard to the article in question. Ta, ta, Journal. Pull the walking-beam and sumpson post out of your own eyes; then you can see to pulling it from your neighbor's eye. Adios.

The latest divorce complaint made by a Chicago wife, contains the point that during seven years of married life, her husband had not kissed her once. Also toward is a kindless wife!

Was there ever a better example of the utter folly of unthinking charity than that witnessed the other day by a reporter who was visiting the miserable tenement houses of Baxter street, New York? In a loathsome cellar, for which two dollars rent per week was paid, a squalid family were grouped around an elegant silver-mounted coffin, the present of a lady up town for whom the deceased had worked. On the top of this costly gift stood a saucer to receive contributions from visitors to pay the funeral expense, and although the corpse had been kept over for several days beyond the proper time, there was still two dollars lacking of the required amount.

The committee of Western Pennsylvania iron men, recently appointed to confer with the ore dealers of Cleveland, to secure a reduction in the price of Lake Superior ore, will report at a meeting to be held in Pittsburgh, on the first of February.

PERSONAL.-Capt. John Travis, the champion pistol shot of the world, is stopping at the Central House.

Rich veins of Petroleum are said to have been discovered near Heide, in Hanover, Germany. About once in every three months rich veins of petroleum are discovered in different parts of the world, and one would naturally infer that such an increase would interfere with the developing of the Pennsylvania oil region. So far, however, the oil regions of this State take the lead, and are about the only petroleum regions in the world, all the oil springs and discoveries in other countries to the contrary notwithstanding.

Game of all kinds is quite plentiful in Forest county at present and the hunters are bagging it by the quantity.

The Meadville Journal has been informed that oil springs have been discovered on Cussewago Creek, six or seven miles to the northeast of that city. The "show" is said to be good, and by dipping a pocket handkerchief into the oil and wringing the contents into a 3-ounce vial it was filled at one operation. The oil is of a heavy lubricating character, and it is hoped comes from a good sand formation.

Justice Dowling has dismissed the case against E. S. Stokes, charged with defrauding the Brooklyn Oil Refining Company of $27,000, on the ground that the company, though in the form of a corporation, must be treated as a private co-partnership, and that under such view of the case the act of Stokes is not within the terms of the statute relative to embezzlement.

"Terre Haute boasts of an artesian well flowing whiskey." This is an immense thing on the "flowing bowl." We understand negotiations are pending for its purchase and removal to "Coney Island," to make that place more attractive as a summer resort. "All is well that ends well" like that.

STICK TO IT, BROOKLYN MISSES.

The Hon. J. W. Bulkley, Superintendent of Public Schools, in Brooklyn, visited school No. 15, at State and Powers streets on Tuesday, and examined a class of about fifty misses in history, with the following result:
Superintendent--What was the last engagement of the American Revolution?
First Pupil--The siege of Yorktown.
Superintendent--What was the result of that siege?
Second Pupil--The surrender of Cornwallis.

Superintendent--What did Cornwallis surrender?
Third Pupil--The town and fortifications together with Gloucester, the garrison of both places, and the fleet.
Superintendent--What? How could a General surrender a fleet? Next! What did Cornwallis surrender?
Fourth Pupil--The British troops and the fleet--

Superintendent--A Commodore commands a fleet; a General commands an army. Cornwallis was a General. He had nothing to do with the fleet. Next! What did Cornwallis surrender at Yorktown?
Fifth Pupil--The troops under his command and the fleet--

Superintendent--Haven't I just said that he couldn't surrender a fleet? Next! What did Cornwallis surrender?
Sixth Pupil (timidly)--He surrendered seven thousand British soldiers and the fleet--

Superintendent (excitedly)--Stop! Haven't you heard me say he couldn't surrender a fleet? Next! What did Cornwallis surrender?
Seventh Pupil (taking a text book and reading)--On the 19th of October, 1781, Cornwallis surrendered Yorktown and Gloucester, with more than seven thousand soldiers, to Washington. His shipping and sea-men he surrendered to De Grasse.

The Superintendent abruptly closed the examination.

The new sign over the office of J. S. McCray, McClintock House building, was painted by L. D. Kellogg, of Oil City. It is a fine specimen of sign painting.
