Gas has been struck in the Corry oil well and also in the office of the Corry Blade. The volume of gas is stronger in the Blade, and partakes more of the B. S. quality, than that found in the oil well. Hear him bleb:

The supposition of there being a general fire in the city was made more natural by the smoke issuing from some brush burning at night to the east of the derrick, which wafted in long columns in front of the gas, giving the appearance of a vast conflagration; and at times the smoke was so dense as to obscure the vivid light of the gas. But as a general thing the light was very bright all night, lighting up the country around; and appearing to the imaginative spectator like a whale with his tail in the air, and thrashing about, while his head resting on the surface sent forth from his blowers continual streams of fire.

The editor of the Blade would undoubtedly carry off the premium for being the champion gas blower—the Foster Rotary or Cowing Locomotive Cylinder gas pumps are no longer of any use, unless the owners can compromise with the Blade man. The "flukes of a whale on fire and thrashing about" is good, and a striking comparison to a volume of gas coming from an oil well.—Beat it who can!

PERSONAL.—The Western Pennsylvania Oil Company of Pittsburgh, owners of the Pearson Farm, have appointed Mr. John Reynolds, as Superintendent of that farm in place of Mr. Edward Vaughn, deceased. The appointment is a good one. Mr. R. is an old resident of the oil region, and thoroughly versed in the business of producing oil. We congratulate the company on securing the services of this gentleman, and feel sure he will fill the position to the satisfaction of the stockholders and all with whom he may have dealings.

Court sets in Franklin to-day.

Quite a number of our citizens were in attendance at the funeral of Mr. George C. Prather, at Plumer, to-day. The ceremonies were very solemn and impressive.

The Burton & Kooker well, on the Gearling farm, has commenced to yield oil in considerable quantities. Should this prove a paying well, it will open out a vast extent of new territory.

Mr. J. O. Crawford, of Kane City, met with quite a severe accident, near that place, a day or two since. He was on the walking beam adjusting the pitman, and accidentally fell to the ground, spraining his ankle and otherwise bruising him quite severely. He will be laid up for several days in consequence of this misfortune.

Mrs. Bradshaw of Wisconsin—good-explo. etc.

To-morrow evening the Second Lecture of the Y. M. C. A. Course comes off at Sobel's Opera House. We copy the following in regard to the lecture and the speaker, Rev. Wm. B. Culliss, from the Saranton Republican of a late date:

The lecturer on ascending the platform was greeted with loud applause. He commenced his lecture by a sort of well-made apology for the common-place character of the subject, and then launched forth in a brilliant and successful effort to show there was no necessity for any reference to the common place.

He first showed the importance of pleasant personal appearances and pleasant manners, and did not agree with the often repeated remark that no matter what the outside is if the heart is all right. After treating of outside appearances in a masterly manner and to the great delight of his audience, he went on to point out the various methods of wording appearances. He then referred to the frequent habit of judging by appearances, showing how very uncertain a method it was and giving some examples of mistakes made by judging according to this rule. The efforts to keep up appearance in dress were next the subject of humorous discussion. In this part of the lecture the ladies came in for a large share, and the way in which he held up to ridicule the present styles and extravagance in dress will not soon be forgotten by those who heard him. He said that there were many reforms needed in reference to the position of a woman, but the most pressing and important subject that could occupy the minds of the female reformers was the question of reform in dress. Fashionable men were then disposed of in a manner not very flattering to the species of human hollow ware. Appearances in learning respectability and refinement were then treated by the lecturer, almost convincing his audience with laughter at every step by his humorous allusions and pointed, well-told stories. He then referred to the habit of a certain class of society sneering at labor, and also to the practice of the press ridiculing those who are now occupying positions of honor and influence, but who once drove mules and delved into the depths of the earth for the development of the resources of this region, and characterized it as one that should be met with scorn and reprobation by all intelligent minds.

Now that winter is coming on, those of our citizens who own horses and cutters, should begin to think of the pleasures of sleigh riding, and to enable them to enjoy it and keep out the cold blasts of winter, it is necessary to have a supply of wolf robes, lap robes, buffalo robes, blankets, &c., all of which can be procured at A. Leggett's harness shop, on Main street, near the Egbert farm bridge. His stock is complete and comprises some elegant patterns. He also has on hand sleigh bells, harness, whips &c., all of which he is selling at remarkably reasonable rates. Give him a call.

A fearful murder was committed on Tuesday in Cleveland. A colored tin smith was murdered in his own house. He had eleven wounds upon his head either one of which was sufficient to cause death. A soldering iron was forced down his throat. He lived alone. His trunk was broken open and robbed. A coroner's jury failed to elicit any clue to the identity of the murderer. A young mulatto named Turner was arrested on suspicion and discharged.

The new Oil City near Pitohole reminds one forcibly of the early days of Pitohole. All is bustle and confusion; derrick after derrick has been put up, well after well is being drilled, the roads leading to the places are thronged with teams, everything seems going as merry as a marriage bell. Vacant houses have been removed from Pitohole and adjoining farms, to accommodate the wants of operators and others engaged in developing the territory. Leases are freely taken at one-half royalty and a thousand dollars bonus. From present appearances, Cash Up will have a bright future.—[Titusville Courier.

We find one of the happiest pieces of nursery jingle from Christina Rossetti in the last Old and New:

What does the bee do?
Bring home honey.
And what does father do?
Bring home money.
And what does mother do?
Pay out the money.
And what does baby do?
Eat up the honey.

A magnificent solid silver composing-stick is the prize offered for the best compositor at the Montreal printers' fair about to come off.

"Leaves have their time to fall, and fall have their time to leave." This touching sentiment is from the Louisville Ledger.

Mayor Kalbfleisch of Brooklyn, is about to be married to Mrs. Mary Frances Wade of Walden, N. Y.

Dickory, dickory dook, the mouse ran up the clock, the clock struck one, and down he ran, dickory, dickory dook; but not so with the rat, that the Louisville boy cornered in a room. The rat ran up the boy's body, biting as he went, way up the boy's neck, where he attempted to escape, but could not for the boy's neck collar. The rat did not run down and out the way he came, but continued to circulate and draw blood at every jump. The boy yelled bloody murder, but for some time his situation could not be appreciated. At last, when his category—or rather category—was understood, his clothes were stripped from him and the rat retired to his hole. The Journal says the boy will not sit down comfortably for some days, but he has concluded never to try and corner a rat again.

An Irishman was seen in the trenches before Vicksburg holding his hand above the earthwork. His captain asked, "What are you doing that for, Pat?" He replied with a grin a working of his fingers, "I'm feelin' for a furlough, sure!" Just then a rifle ball struck his arm below the wrist, slowly drawing it down, and grasping it with the other hand to restrain the blood, a queer expression of pain and humor passed over his face, as he exclaimed, "An' faith, it's a discharge!"

NOTES OF THE DAY.

Iowa comes to the front with a bale of cotton of as good quality as any in the South. The sleepers in a Western congregation were aroused by the sleepers in the church giving way.

It is not remarkable that Revenue Officer Krzyzanowski should be suspected of having a "bad name."

An illiterate Gentile, after wrestling with the word "polygamy" for a while, pronounced it "polywogamy."

If there are 666,000 grains in a bushel of wheat—and somebody says there are—how many drams are there in a quart of old rye?

A Nashville negro had made all his arrangements to marry a Miss Emma, when the mother of a Miss Annie reminded him of a promise to her daughter, and by the judicious introduction of a constable and a magistrate persuaded him to fulfill it.

The sweetest word in our language is love. The greatest word in our language is God. The word expressing the shortest time is now. The three make the sweetest duty man can perform.

An English life insurance pamphlet is entitled "Thanks for the Thoughtful." We beg leave to suggest a similar publication in the interest of saloon-keepers, to be called "Drinks for the Droughtful."—[Boston Advertiser.

In consequence of picking a pipe in his pocket a Detroit man caused a conflagration which destroyed about $13 worth of coal-tail.

It is suggested that if the story of the small-pox infected buffalo robes is true—and there is every reason to believe it is—those having any bales of these goods to which there is slightest suspicion attached, should have them disinfected at once, before being disposed of or removed to other localities.—Purchasers of western skins should ascertain where they come from, and refuse to buy any that have a suspicious character.—Without these precautions any merchant is liable to become the innocent tool of unprincipled traders and to aid the propagation of a pestilence to which he himself may fall a victim.

Little children often have most original and beautiful ideas. A friend related the following instance to us a few days ago: A lady living near Boston went up stairs one evening to put her little twins of five years old to bed. While undressing them she observed one of them throwing kisses toward the window. Surprised, she asked what she was doing. "Throwing kisses to the stars," was the reply. "But why do you do that?" "Oh," replied the child, "so that when the stars go out they will take the kisses of God!"

The exact value of the coin taken from the ruins of the Chicago custom-house is $381,866.68. The precious metal, in the condition found was sent to the Philadelphia mint, and after being assayed, the sum mentioned above was placed to the credit of the Chicago office.

The bottom is knocked almost completely out of the oil market. Should prices continue to fall, small operators will have to shut down their wells, not being able to stand the pressure.

In Wisconsin they won't allow women to attend political meetings, because they "holier so."

Out in Minnesota the ladies are already organizing preparatory to a vigorous leap year campaign.
