The Oil Freights.

New York, March 26.

Editor Daily Record:

Have closed contracts with all the Trunk lines at a fixed rate as now exists; drawbacks repudiated. Don't sell any oil to agents or parties interested in the South Improvement Company under any circumstances. Will leave for home tomorrow.

G. SHAMBERG, Chairman Com.

An alarm of fire about noon to day was occasioned by the roof of Mease & Armstrong's flour and feed store catching fire from a fire. When discovered it was blazing at a lively rate, fanned by a stiff breeze from the south. Mrs. and Miss Armstrong succeeded in extinguishing the flames on the inside of the building, and the fire was put out on the roof by Mr. Armstrong and the neighbors. The damage was light. In this connection we would urge on our citizens and business men the necessity of frequent examinations of their stove pipes and flues, and see to it that they are kept in thorough repair, otherwise a disastrous fire may be the ultimate result. Let this matter be attended to at once. The history of the past "burnings out" should prove a warning.

Among the injured by the late terrible railroad accident near Johnstown, was our townsman, Mr. Isaac Phillips, of the well known firm of Phillips & Boyles. Mr. P. was in one of the sleeping coaches which was thrown down the bank, and fortunately escaped with only a severe bruising. We are pleased to learn he will soon be able to be about again.

Appearance indicate that the days of the South Improvement Company are nearly numbered. Close up the ranks, boys, and the victory will surely be ours.

The warm rays of the sun are rapidly thawing the ice in Oil Creek.

Results of the Contest.

The committee from the Oil Regions appointed to confer with the managements of the different railroad lines of the Oil Region, are now in New York city, and by special agreement will meet the railway officials to arrange a basis of fair and equitable freights for the producers of the Pennsylvania Oil Region to-day. That the committee will be enabled to obtain a fair, and at the same time uniform rate of freights, we have scarcely any reason to doubt. The high officials of the grand trunk lines centering in the Petroleum Region, state frankly that they entered into the contracts with the Southern Improvement Company under a misapprehension of the real facts of the case, and evince a disposition to make such concession and arrangements as our business interests require. With this point gained, we need fear no monopoly that can be bought to bear. A fixed uniform rate of freights for oil, under a contract or arrangement extending over a term of five or ten years, is as much as we can ask for reasonably, and is certainly all we require.

The Free Pipe Bill is passed, and is a law. Congress has interested itself in our behalf, and it is to be hoped that our own legislature will so far comply with the wishes of the people of the oil country, as to repeal the charter of the South Improvement and all other such monster monopolies. Such action would go far to redeem them from the many well sustained accusations of corrupt legislation now on record against them.

The South Improvement monopoly is already powerless, and must in any event become a defunct institution. Their objects and aims stand forth in such hideous deformity, and they have been so terribly beaten in detail, as to need no extended comment.

The entire country owes a debt of gratitude to the people of the Oil Region, for to them is due the credit of meeting this monster monopoly, that threatens to absorb every industrial branch of business, and crushing it by their righteous indignation.

Justly incensed, laboring under great excitement, and making unequalled sacrifices, our people have, throughout the contest fully preserved their dignity and high commercial character. Calmness and moderation have characterized their deliberations. They have asked for nothing but their just rights, and knowing the same, were determined to have them at any and all hazards. The foe, seeing the stern array against them, have shrunk back amazed, thoroughly demoralized, and surrendered at discretion. This is something our people may well be proud of.

We consider that the battle has been fought, and that only the details of the capitulation are to be arranged. The Committees already at work, and the organization effected, can easily arrange this.

The loss to the Oil Region, from the almost general suspension of oil operations during the prevalence of the excitement, has been something, though not as great as might have been. Numbers of wells, in process of drilling last month was about 400, at a total cost of about $1,700,000. About same number were being drilled at commencement of present month. We have no means of ascertaining the number that were stopped, but think it will range from one-half to two-thirds. This much then has been added to the cash capital of the Oil Region, and will come into good use in commencing active operations again. This, and the stoppage of pumping many wells on the Sabbath, will also have the effect to materially lessen the production, and ensure better prices.

With the monopoly squelched, and an assured uniform rate of oil freights upon each of the transporting lines, full confidence is again restored, and every branch of business in the oil country will receive a fresh impetus, and the year that was so clouded at the outset will yet prove the most prosperous we have ever had. Things are bound to be all right again in a few short weeks, and the close of the season will exhibit a prosperous and happy people, so far as the Oil Regions is concerned. Send along the cars.—[Oil City Register.]

A copy of the Meadville Republican, dated August 26th, 1871, reached us yesterday, having been nine months on the road. It probably had visited all the principal cities of the world before reaching Petroleum Centre, and must have been delayed by the heavy snows on the overland route. We learn by it that the city was full of strangers, that it was raining in liberal quantities, and that court adjourned that day.

The manufacture of artificial ice is common at Honolulu—price to consumers five cents per pound; a nice and clean article.

The Faded Violet.

You gave it me long years ago
In the shadowy evening time,
While the clouds stole round the mountain-side
And the bells rang out a chime.
The blossoms faded at our feet,
The trees stooped from above;
You said, "This flower will say for me
All that my heart says—'Love.'"
'Tis long ago; but I have yet
That little faded violet.

And life was at its blithest then;
The world ne'er seemed so bright;
For the sweetest story ever told
I listened to that night;
And often, often, when alone,
I've kissed my violet blue,
And said, "E'en as I keep my flower
So will my love be true."
Ah me! I have it hidden yet,
That little faded violet.

We parted long, long months ago,
With not a sign to tell
That once, in far-off happy days,
We two had loved so well.
We parted with a few cold words—
We two who oft had said
Not all the world should come between—
Ah, well: the love was dead—
The love was dead; but yet, but yet
I keep my faded violet.

A Janesville, (Wis.) paper tells of a young couple so thoroughly determined on matrimony that, without delay, they prove twenty-three miles in an open wagon, when the thermometer marked 17 degrees below zero to get a certificate. They had their hands, feet, noses and ears severely nipped by frost, but after thawing out, were successfully united, and boldly drove back in the biting cold on the return journey of twenty-three miles.

A SAD FALLING OUT.—It is indeed a sad falling out when, after years of the closest intimacy, the hair parts company with the head. Fortunately the lamentable separation may be easily prevented and the taint more closely united than ever by a timely and systematic use of Lyon's Kathairon, the most potent invigorant of the hair and promoter of its growth and beauty known to modern pharmacy. It completely obviates the dry and parched condition of the roots of the hair, which is preliminary to its coming out, by supplying the precise degree of moisture requisite to its preservation in a healthy state. It is the only true dissolvent and evaporant of dandruff and other impurities of the scalp, whose presence is injurious to the hair. As a beautifier of the head the Kathairon has no equal. It not only increased the quantity of the hair, but improves its quality immediately, imparting a lustrous appearance and silky texture which are exceedingly attractive.

In a shop in Pittsfield, Massachusetts there rests on its block an anvil that has done duty for more than three hundred years. It is as sound to-day as it was in 1633, when Eltweed Pomeroy, after welding for the Stuarts the ponderous horseshoes of the same pattern that his ancestors had made for many generations for the Tudors and Plantagenets, grew tired of taxes without law, and work without wages and taking his anvil, sailed for a New World. A deft workman, he threw in the settlements, and left his anvil as an heirloom to his descendants.

About three or four days out of each week the Titusville Herald and Courier, and Oil City Derrick, fail to reach this office. Why is this thus? Many of their subscribers also complain of the non-receipt of their papers. The evil should be remedied in some manner.

The first crow of the season sang sweetly this forenoon.

Samuel Manross has started up an old well at the mouth of Hickory Creek, although it does not yield largely, yet sufficient to pay him for pumping a portion of each day.

Mr. John Siggins, of Tidiloute, with some other parties, contemplate putting down a well on the Manross farm about one and a half miles from the river. West Hickory Creek has, years ago, produced and it is supposed that paying wells may again be found on the lower portion of the Creek.—[Tidiloute Commercial.]

A young sewing girl, reentering her apartment one night, found a pale and bagged face upon her pillow. It was that of a sailor who had despaired of gaining her affection, and who had managed to gain entrance to her room and to poison himself there.

A Cleveland dressmaker has turned the enormous paucity now in vogue among the luxurious daughters of fashion to the service of match-making mothers. Under its ample folds she conceals a steel trap, which when some curled darling of fortune squeezes the waist of the wearer, catches the arm to fragrant delicta. Of course the various members of the squeezed one's family bounce in upon the squeezer, and, unable to fight or fly, he is forced to pronounce the words which give a right to squeeze since die.

We were in error last week when we announced that the well on the Connor farm had been pumping for some days. The fact is the workmen only commenced to tube it on Thursday of last week. While the drilling process was being continued large quantities of oil flowed from the hole, and it is expected to prove a good well. Suttan Brown, McFarland and others, are the owners of this well. They have also about 80 acres leased on favorable terms in the immediate vicinity. If this strike proves good it will develop and bring into market a large amount of new territory.—[Oilmen's Journal.]

The Warren and Venango road is pushing things. Over fourteen hundred men are now at work on the road, and every day adds new bone and muscle to the force. At this rate, by the time we get done making other railroads on paper and by resolutions, the locomotives of this improvement will be whistling up and down the valley of Oil Creek.—[Titusville Courier.]

Those who have supposed that the Sandwich Islanders are devoid of modesty are altogether wrong. In winter the natives are, neatly dressed in a jacket and pants, loons of blue paint, fastened in front with buttons of black ink.

The "local" of the Jamestown Journal, who has been married but a few weeks, has an article in the last issue of that paper entitled "What shall we sleep on?" We confess to a little surprise at this new-made benedict root-ing round after new quarters so soon.—[Titusville Courier.]
