NOTES OF THE DAY.

There are tribes about the gates of Moscow who know nothing of Christianity; they adore sacred trees as they did 300 years ago

Bermuda is looked upon as a coffin by the British soldiers. The mortality there is greater than at any other station save China.

A Liverpool Recorder not long since sentenced a policeman to penal servitude for five years, for robbing a shoeblack of 8 pence.

A man died at Rochester last week in a grocery just as he had asked the clerk to give him ten cents, for God's sake, as he had not eaten anything for a week.

Germany is to have but one executioner after the 1st of May. He will reside at Berlin and will receive two hundred dollars for each execution.

Renan, who has been lecturing in Paris on the "Book of Job," is advised to come to Washington and lecture on the "book of jobs."

The mails having, for a week, failed to come to time in an Arkansas town, the local paper says it has been forced to draw heavily on the almanac for copy, and if communication with the outer world should be still longer cut off, "we will be obliged next week, to make extracts from the Bible; thus supplying some of our readers, at least, with matter entirely new to them."

Sixty per cent. of the population of England live on the narrow line which divides sufficiency of food from starvation.

Schoolmasters and mams will soon begin to receive dandelion bouquets and fresh spring doughnuts from affectionate pupils who have not been "whaled" all to pieces in the early part of the term.
